PREFACE

Applied to musical dramas like Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde," the term libretto sounds absurd, but it would be difficult to substitute for the purely practical purpose of naming a catalogue an equally convenient, an equally generic, and at the same time equally specific term. By international consent libretto has come to mean a text that is intended for musical composition, whether it be a text for musical tragedy, comedy or farce, oratorio, sacred or secular cantata. Exactly therein lies the value of this somewhat artificial traditional term for purposes of modern phraseology that it circumscribes without necessity of further definition one distinctive field of literature, just as opera, a similarly artificial term, possesses an unmistakable significance. Certainly the combination of the two—opera-libretto—can not be surpassed in terseness of self-explanatory meaning.

At any rate, the term libretto has here been used without any of the current aspersions on the esthetic value of texts for dramatic music. The term opera-libretto is usually coupled with the idea of a type of drama hardly to be dignified by the name of drama or even literature. Unfortunately this contempt is justified in very many individual cases; but a sweeping condemnation of opera-librettos would be just as unfair as a sweeping condemnation of "legitimate" dramas, though most of these, too, suffer from artificiality, conventionality, and insipidity of theme and treatment. The difference is this, that the defects of the average opera-libretto are not hidden from view so easily by the clever drapery of language. A libretto is not an art work complete in itself and self-sufficient as literature. It requires to be complemented by music. To use Mr. Forsyth's witty phrase, it is but one-half of the scissors of opera. A libretto is practically useless without the music, and vice versa. Thus, while working with the tools of dramatic craft, the librettist molds something with all the attributes of a play, yet not a play self-sufficient on the stage or in the closet. He is handicapped from the beginning by imperative consideration of the technical problems of the composer, the limitations and possibilities of musical art. At his best he delivers into the hands of his partner the perfect half of an art work. The difficulty of his peculiar art, therefore, is to prepare and to facilitate the amalgamation of two different arts, and this is a difficulty not always fully appreciated by those who criticize librettos from a literary standpoint and who, over the occasional absurdities of an "Alfred Bunn, Esq.," forget the accomplishments of men like Zeno, Metastasio, Goldoni, Quinault, Favart, Wagner, Boito, Gilbert, Maeterlinck, and many others.

Whatever the place of librettos is in the history of literature, the libretto has its distinct place in the history of music, more especially in the history of opera. This has been recognized for centuries, and none of the fairly numerous treatises on the dramaturgies of opera omits a more or less convincing consideration of the function and art of the librettist. For this very reason it is astonishing that so far no serious attempt should have been made to give us a comprehensive history of libretto. It would be, of course, a difficult and a very complicated task, one that could be undertaken only by a scholar equally intimate with the history and technique of dramatic music and of dramatic literature, not to forget an indispensable intimacy with "Kulturgeschichte" and the economic as well as purely commercial currents underflowing the development of both arts; but it would be a fascinating task, indeed, fascinating to both the author and the reader. There are signs—I refer to the recent book on Zeno's librettos by Mr. Fehr—that the interest in the history of librettos is being revived, and if this interest continues the history of opera can not but profit by it. One result would be a clearer understanding of the share progressive librettists had in the shaping of the art form of opera. One hears much of the suggestions offered by composers to their librettists, one hears less of the outspoken or latent suggestions offered to composers by their librettists. It was Burney, I believe, who first made the observation that composers and librettists like to travel in pairs; that is, one composer preferably setting librettos by one author to music. If that observation is correct, it stands to reason that under the circumstances the influence of thoughtful librettists on the evolution of opera as an art form must have been very considerable. To decide, for instance, whether Verdi's "Falstaff," as a combined effort in the right direction, owes more to Verdi than to Boito, would be difficult, indeed, just as it would be to establish a perfect balance between our indebtedness to Wagner, the dramatist, and to Wagner, the composer. Earlier periods were not different in this respect. In the case of Calsabigi and Gluck, for instance, we have known for some time that Calsabigi had at least an equal share in certain reforms generally attributed to Gluck alone. If we turn to Metastasio, his letters to Hasse and others prove that he was by no means a willing tool in the hands of composers. He submitted to certain traditional conventionalities perhaps because it would have been useless in his time to offer stubborn resistance, but he resented the idea that the librettist had no problems of his own and should be a mere servant to the composer. "The play is the thing" was his maxim, too, and he plainly gave to the dramaturgies of opera deep and continued thought. With something like a mild monopoly on the art of writing "grand opera" librettos for eighty years in the "eroicamente erotico" manner, as one reformer put it, his influence on opera as an art form clearly must have been remarkable. It is not lessened by the fact that he excelled where most of the composers of his time failed because of fossilized conventionality, namely, in the dialogue, which stamps him, from the purely literary standpoint, too, a great playwright. What is true of Metastasio is true also mutatis mutandis of Goldoni, of Zeno, and the earlier musical playwrights that really count. Indeed, the very foundations of opera were laid, I dare say, by Rinuccini as much as by Jacopo Corsi, Peri, or Caccini.

If, therefore, the importance of librettos is clear for the history of musical dramaturgies and esthetics, in short of opera in general, still more so is their importance for the history of individual operas. The truth of this statement is perhaps not fully appreciated by those who use only modern librettos with the object of preparing themselves by a better acquaintance with the text for a better understanding of the opera to be heard, a function of the libretto which our libraries should begin to value more highly. Lexicographers and historians, especially local historians of opera, would have been greatly handicapped in their compilations without the direct or indirect help of the librettos which, in innumerable cases, furnish the only available clue as to the composer and author of older operas, the casts, which means biographical data on the singers, and the year-dates of performance, very often of first performance. Beyond such invaluable clues, however, librettos furnish information of a very different and equally important kind. Every student of Wagner's life, for instance, knows that his "Tannhäuser" was performed in the earliest days at Dresden with several different endings, but in just what these differences consisted was not accurately known before Tappert carefully compared the several editions of the "Tannhäuser" librettos first used at Dresden. If we go back to the eighteenth century the importance of librettos for the solution of similar textual problems becomes even greater, indeed perplexingly so if we are interested in early Italian operas.

This is primarily due to the well-known fact that an opera was hardly ever performed exactly alike as to text and therewith as to music in different cities. The original version of an opera only in rare cases coincided with that of replicas. The pasticcio and rifacimento tendency of the age, fostered by the demands of the singers for "thankful" numbers and the commercial risks of the managers, undermined the respect for the mental property of author and composer. The custom to substitute at will arias in the opera to be performed by arias from other operas by other composers and authors, or to replace them by such composed for the occasion, and all this very often without the slightest notice to the audience, grew into a chronic disease, into a system before which authors and composers bowed resignedly and which lasted until the latter part of the eighteenth century. There are cases on record in which out of a total of about thirty arias only about half a dozen had been retained from the original version of the opera by the author and composer under whose names the opera continued to sail.

Supposing, therefore, that a library possesses the score of an old Italian opera and that the score bears the name of a certain composer. The inexperienced would look up the date of first performance of the opera in some standard reference work, would attach that date to the score, would accredit the whole score, irrespective of incongruity of style, to one author and one composer and would hold them responsible for the merits or demerits of text and music in detail without further misgivings. This conclusion would be unsound from the first to the last, as may be inferred from the manner in which the expert would study the score. He would locate in the first place a copy of the libretto as actually used at the first performance of the composer's opera. If the text in the score and the text in the opera agree, with only irrelevant differences, he would conclude correctly that presumably this was a copy of the score as originally composed by the composer. If the name of the composer had been added by a later hand, he would also conclude that the score had been correctly attributed to him. If, however, the text of the score and of the libretto disagree, he would know immediately, first, that the score in this form was not used for the original performance; secondly, that the score contains ingredients for which the composer named is not responsible. Only by finding an edition of the libretto coinciding fully with the score under question would he be able to date it correctly, and only by a comparison of the original edition of the composer's opera with the edition of the established replica would he be able to determine what belongs to the original author and composer of the opera and what not. Other reconstructive possibilities any reader may find for himself by applying, as it were, the rules of permutation.

Cursory as these remarks are on the different uses to which librettos may be put, they suffice to illustrate the importance of a libretto collection in any well-equipped musical library. Its importance will increase in the same ratio as the library's collection of opera scores increases, and the need of an adequate libretto collection will become imperative should a library attempt to develop its collection of opera scores organically, to build up, as it were, a museum of operatic history. At any rate, this was the standpoint of the Library of Congress when the project of assembling a comprehensive, representative collection of operas began to assume definite shape. The ideal solution of the problem would be to have every opera represented also by its libretto. Whether such an ideal solution is possible of attainment or not, it is clearly the course which every systematic effort would have to take. That it would be futile to start such a collection ab ovo by the painfully slow process of acquiring one desirable libretto after the other was realized from the beginning. Even the gradual purchase of small, though fine, collections like that of Mr. James E. Matthew could hardly accomplish the desired result. The Library of Congress, therefore, abided its time until one of the large collections known to be in private hands would be within reach. The supreme opportunity came when in the fall of 1908 one of the most famous of all libretto collections, that of Mr. Albert Schatz, of Rostock, was offered us. The Library of Congress lost no time in acquiring this collection, the formation of which had taken Mr. Schatz not less than forty years.

As Mr. Schatz was in feeble health, and as the Library of Congress quite naturally wished to possess for future use an authoritative statement on the origin and history of his great collection before it might be too late, he was requested to furnish such a statement himself. With characteristic promptness he complied with our request and wrote the following autobiographical sketch under date of Rostock, March 17, 1909:

“Meine Sammlung von Operntexten, wie sie jetzt die Library of Congress in Washington erworben hat, ist das Ergebnis eigener Sammeltätigkeit von über 42 Jahren. Bereits in frühster Jugend entwickelte sich bei mir ein besonderes Interesse für die Oper und ihre Geschichte, das durch ältere Freunde nicht bloss wach gehalten, sondern lebhaft gefördert wurde. Als der kaufmännische Beruf mich zunächst nach Hamburg und dann 7 Jahre nach San Francisco führte, ruhte zwar mein Sinn für dies Gebiet. Kaum war ich indessen im Herbst 1873 nach Rostock zurückgekehrt und Besitzer der noch jetzt hier bestehenden Musikalienhandlung Ludwig Trutschel Nachfolger geworden, als die alte Neigung von neuem erwachte und zu dem Plan erstarkte, selbst eine Geschichte der Oper zu schreiben. Dieser Plan ist, trotz bis heute fortgesetzter Arbeit daran, noch nicht zur Vollendung gekommen; denn der Stoff nahm bei der von mir angewandten Methode ungeahnte Dimensionen an. Es stellte sich heraus, dass die bisherigen Darstellungen der Operngeschichte als Quellen völlig unzureichend und unzuverlässig waren, da sie in der Hauptsache nicht unmittelbar auf den Quellen aufgebaut, sondern ohne Kenntnis dieser, einander nachgeschrieben sind. So kam ich zu dem Schluss, dass eine korrekte Darstellung ein unmittelbares Studium der Grundquellen vernetwendige, und sah mich genötigt, da sämtliche grossen Bibliotheken dies Quellenmaterial nur unvollständig enthielten, selbst an das Aufspüren und Sammeln derselben zu gehen. So ist im Laufe der Jahre meine Textsammlung und meine Bibliothek entstanden, von denen in Sonderheit erstere von kaum einer anderen Sammlung gleicher Art übertroffen werden dürfte und unter allen ernstern Arbeitern auf gleichem Gebiet weit und breit bekannt geworden ist. Sie führte mich mit einer Reihe anderer Musikhistoriker zusammen, mit denen ich korrespondiert habe und zum Teil noch korrespondiere. Diese Sammlung, sowie die Bestände der Bibliotheken Europas, förderten meine Geschichte der Oper so weit, dass das statistische Material in circa 80,000 Zetteln ziemlich abgeschlossen vorliegt. Diese Zettel enthalten jeder den Titel einer Oper, Namen des Komponisten und Dichters, Ort, Theater und Zeit, nicht bloss der ersten Aufführung, sondern auch der erstmaligen Wiederholungen in andern Städten oder Theatern. Sie sind chronologisch und alphabetisch geordnet, lassen sich ohne grosse Schwierigkeit, aber auch nach Komponisten, Dichtern, Städten und Theatern zusammen stellen und ergeben den vollständigen Stoff für eine Bibliographie der Oper. Zu dem fertigen Material gehört insbesondere das über die Komponisten D. Cimarosa, B. Galuppi, C. W. von Gluck, K. H. Graun, P. Guglielmi, G. F. Händel, J. A. Hasse, N. Jommelli, J. S. Mayr, F. Paër, G. Paësiello, N. Piccini, A. M. G. Sacchini, und G. Sarti. Es liegt vor in 36 Bänden und bedarf zur Veröffentlichung nur einer Schlussrevision. Das Werk im ursprünglichen Plan zur Ausführung zu bringen, ist mir, da ich in wenigen Wochen das 70. Lebensjahr erreiche, wohl nicht mehr beschieden. Soweit ich selbst nicht noch zu Einzeldarstellungen gelange oder eine andere Verwertung sich mir anbietet, beabsichtige ich dieses Material mir bekannten Fachgenossen zur Veröffentlichung oder Benutzung bei anderen Arbeiten zu übergeben. Das unfertige Material soll dagegen nach meinem Tode der Vernichtung anheim fallen."

[Translation.]

"My collection of opera-librettos, now in possession of the Library of Congress, is the result of more than forty-two years of collecting. Since early youth I took a particular interest in opera and the history of opera, and this interest was kept alive by older friends and encouraged. When a commercial career took me first to Hambourg and then for seven years to San Francisco, my mind was concentrated on other matters, but hardly had I returned in the fall of 1873 to Rostock, to become the owner of the still existing firm

'Musikalienhandlung Ludwig Trutschel Nachfolger,' when my old passion awoke and I conceived the plan of writing a history of opera. This project, though I have worked at it until now, has not been completed, inasmuch as it reached unsuspected dimensions, owing to the method of procedure employed by me. I found that previous histories of operas were absolutely insufficient and unreliable, since in the main they are not based on primary sources, but were copied one from the other without the knowledge of these sources. I became convinced that a correct history would necessitate the study of the primary sources, and since none of the large libraries contained the material sufficiently complete, that I would have to trace and collect it myself.

"In this manner my libretto collection and my library gradually came into existence, of which especially the former is hardly surpassed by any other. At any rate, it became known everywhere to scholars interested in the same subject, and through my collection I was brought into contact with quite a few other musical historians with whom I corresponded and still correspond. My own collection and librettos in other European collections furthered my history of opera to the point that the statistical part may be considered fairly finished on about 80,000 cards. Each card contains the title of an opera, name of composer and author, place, theatre, and date of the first performance not only, but of the first repetitions in other cities or theatres. The cards are arranged chronologically, subarranged alphabetically, but without much difficulty could be rearranged by composer or author or cities and theatres. They represent the complete material for a bibliography of opera. I mention especially the material on the composers D. Cimarosa, B. Galuppi, C. W. von Gluck, K. H. Graun, P. Guglielmi, G. F. Händel, J. A. Hasse, N. Jommelli, J. S. Mayr, F. Paër, G. Paësiello, N. Piccini, A. M. G. Sacchini, and G. Sarti. These thirty-six volumes need but a final revision for the purpose of publication. (To write my history of opera, according to the original plan, is hardly allotted to me, since in a few weeks I reach my seventieth year.) If I am not able to at least write some monographs, or unless an opportunity arises for disposing of it otherwise, I intend to entrust this material to colleagues of my acquaintance to be published or to be used by them for other works. The incomplete material, on the other hand, shall be destroyed after my death."

Beyond the pride^s in the possession of the Albert Schatz collection, the Library of Congress takes a sentimental interest in it because, as the reader will have noticed, Mr. Schatz spent some of the best years of his life in America. After his return to Rostock he lived there until his death, October 18, 1910 (he was born there May 19, 1839), active in the musical affairs of his city in several honorary positions, quietly and with self-sacrifice and at great expense amassing his libretto collection, industriously collecting and digesting material for his colossal chronological statistics of operas, his opera-dictionary and kindred works, and ever ready to spend liberally from his wonderful store of knowledge to all—and they were many—who sought his advice.

The total number of librettos in the Albert Schatz collection, not counting duplicates, is in round figures 12,240. Of these 12,000 are opera librettos, the remainder librettos of oratorios and cantatas.

These appear to have come into his possession incidentally through the purchase of miscellaneous lots of librettos, such as are offered quite frequently by dealers, who only recently have shown a disposition to give to individual librettos that attention which they deserve and for which collectors and librarians have been sighing. In the same manner he appears to have acquired many librettos of unimportant replicas, which he otherwise would hardly have cared to add to his collection. Not that they are valueless—at least they have a decided value for local history—but, as might be expected from a connoisseur like Albert Schatz, his plan seems to have been to collect first editions, i. e., librettos printed for the first performance of an opera; in other words, librettos in their original state in preference to those used for replicas with the customary alterations, additions, interpolations, etc. This accounts for the presence of such an extraordinary number of first editions of seventeenth and eighteenth century librettos, and exactly herein lies the great value of the Albert Schatz collection for historical purposes. If in many cases even a patient collector like Mr. Schatz had to content himself with more or less important replica librettos, it merely serves to show how difficult, not to say impossible, a task it was and still is to form a comprehensive, representative collection of librettos by systematic and organic development. At no time, of course, can Mr. Schatz have entertained the notion to acquire every libretto of the more than 30,000 operas performed since 1597. Furthermore, it stands to reason that he knew intimately the weak spots in his, as every expert will agree, formidable collection. There are such weak spots the plenty, as in every collection of books, pictures, coins, or what not. If Mr. Schatz, for instance, turned to a master like Agostino Steffani, he must have felt keen disappointment at his inability to make a better showing. Presumably he consoled himself with the knowledge, born of long experience, that the find of a particularly rare libretto is practically a matter of luck, and presumably he tendered his silent good wishes to some competitor luckier or speedier than he. Moreover, though in innumerable instances his showing may well excite the envy of some specialist, some collector especially interested in the operas of a particular master or performed in a particular city, Mr. Schatz unmistakably was forming a general collection. If he had concentrated his efforts on particular masters to the neglect of others, probably the result would sometimes have been more satisfactory for the purposes of specialists with a limited sphere of interest, but it certainly would have been less satisfactory for the purposes of a general library. While weak spots, as conceded above, have their explanation in peculiar obstacles over which a collector is not master, another aspect of the Schatz collection is rather puzzling. Though cosmopolitan in his tendencies, Mr. Schatz did not collect French librettos with the same planful zeal as he did German and Italian. For reasons unknown to us, he preferred at first German translations to the French originals, and though he evidently in later years paid more attention to the latter, he did not quite succeed in reversing the balance in their favor. In other words, the Schatz collection, relatively speaking, was not as strong in French librettos as it might have been. A similar estimate applies to Russian, Scandinavian, Bohemian, Hungarian, Spanish, English, and American librettos in the original language. That it was not a lack of linguistic ability which prompted Mr. Schatz to leave his collection more or less underdeveloped in these fields is proven by the curious (and sometimes embarrassing) fact that he invariably entered librettos in his own catalogue in the language written, whether that be Hungarian, Norwegian, Portuguese, or any other, and in case of Russian librettos he even made his catalogue entries and notes in Russian script.

After a study of Mr. Schatz' "Hand-Katalog," which accompanied the purchase, had established the character and relative strength and weakness of his collection, the Library of Congress gradually entered on a campaign of filling in gaps. Not, of course, recklessly and without discrimination. The campaign was based on the fundamental idea of deepening and facilitating the study of opera scores in our possession by putting at the student's disposal also the librettos of the operas. For administrative reasons the want lists were based on our collection of full scores, now more than 2,500, and not on the collection of about 7,000 vocal scores. And in view of the fact that the publication of the catalogue of our seventeenth and eighteenth century librettos was likely to precede that of nineteenth century librettos by several years, emphasis was laid on the earlier period. This was the theory, but for actual results we were subject to the caprices of the market. Still, the Schatz collection was strengthened by many hundreds of librettos, including very many French. It further happened that the remarkable Longe collection of minor English dramatists, acquired by the Library of Congress, included some four hundred English librettos, mostly before 1800. As to American librettos, the Library of Congress is practically in a status quo; this means that the eighteenth and the early nineteenth centuries are not yet represented with that completeness which one would like to consider characteristic of a national library. This deficiency is due to the exasperating scarcity of early American librettos. On the other hand, by dint of the broadening stream of copyright deposits, the Library of Congress may point to a collection of later American librettos which it would be extremely difficult to duplicate by other means. That these copyright deposits include many foreign librettos of recent date may be mentioned in passing. It is a safe estimate that the total number of librettos accrued to the Library of Congress by purchase, copyright, gift, or otherwise now reaches, if it not surpasses, 17,000. That the publication of a complete catalogue of this huge collection will stimulate assistance to fill in disagreeable gaps is confidently expected. Perhaps in course of time even the so strangely scarce collected works of certain early librettists like Morselli, and others may come our way and we may be able to make a better showing of the Italian librettos published at London in Händel's time, as also in certain other fields now comparatively barren.¹

Immediately after purchase of the Albert Schatz collection the plan was conceived of making access to our collections easier by publication of a catalogue, thereby enhancing the practical value of the collections themselves immeasurably. Quite naturally we turned to Mr. Schatz' own catalogue of his collection as a suitable basis for further operations, but the plan of publishing his catalogue as it stood, merely incorporating with it our own librettos, soon had to be abandoned. Much to our regret this idea of a memorial to Mr. Schatz' patience, energy, and enthusiasm was found to be impracticable. Some of the chief obstacles will readily appear from a perusal of the facsimile of a page or rather sheet from his catalogue.

Painstaking and valuable, indeed invaluable, as his entries are for the names of composers and authors, date, and place of first performance, etc., they deal with a system of abbreviations, which, simple, uniform, and understandable to a linguist though it be, would not be quite convenient in an American publication. It will also be noticed that the bibliographical description of the librettos is restricted to a minimum, sufficient undoubtedly for Mr. Schatz' own special purposes, but not for ours. In addition, the alphabet under individual composers was found to overlap, i. e., to start anew two, three, and more times with annoying frequency—an irregularity easily explained by the gradual growth of Mr. Schatz' collection. Finally, his catalogue is prepared throughout by entry under composers with neither author nor title index, and without the latter his catalogue soon proved of too limited usefulness, as, for obvious reasons, will be any libretto catalogue without a title index. The editorial and mere clerical labor in dissecting, realphabating, copying, standardizing Mr. Schatz' in its way, of course, splendid catalogue for our purposes, would have been very much greater than those uninitiated in library perplexities and drudgery might expect, and too great for practical consideration. In short, as a list his catalogue is too full, as a catalogue too meager.

Instead of reducing his catalogue after incorporation of our other librettos to a mere list, the preparation and publication of which would not have consumed more than one or two years, but the permanent value of which for reference and research would have been doubtful and the cost not commensurate with its usefulness, a decision was reached to prepare a new and full-entry catalogue, which would answer all purposes except perhaps those of bibliographical anatomists. That for this new catalogue Mr. Schatz' own catalogue would have to be utilized to the fullest possible extent was, of course, understood, as was also our obligation to consider him, whom no less a scholar than Friedrich Chrysander in his review of Taddeo Wiel's "Catalogo delle opere in musica rapresentate nel secolo XVIII in Venezia" (Vierteljahrschrift für Musikwissenschaft, v. 10, 1894) had called "mein Orakel in solchen Dingen" as prime authority in all matters usually embodied in the best kind of opera dictionaries. This obligation became all the more apparent after the Library of Congress acquired, in 1911, from the heirs of Mr. Schatz all the manuscripts alluded to in his autobiographical sketch. Now Mr. Schatz' industry in keeping abreast of current literature is well illustrated by the fact that the date for the same opera does not always tally in his several compilations apparently made at different times. Consequently I felt obliged to consult them all. Not because this entailed much and tedious labor is the fact mentioned here, but because quite likely now and then I overlooked discrepancies and thereby missed the opportunity to profit by Mr. Schatz' final historical data. These data frequently do not coincide with those in the published standard reference works. In most such cases I felt methodically justified in accepting without question his data instead of those of his predecessors, because Mr. Schatz had worked his way through practically all the available standard dictionaries, catalogues, bibliographies, etc., of his time, such as those by Groppo, Allacci, Wotquenne, Wiel, Piovano, von Weilen, Parke, Baker, Grove, Parfaict, Clément and Larousse, Fétis, Goedicke, Riemann, Salvioli, and possibly Eitner, besides many biographies and purely historical works. Furthermore, his own extensive researches and his libretto collection as primary source had enabled him to rectify many errors which had been inherited by one lexicographer from the other, to add new and to suppress antiquated data, or, at any rate, to throw the weight of his authority in favour of one date as against the other—and the catalogue itself is the best proof for this assertion.

Nevertheless, my respect for Mr. Schatz' accomplishments did not render me immune against the necessity of spending off and on many hours in consultation of books that had either escaped his attention or which I interpreted differently or which have appeared during the last few years. These remarks refer, of course, mainly to purely historical data. That there is still ample room for improvement I fully realize, and I realize it all the more because my experience has taught me that the time for an absolutely comprehensive and accurate opera-dictionary has passed forever. The task is altogether too formidable and too complicated. Even the most conscientious effort in this direction will suffer from the breed of ingrown, inherited errors in books otherwise full of new information, but growing too numerous for critical perusal by any one man or set of men. After all, this is a catalogue, not an opera-dictionary (in concept and purpose two distinctly different types of works). All purely historical data that ordinarily come within the province of lexicographers, but not of the cataloguer, are here intended and offered as an accidental, not as the essential feature, though under the circumstances their value for reasonably accurate reference can not be gainsaid.

Originally the plan had been to enter our entire libretto collection alphabetically by composer in one catalogue, undivided by periods. By the time about 2,500 librettos of the Schatz collection had been catalogued on this plan, its feasibility had become questionable. Not only did the question of expense assume grave aspects, but the entry by composer of early librettos proved to have very considerable disadvantages. Almost invariably modern librettos mention both composer of the music and author of the text and therewith leave nothing to be desired for main entry under either, though main entry of opera-librettos under author is undesirable for obvious reasons. The chief reason is that in ninety-nine out of a hundred cases the inquirer neither knows nor takes interest in the author, but almost invariably he will know the composer. Library economy, therefore, would seem to suggest a compromise between cataloguing maxims and actual conditions and that in libretto entries the author be subordinated to the composer. It is quite different with the earlier librettos, especially Italian. Often only the author is mentioned, often only the composer, and in many hundreds of cases neither. In these cases the composer either remains unknown, or the opera is attributed to a certain composer on the strength of direct or circumstantial historical evidence, in most cases simply on the strength of Allacci's authority. If it is the function of a sensible catalogue to let the books (in this case, librettos) speak as much as possible for themselves and to avoid a confusion in the mind of the user of the catalogue between facts contained in the book and facts furnished by the cataloguer, then the entry of anonymous librettos under composer will inevitably lead to endless explanations, complications, contradictions, or worse. No such drawbacks attach to main entry of early librettos under title. The cataloguer occupies neutral ground, and whether anonymous or not, the librettos fall in line readily. Therefore, it was decided to continue to catalogue modern librettos under composer, but earlier librettos under title. The year 1800 was selected somewhat arbitrarily for the parting of the ways, so that the complete catalogue of our libretto collection will consist of two independent parts, the first, here presented, of librettos printed before 1800, the second of librettos printed after 1800, perhaps with supplemental volumes treated in the same manner.¹

To my knowledge Alfred Wotquenne's splendidly gotten up and lavishly illustrated catalogue of seventeenth century Italian librettos (inclusive of oratorios) in the Royal Conservatory Library of Brussels has been the only libretto catalogue available in print, with exception of catalogues and lists of limited importance, such as those by Scheurleer, Bergmans, Walter, von Weilen, Carvalhaes. Since Wotquenne's catalogue, too, is arranged by title, the question arose in how far it might otherwise be followed as a model. One feature of his book is the publication of casts. Their value, of course, lies mainly in the direction of biographical data on the lives of opera singers of the seventeenth century. Commendable as is Mr. Wotquenne's idea, his task was not very irksome. Burney was, of course, mistaken if he dated the origin of the custom to print the cast in librettos about 1680, since a cast may be found at least as early as 1654 in the libretto (Lucca) of Cesti's and Bigongiari's "Alessandro il vincitor di se stesso," but generally speaking, casts were printed very seldom during the seventeenth century and they occur with anything like frequency only toward its very end. Consequently, it would have been easy and comparatively inexpensive to imitate Mr. Wotquenne in our catalogue so far as seventeenth century librettos are concerned. On the other hand, it would have been too expensive and too laborious to apply the same principle to the eighteenth century when casts became the rule. One need but turn to Wiel's volume on eighteenth century operas performed at Venice, in which conscientiously every cast is given with the indispensable index to the names in these casts at the end of the volume, to realize the labor, cost of printing, consumption of space that would have been involved by a similar scheme covering several thousand eighteenth century librettos with casts. Consequently, as there is no valid reason for discriminating against the eighteenth century in favor of the seventeenth in an otherwise uniform catalogue, no casts have been copied from the librettos, but every entry states whether the libretto contains a cast or not. No such note has been attempted for the presence of the list of characters, because there exists practically no libretto without the dramatis personae. The so-called and often ludicrous "protesta" in old Italian librettos I have disregarded as unnecessary. Maybe it was also unnecessary to note the presence of what I have called, for want of a better term, the scenario, I mean the "mutazioni," or other such indications of the scenery, but I preferred to be on the safe side in this respect, in order to make identification of a libretto through enumeration of contents as easy as possible. For this reason the arguments, prefatory notes, dedicatory remarks, and the absence or presence of the name of the author or composer have always been noted, just as was done by Mr. Wotquenne. His plan was also adopted to quote from the preliminary contents of the libretto whatever threw light on the history of the libretto, resp. the opera, on the esthetic and dramaturgic creed of either author or composer, on their technique, or on special customs of the time. Sometimes such a quotation has been limited by me to a mere repetition of statement that the opera was the second of the season, but often enough the quotations consume quite a bit of printer's ink, and in some instances the user of this catalogue is practically treated to full or partial reprints of interesting essays. On the whole, I have been inclined to liberality in the space devoted to such quotations, just as now and then, particularly in the case of "La Dafne" and "Il giocatore", my "notes" were allowed to grow into "articles." Of course, the catalogue would be complete in itself without them, but there can be no hard and fast rule as to what a catalogue should contain. This depends entirely on the subject matter, and the fact that early librettos are scarce and not accessible in many libraries, justified the inclusion of nonbibliographical matter in a form that would suggest further study of the libretto at least to the specialist.

On these grounds he might expect to find an exhaustive index to the arias contained in the librettos, something that might have been called an "Aria-Repertorium." Unquestionably, whoever has done work in early operatic history has felt handicapped by the want of such a compilation which would help to trace the migration of arias from one opera to the other, to reduce the innumerable librettos (and scores!!) of the pasticcio type into their, as it were, chemical elements and to reconstruct the opera as originally written and composed. For this Bertillon method of analysis, again Mr. Wotquenne has pointed the way by the publication of his so useful "Zeno, Metastasio and Goldoni, Alphabetisches Verzeichnis," but it would have been a rather quixotic attempt to treat five or six thousand librettos in the same manner. At the low average of twenty arias to a libretto this would have meant an "appendix" to the catalogue with more than one hundred thousand first-line ("incipit") entries. It is one thing to devote a lifetime to the compilation of such an "Aria-Repertorium," quite another to expect a public library to embark on its publication. Yet the mere recital that the Library possesses the Rome 1740 and the Parma 1745 edition of a libretto means little and conveys no definite suggestion along lines which would interest the historian, and it is he, no less than the librarian, bibliographer, collector, to whom a catalogue of librettos of early operas should appeal. His interest centers more in the textual than in the purely bibliographical differences between two librettos of the same opera. I therefore made it a point to set forth in the briefest manner possible textual distinctions between at least the original edition, if we had it, and editions used for replicas. As a rule, such an attempt to call the historian's attention to telling textual differences between replica librettos only, was not made, since the relationship between replica editions without the original edition as a basis for textual comparison will not permit of sound deductions for reconstructive or analytical purposes. Furthermore, these comparative hints, as a rule, do not go beyond the year 1780, because toward the end of the eighteenth century it came to be more and more the custom to follow the original text for replicas, excepting, of course, cuts and similar unimportant alterations that are customary and perhaps locally necessary even in present-day operatic life. No guarantee is offered that the plan outlined above has been carried out in every single case, as there is a limit to human endurance, and as a musical librarian in a great public library has other duties to perform besides preparing unconventional catalogues. This means that the absence of comparative comment in any given case does not imply textual identity. On the contrary, for the period of about 1700 to 1770 it should be taken for granted without special danger signals of mine that almost invariably replica editions show considerable differences from the original. (If the specialist requires further information, the Library of Congress will feel only too glad to furnish it promptly.)

Careful attention was paid to ballets, pantomimes, etc., mentioned in the librettos (principally Italian of the later eighteenth century) either by characteristic title or more or less fully described in a separate synopsis of plot and often with cast, argument, scenario, etc., and even separate imprint and invariably with the name of the ballet master as author who "composed" the ballet, as the then technical term was, very much less frequently with the name of the actual composer of the music. In the case of Gasparo Angiolini and others the identity of "composer" and composer often is probable, but it is never certain, unless attested to by some such phrase as

"Musica composita da." This distinction has been lost sight of occasionally by recent writers with the result that ballet-masters have sometimes but erroneously been credited with the music of ballets merely "composed" or "invented" by them. Care was taken not to add to the confusion in this catalogue and a composer of the music has not been entered unless so recorded in the libretto. But even at that, the activity of certain composers now assumes a different aspect from that in Eitner and elsewhere, and certain men like Canavasso, Le Messier, and Trento appear to have been astonishingly prolific as ballet composers, though of slight importance as opera composers. It would have been simple enough to suppress all data pertaining to ballets, pantomimes, etc., and thereby to have saved much space, but the history of this once so flourishing form of musical dramatic art is still in its infancy, and the data made accessible through this catalogue for such a history will be welcome. It is no secret that the modern dramatic ballet and pantomime, whether allegorical, symbolical, mythological, historical, realistic, and with designations running from tragic to burlesque through the whole gamut of possible shadings, are at least contemporary in their origin with opera, and that opera from the beginning borrowed from the art of dancing for the support of interest, but of course a catalogue can not very well be expected to reflect the evolution as long as the dances—be it even characteristic dances with or without relationship to the opera—continued to be incidental without titles specific enough to afford a grip on them for catalogue entry. Toward the middle of the eighteenth century, however, the ballets ceased to be incidental, or rather incidental dancing receded in favor of a juxtaposition of generally in theme not connected operas and ballets for the same evening, a kind of double-headed entertainment, often with first the act of an opera, then a ballet followed by the second act of the opera, which in turn was followed by another ballet, and so forth. In other words, the ballet was no longer considered an inferior but an equal dramatic art, since in the hands of thoughtful and imaginative ballet "composers," it had received a highly developed technique and offered esthetic and dramatic possibilities which soon a genius like Noverre was to gather into a dramaturgic system. Most of the ballets of this period until the end of the century, when the genre fast deteriorated, necessarily had characteristic and specific titles, and it is with these and these only that this catalogue deals.¹

As to the year and place of publication of undated librettos (marked in the collation for reasons of convenience, though somewhat at variance with the regular practice of the Library of Congress, n. d. (no date), n. pl. (no place), or n. i. (no imprint) if neither place nor publisher are given, and n. publ. if the name of the publisher is absent), the date and place of performance given in the title should be assumed to coincide with the actual date and place of publication. Attention of the uninitiated, however, may be called to a fine point of distinction. Many undated librettos were scheduled for the beginning of the carnival season, and since carnival in certain cities began at the end of December we often have the choice between two years for the year of publication. For instance, if an undated libretto was to have been performed at Turin during carnival of 1800, the libretto may have been published in December, 1799, or early in 1800. In every case the place and year given in the title or in the imprint should be assumed to be the place and year of first performance, unless otherwise stated in a note, and such notes, to repeat it, are generally based on Schatz. If a libretto contained a dated dedication, Mr. Schatz, unless previous performances in the same city or elsewhere were known to him, took the date of dedication to be the date of first performance. Mr. Piovano has questioned the absolute correctness of this procedure on the grounds that often the date of dedication must have preceded the actual date of performance, and I agree with him, but at any rate the date of dedication may be considered the most approximate available in absence of further information. That certain earlier librettos lead to chronological perplexities from local preference of either the Julian or the Gregorian calendar I mention here, without going into detail.

The librettos have been entered, as a rule, first by the original title, and then by the title of the replicas and translations. In every case reference is made from the alternative title (abbreviated A. T.), which often became the better known title, from the later (L. T.) and the translated title (Tr. T. or Tr.) to the original title (O. T.). Librettos of the same title by unknown composers precede those by known composers and are in turn preceded by neutral librettos. By this I mean librettos entered from the collected works, for instance, of Metastasio, with or without the name of any particular composer (usually the first to set the text) as the composer of the libretto in the version of the text in that particular edition. If, for instance, the Paris, 1780-82, edition of Metastasio works mentions in the title of each libretto the name of the original composer, it by no means follows that he used the text as then published. On the contrary, it can often easily be proven that he did not. It would therefore be methodologically incorrect to assign the text as given in that particular edition exclusively to the composer mentioned, and still more incorrect, if no composer is mentioned, to assign it to any one of several composers who are known to have set it to music. Generally speaking, therefore, the "Artaserse" text as published at Paris, 1780-82, would belong with equal right to any of the more than fifty composers who composed it, and for this reason should precede all individual "Artaserse" librettos with or without composer's name. The text of the titles, with elision of irrelevant matter, has been copied as printed in the libretto with retention of the original orthography, but without imitation of the typographical picture. In this respect there has been a certain amount of modernization which, at times, looks odd if coupled with the original orthography. In the use of capital letters, the rules of the Library of Congress have been followed, now and then for practical reasons with slight inconsistencies and generally regardless of my personal likes and dislikes in the matter. Furthermore, the remark appears necessary that the catalogue deals only with librettos which are either in the custody of the Music Division or are not in its custody for purely administrative reasons, such as the librettos in special collections like the Goethe, or miscellaneous collections like the Longe collection. The inclusion of librettos contained in the collected writings (published before 1800) of all authors who happened to write a few librettos has not been attempted, because this would have led entirely too far into literature in general, and because the idea itself from the very nature of things is altogether too pedantic for serious consideration. Exceptions to this rule were of course deemed desirable, but they have been restricted to authors like Goldoni, Quinault, Piron, Panard, whose importance for the history of libretto writing is so obvious as to have rendered their exclusion in the present state of our libretto collection just as pedantic as would have been the inclusion of many others.

For the addition of the brief-entry lists by composers and authors and of the index to arias incidentally mentioned no lengthy explanation is needed, since they obviously are necessary to complete the circle of possible inquiry. That no attempt was made to furnish year of birth and death of authors may perhaps be regretted by those who wish to consult the author list for purposes of literary bibliography. My principal reason for this omission was the knowledge that with all possible diligence the result would not have been in keeping with the labor of research involved.

Finally, a word of explanation as to the method of dealing with author and composer names. Somewhere in this catalogue the full names of authors and composers had to be given if repetition ad nauseam in the title catalogue was to be dispensed with. The proper places, it seemed to me, were the composer and author lists; and these lists should be consulted in case of doubt. In whatever form author and composer names appear in the titles themselves the rule has been not to repeat them in full in the editorial matter except to avoid confusion and to facilitate identification. If they appear elsewhere in the libretto, usually in some once current, condensed form (for instance, Ferdinando Bertoni instead of Ferdinando Giuseppe), the editorial matter of the title catalogue records them, as a rule, in full, and in some more or less generally accepted form without comment, and with disregard of harmless differences of spelling. But no display has been made of full names in the title catalogue. A person with a modicum of culture need not be told every time in a title-catalogue that Goethe is Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, and even the most punctilious adherent of uniformity and consistency will admit that Cherubini was too much of a master and still is too well known as such to be put down every time religiously as Maria Luigi Zenobio Carlo Salvatore Cherubini.

Three acts. Dedication dated Mantova, December 26, 1730, argument, cast, scenario and note: "La musica è del Signor Giuseppe Orlandini . . . e d'altri autori." Salvi is not mentioned. The differences between the text of Venice, 1729, and this ed. are considerable. For instance, "Ricordati, cor mio" (I, 7) has become "Conservati fedele" and "La tua fortuna, o bella" (I, 9) has become "Se brami mia bella." "La pietà del core augusto" has been added to I, 10, as also "Va superba, ed ostinata" to I, 15, whereas "Prendi uno sposo" has been dropped from I, 14. Scene I, 16, now consists of "Ma pur da te dipende (Rec.)—Ciel più tranquillo—Palido il Sole," including the original recitative "Quanto più sien tenaci," but excluding the original aria "Scherza in mar la navicella." It is reasonable to conjecture that the differences in the texts give a clue to the music "d'altri autori." ML 50.2.A3107

Dedication signed by the author Friedrich Wilhelm Grossmann and the composer Christian Gottlob Neefe. This is followed by prefatory remarks of Grossmann's addressed "An herrn magister Dyk" and dated September 10, 1780. To the same is addressed Neefe's preface dated "Frankfurt am Mayn, den 10. Sept. 1780." In this preface we are told:

"Ich hätte diese arbeit schon laengst geendiget, wenn mein lieber Grossmann nicht bisweilen einen anfall von traegheit bekommen und mich gehemmt hätte.—Pfui! was ich da für verleumdungen geschrieben habe!—Nicht traegheit, sondern veraenderung der umstaende, die viele andre geschaefte von ihm erheischten, setzten ihn ausser stand, an seiner oper fortzuarbeiten. Ich muss ihnen das sagen, um gewisser kritischer spione willen, die einige gesaenge darinne finden werden, die sie irgendwo schon gelesen haben, und die sich weidlich lustig machen moechten, etwas ausgespaecht zu haben, das sie berechtigte, ihn eines plagiats zu beschuldigen. Aber die herren wuerden sich nur umsonst freuen: denn eben diese gesaenge hatte er vom anfang her fuer Adelheit von Veltheim gefertigt! Umstände . . . machten es unwahrscheinlich, dass diese oper je zu stande kommen wuerde. Ich nahm daher einige gesaenge in eine fremde operette auf . . . Mein freund ging aufs neue an seine oper, und die ausgelehnten gesaenge wurden wieder eingeloest. Das Vossische lied: Bey meinem lieben topf voll Reiss u. s. w. gefiel meinem freunde Grossmann so sehr und passte so gut fuer einen seiner sklaven, dass er es fast unveraendert beybehält . . ."

Three acts and Licenza. Argument. No composer is mentioned.

This belongs to those texts which exist in different versions by Metastasio himself. Some of the telling differences are as follows:

The original version (as here represented) has in I, 8, the aria "È vero che oppresso." Its scene I, 13, begins "E nessuno sa dirmi," its scene I, 14, begins "Misera, dove fuggo?" and has the aria "Se non ti moro allato."

The later versions (as below 1755, t. I and 1780, t. I) do not have the aria in I, 8. Their I, 13, begins "Se quel folle si perde" and their I, 14, begins "Senti. Come mi lascia" and has no aria.

Albion and Albanus: an opera. Perform'd at the Queens theatre, in Dorset Garden. Written by Mr. Dryden . . .

London, J. Tonson, 1685. 6 p. l., 30 p. 28^{cm}.

Three acts. Prologue, Epilogue, description of "the frontispiece," and Dryden's extraordinary, esthetical, historical, polemical preface, with postscript. The opera was first performed at the Theatre Royal, in Dorset Garden, June 6, 1685 (Grove).

As specimens of Dryden's opinions, may be quoted from the preface:

" . . . An opera is a poetical tale, or fiction, represented by vocal and instrumental music, adorn'd with scenes, machines, and dancing. The suppos'd persons of this musical drama, are generally supernatural, as Gods and Goddesses, and Heroes, which at least are descended from them, and are in due time, to be adopted into their number.

The subject therefore being extended beyond the limits of humane nature, admits of that sort of marvellous and surprizing conduct, which is rejected in other plays. Humane impossibilities are to be receiv'd, as they are in Faith; because where Gods are introduc'd, a Supreme Power is to be understood, and second Causes are out of doors: Yet propriety is to be observ'd even here . . .

"The recitative part of the Opera requires a more masculine beauty of expression and sound: the other, which (for want of a proper English word) I must call the Songish Part, must abound in the softness and variety of numbers; its principal intention, being to please the hearing, rather than to gratifie the understanding . . . I have probable reasons, which induce me to believe, that some Italians having curiously observ'd the gallantries of the Spanish Moors at the Zumbra's, or royal feasts, where musick, songs and dancing were in perfection; together with their machines . . . may possibly have refin'd upon those Moresque divertisements, and produc'd this delightful entertainment, by leaving out the warlike part of the carousels, and forming a poetical design for the use of the machines, the songs, and dances . . .

" . . . The Italian . . . seems indeed to have been invented for the sake of poetry and musick . . . their very speaking has more of musick in it than Dutch poetry and song . . . the French, who now cast a longing eye to their country, are not less ambitious to possess their elegance in poetry and musick; in both of which they labour at impossibilities . . . The English has yet more natural disadvantages than the French; our original Teutonick consisting most in monosyllables, and those incumber'd with consonants, cannot possibly be freed from those inconveniences. The rest of our words, which are deriv'd from the Latin chiefly, and the French, with some small sprinklings of Greek, Italian and Spanish, are some relief in poetry and help us to soften our uncouth numbers; which together with our English genius, incomparably beyond the trifling of the French, in all the nobler parts of verse, will justly give us the preheminance. But, on the other hand, the efeminacy of our pronunciation, (a defect common to us, and to the Danes,) and our scarcity of female rhimes, have left the advantage of musical composition for songs, though not for recitative, to our neighbours.

"Through these difficulties, I have made a shift to struggle, in my part of the performance of this opera; which, as mean as it is, deserves at least a pardon, because it has attempted a discovery beyond any former undertaker of our nation . . . Yet I have no great reason to despair; for I may with out vanity, own some advantages, which are not common to every writer; such as are the knowledge of the Italian and French language, and the being conversant with some of their best performances in this kind; which have furnish'd me with such variety of measures, as have given the composer Monsieur [Louis] Grabut what occasions he cou'd wish, to shew his extraordinary talent . . . And let me have the liberty to add one thing; that he has so exactly express'd my sense, in all places, where I intended to move the passions, that he seems to have enter'd into my thoughts, and to have been the poet as well as the composer. This I say, not to flatter him, but to do him right; because amongst some English musicians and their scholars, (who are sure to judge after them) the imputation of being a Frenchman, is enough to make a party, who maliciously endeavour to decry him. But the knowledge of Latin and Italian poets, both which he possesses, besides his skill in musick, and his being acquainted with all the performances of the French opera's, adding to these the good sense to which he is born, having rais'd him to a degree above any man, who shall pretend to be his rival on our stage. When any of our Country-men excell him, I shall be glad, for the sake of old England, to be shewn my error; in the mean time, let vertue be commended, though in the person of a stranger . . .

"The same reasons which depress thought in an opera, have a stronger effect upon the words; especially in our language: for there is no maintaining the purity of English in short measures, where the rhyme returns so quick, and is so often female, or double rhyme, which is not natural to our tongue, because it consists too much of monosyllables, and those too, most commonly clogg'd with consonants; for which reason I am often forc'd to coin new words, revive some that are antiquated, and botch others; as if I had not serv'd out my time in poetry, but was bound 'prentice to some doggrel rhimer, who makes songs to tunes, and sings them for a livelihood. 'Tis true, I have not been often put to this drudgery; but where I have, the words will sufficiently shew, that I was then a slave to the composition, which I will never be again: 'Tis my part to invent, and the musician's to humour that invention. I may be counsell'd, and will always follow my friend's advice, where I find it reasonable; but will never part with the power of the militia . . .

"It [this opera] was originally intended only for a prologue to a play, of the nature of the Tempest; which is a tragedy mix'd with opera; or a drama written in blank verse adorn'd with scenes, machines, songs and dances: so that the fable of it is all spoken and acted by the best of the comedians; the other part of the entertainment to be perform'd by the same singers and dancers who are introduc'd in this present opera . . . But some intervening accidents having hitherto deferr'd the performance of the main design, I propos'd to the actors, to turn the intended prologue into an entertainment by itself, as you now see it, by adding two acts more to what I had already written. The subject of it is wholly allegorical . . . The descriptions of the scenes and other decorations of the stage, I had from Mr. Betterton, who has spar'd neither for industry, nor cost, to make this entertainment perfect, nor for invention of the ornaments to beautifie it . . ."

In the "Post-Script" Dryden says that though the whole preface was written before the death of Charles II., he found himself so satisfied with it even after the King's death, that he saw no reason for alterations except "for the addition of twenty or thirty lines in the Apotheosis of Albion" to "save" the piece "from a botch'd ending." He also says that by the late King's command the opera, especially the first and third acts of it, had been "practis'd before him" to his entire satisfaction with opera. He died just before the first performance. ML 50.2.A43

Lucca, Francesco Marescandoli, 1654. 177, [1] p. 13½^{cm}.

Three acts, with two prologues, author's dedication dated Lucca, Feb. 1, 1654, notice to the reader, argument, and at end (p. 170-177) source of plot, allegoria, cast, and names of the two composers. ("La musica fù per la maggior parte del Sig. Antonio Cesti . . . et il resto del Sig. Marco Bigongiari . . .") The one additional page contains a sonnet by Dalli to Sbarra. The one prologue is that "recitato in Venetia," 1651, with Cavalli's music, the other that "rappresentato in Lucca." The author's notice to the reader is in substance similar to that in the Venice, 1651, ed. of the text (see infra), but special emphasis is laid on the fact that the original version "precipitato dalla mia penna, si portò à Venetia per le poste, ove per accomodarsi alla brevità, che in simili funzioni si desidera, fù ridotto in forma molto minore di quella, che portò dalla sua nascita, ricoperto in gran parte questo difetto dalla magnificenza delle scene, e machine, dalla vaghezza, e bizzarria delle comparse, e de balli, e sopra tutto dall' eccellenza della musica, e dall' esquisitezza de gl' attori; hoggi però che s'espoune sopra il nostro teatro non potendo farsi vedere con quegl' addobbi, de i quali fù arricchito in Venetia, comparisce se non vago, almeno intero, e con tutte le sue parti . . ."

The differences between the two editions are quite noticeable. For instance, I, 9 of the Venice ed., "Più celar non si può," is I, 11 in the Lucca ed.; I, 9 of the Lucca ed., "Alessandro, che pensi," is I, 10 in the Venice ed.; I, 14 in the Lucca ed., "Ohimè, dov'è," is I, 12 in the Venice ed.

Three acts. Dedication by Pietro Mingotti, argument, cast, scenario, and name of Franz Joseph Pirker as the translator of the German text, which faces the Italian. Neither the author, Metastasio, nor the composer, Johann Adolph Hasse, is mentioned. The text is somewhat different from that in the original Venice edition of 1736. For instance, I, 5 has now the aria "Scherza il nocchier tal' ora" instead of "O su gli estivi ardori," and the scene, I, 12, "Non condannarmi, amico," has become I, 9. SCHATZ 4509

n. i., n. d. 1 p. l., 67 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts. Argument, cast, scenario, and name of Joh. Ad. Hasse as the composer. The text is somewhat different from the Dresden ed of 1741 and the Venice ed. of 1736. For instance, their aria at end of I, 2, "Vedrai con tuo periglio," has been dropped, and their aria, "Vil trofeo d'un' alma imbelle," in I, 3, has become "Vadan li rei felloni." In this Venice, 1743 ed., the original aria, "O su gli estivi ardori," for I, 5, has been restituted, as also the scene "Non condannarmi, amico," as I, 12. Indeed, the Venice, 1743, ed., as might be expected, is more like the Venice, 1736, ed. than like the Dresden, 1741, ed. SCHATZ 4593

Venetia, Giacomo Batti, 1651. 11 p. l., 72 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts, with prologue. Dedication dated Venice, January 20, 1651, a "Lettera dell' autore al Signor Michel' Angelo Torcigliani" dated Lucca, December 29, 1650, and argument.

In his "Lettera" Sbarra says:

"Il Padre Cesti, miracolo della musica, con altri virtuosi rappresentò nel passato autunno un gentilissimo dramma nella città nostra; io se bene all' hora relegato in letto da una lunga, e pericolosa indisposizione, a dispetto del male, che voleva trà l'altre miserie, che seco adduce, privarmi ancora della vista di questa virtuosa attione, mi portai a vederla: il gusto, ch'io ne retrassi, fù riconosciuto da me per l'unico mio rimedio . . . Per sodisfare all' istanze di questi virtuosi, da' quali riconosceva la recuperata salute, intrapresi, e ultimai un dramma, in quei pochi giorni, che d'otio mi concesse la mia convalescenza, tempo maggiore, e più opportuno non venendomi permesso dalla necessità, che tenevano di rappresentarlo prontamente in Venetia. I parti, che sono concepiti in stato simile di non intera sanità, sono sèpre imperfetti: ma questi è più d'ogni altro, non havendo havuto ben minimo tempo di rivederlo, necessitato dall' angustia del tempo a lasciarlo metter sotto le note nella stessa forma, che alla giornata l'andava abbozzâdo. S'aggiunge, che per esser riuscito troppo lungo per la musica, è convenuto a i medesimi d'accorciarlo, si che è impossibile, che qualche storpiatura non apparisca, & in questa maniera mi avviano, che sono necessitati à stamparlo . . ."

He further calls this "quest'opera, prima che si stampi, che in questa conformità scrivo." In his notice to the "spettatori del dramma" Sbarra remarks:

"Sò che l'ariette cantate da Alessandro, & Aristotile, si stimeràno còtro il decoro di personaggi si grãdi; ma sò ancora, ch'è in proprio il recitarsi in musica, non imitandosi in questa maniera il discorso naturale, e togliendosi l'anima al cõponimèto drãmatico, che nõ deve esser altro, che un' imitatione dell' attioni humane, e pur questo difetto non solo è tolerato dal secolo corrente; ma ricevuto con applauso; questa specie di poesia hoggi non hà altro fine che il dilettere, onde conviene accommodarsi all' uso de' i tempi; se lo stile recitativo non venisse intermezzato con simili scherzi, porterebbe più fastidio, che diletto . . . se in questo spettacolo ritroverai con che appagare il tuo gusto, il tutto riconosci dall' esquisitissime inventioni del mirabile Sig. Gio. Battista Balbi, autore non meno de' balli, e delle machine, che d'ogni altro scenico apparato."

It will be noticed that the composer, in this case no less a master than Francesco Cavalli, is mentioned nowhere.

London, T. Cadell and T. Becket [etc.], 1773. 4 p. l., 72, [2] p. 19½^{cm}.

Three acts and "Prologue, by a friend. Spoken by Mr. Garrick, when it was first acted." Cast, argument, and this prefatory note:

"Alfred, a masque, was written by Mr. [James] Thompson, in conjunction with Mr. [David] Mallet, at the request of his Royal Highness Frederick Prince of Wales,

before their Royal Highnesses, on the first of August, 1740. Ten years after it was adapted for the stage by Mr. Mallet and was received with great applause. Mr. Mallet, in his advertisement (after giving an account of his joining with Mr. Thompson in the performance) goes on—

“But to fit it for the stage, I found it would be necessary to new plan the whole, as well as write the particular scenes over again; to enlarge the design, and make Alfred what he should have been at first, the principal figure in his own masque. This I have done; but, according to the present arrangement of the fable, I was obliged to reject a great deal of what I had written in the other, neither could I retain of my friend’s part, more than three or four single speeches, and a part of one song, I mention this expressly, that whatever faults are found in the present performance, they may be charged, as they ought to be, entirely to my account.

“D. Mallet.”

The note then goes on to say:

“It is now revived with some few alterations, and with some new music; the favourite airs of Dr. Arne, as they stood in the masque altered by Mallet, are reserved; there are some few alterations, which are now published.”

David Garrick is supposed to have been responsible for this second revision. The last [2] p. contain “When Britain first, at heav’n’s command,” with first refrain line “Rule, Britannia, rule the waves” and headed by note: “The following song was altered by the author, and is now printed as it is sung.”

First performed at Cliefden, August 1, 1740; at Dublin, Theatre Royal in Smock Alley, March 10, 1744; at London, Drury Lane, March 20, 1745, in an altered version and further altered at London, Drury Lane, February 23, 1751. The above version was first performed, as indicated, October 9, 1773. LONGE 36

Three acts. By Pietro d'Averara, who is not mentioned. Dedication dated Venice, November 30, 1684, argument, scenario, and notice to the reader:

" . . . per adattarmi all' uso di questo paese [the text was based on 'un' historietta, scritta in francese'], (nel quale li signori musici vogliono havere più canzoni, che parole, e dove à chi scrive viene prescritta, non solo la quantità mà anco la qualità de' personaggi), hò convenuto alterare l'inventione, l'intreccio, e quasi tutti gl' episodii; e perciò, se vi trovi qualche cosa d'aggradevole, (che pur sarà puoco) è d'altri: tutto l'imperfetto è mio. E questo basti, perche tu sappia, ch'io non vado à caccia di lode. Se però sarò compatito, l'havrò à caro. Quanto al verso havrei forse potuto tenerlo più sollevato, mà anche in questo mi son accomodato al genio universale, & al soggetto, ch'è più tosto comico. Vivi felice.

Three acts. Scenario, argument, dedication by the author, Giovanni Pietro Caudi, and his notice to the reader, in which he says:

"Comparisce novello quest' anno il mio nome sù i Veneti teatri. Questo drama, già diversi anno, a solo motivo di divertimento da me composto, è stato lavorato sul serio, & sopra il gusto della tragedia. Ora non sò come habbia havuto la sorte di doversi esser rappresentato in questo teatro; nel quale non ricercandosi tanta gravità, e richiedendo più tosto lusinga d'orecchio col gaio di qualche scena comica, & col brio delle ariete, che solletico al cuore con la mozione degli affetti; sono stato costretto ad accomodarmi à questa necessità, & à toglierli molto di quel grave, e patetico, che il tragico accompagna, levando, aggiungendo molte cose, & situando delle ariete in loco non totalmente proprio, & fuori del loro nicchio . . . Restano pure levate molte apparenze all quali non può accomodarsi la ristrezza della scena . . . Rimane solo, che la tua bell' anima . . . tolleri con generosità anco le mie imperfezioni; l' vantaggio delle quali sarà il non comparire così diformi, perche mascherate, & abbellite dalle virtuose, e spiritose note del Sig. maestro il Sig. cavalier Vinacese, come pure dalla singolare abilità de virtuosi soggetti, che lo rappresentano.

"Protestando il sig. maestro medesimo haver intrapresa la composizione musicale di questo drama à solo motivo d'obbedire ad' un comando de cavalieri à quali non ha potuto negarlo, mentre era fuori d'ogni sua intenzione il far più musche per drammi; esprimendosi in oltre d' aver in molte arie secondato più il gusto commune, che il proprio genio."

Paris, Vente, 1772. 52 p. 18½cm.

Cast. On p. 46-52 the music of the "Airs" "Je suis de vous très mécontente" and "Ah! dans ces fêtes." The full score gives the first Parisian performance correctly as on May 14, 1772. So does evidently a libretto printed by Vente, 1772, as reprinted by Wotquenne in Grétry's Oeuvres. The odd feature is that our libretto, too, was printed by Vente in 1772.

Carlo Goldoni, Opere teatrali, Venezia, Zatta e figli, 1788-95, v. 35, [141]-157 p. 18½^{cm}. PQ

In his "Verzeichnis" Wotquenne dates this 1731. As a matter of fact, intermezzi of this title were performed at Naples, Teatro di S. Bartolomeo, winter 1731 with Pergolesi's "La Salustia." According to Radiciotti there is in the libretto at end of the first intermezzo the remark "Tutto il recitativo di quest' intermezzo è di Domenico Carcajus." Goldoni does not seem to be mentioned; at least Radiciotti is silent on his authorship. The music is attributed by him and Schatz to Per- golesi, whose score has not been located. Radiciotti gives in the second part of his book an outline of the plot mentioning as characters Nerina and Nibbio. Neither plot nor characters are those of the intermezzi in Goldoni's Opere teatrali, which fact complicates matters! Goldoni's characters are "Livietta," "Cardone suo amante" and "Mingone servo che non parla." One is instantly reminded, upon reading the text, of Mariani's "Livietta e Tracollo," composed by Pergolesi and first performed at the same theatre on October 25, 1734. Indeed, both librettos contain the arias "Vi sto ben? Vi comparisco" and "Non si move, non rifiata." Here, then, is a puzzle, which does not as yet seem to have aroused the attention of biographers and opera-historians. If the text published in Goldoni's works really dates from 1731, the natural explanation would be that Mariani in 1734 incorporated Pergolesi's two arias of 1731 in "Livietta e Tracollo." And yet how is it possible that Pergolesi composed in 1731 this "Amor fa l'uomo cieco" text, if it does not agree with the text which, according to Radiciotti, is that of the libretto printed in 1731? Yet these two texts appear to have at least one aria in common: "La carrozza ci sarà," and this aria was listed in Breitkopf's catalogue of 1770.

It will simplify further research, if the arias in Goldoni's text follow here:

(Int. I)—

Vi stò ben? Vi comparisco?

Per pietà, ch'è mai m'insegna.

La carrozza ci sarà.

Gioja mia, devo partire.

Parto dunque, o mia diletta (duet).

(Int. II)—

Quanto mi vien da ridere.

Non si move, non rifiata.

Oh che sorte, oh che piacere (duet).

Amphitryon: or, the two Sosia's. A comedy. As it is acted at the Theatre Royal. Written by Mr. Dryden. To which is added, the musick of the songs. Compos'd by Mr. Henry Purcell.

London, J. Tonson and M. Tonson, 1691. 4 p. l., 57, [3] p. 21½^{cm}.

— The songs in Amphitryon. The musick. Composed by Mr. Henry Purcell.

London, Jacob Tonson, 1690. 1 p. l., 13 p. 21½^{cm}.

The comedy was advertised early in November 1690 as published. The first edition had in the title the misprint "Socia's" instead of "Sosia's." Our copy of the text belongs to the corrected, second edition, in which the misprint has disappeared from the title page, but was retained in the caption title on p. 1. This second edition, as follows from Dryden's "epistle dedicatory" to Sir William Levison Gower, Bar, of date October 24, 1690, must have been printed after the "third day," which fixes the date of performance approximately.

First edition of the music (voice and partly figured bass) including "Celia, that I once was blest," "For Iris I sigh," "Fair Iris and her swain" (dialogue) and chorus "Thus at the height we love."

Five acts, prologue and epilogue, followed by a catalogue of John Dryden's works. Cast and Dryden's dedication dated October 24, 1690, in which he acknowledges his indebtedness to Plautus and Molière and says:

"But what has been wanting on my part, has been abundantly supplied by the excellent composition of Mr. Purcell, in whose person we have at length found an English-man, equal with the best abroad. At least my opinion of him has been such, since his happy and judicious performances in the late opera; and the experience I have had of him, in the setting my three songs for this Amphitryon: To all which, and particularly to the composition of the Pastoral dialogue, the numerous quire of fair ladies gave so just an applause on the third day . . ."

— Amphitryon: or, The two Sosias. A comedy, alter'd from Dryden. As it is perform'd at the Theatre-Royal in Drury-Lane. With a new interlude of music, an occasional prologue, and some account of the alterations.

London, Printed and sold by J. Payne, 1756. 4 p. l., 56 p. 29½^{cm}.

Five acts. Cast. In his preface, John Hawkesworth (not mentioned) gives as his main reason for the alterations "the profaneness and immodesty" of the original which would have made its revival impossible. He has dropped all the songs which gave Purcell his inning. Consequently Purcell's music can not have been used in this revival. All the music has been relegated to the end of the fourth act and consists of Mercury's song "Away with the fables philosophers hold," a song by a nymph "in the character of wit" and a duet by the two. The composer of this is not mentioned.

Venetia, Antonio Bariletti, 1637. 70, [2] p. 13½^{cm}.

Three acts. Publisher's dedication dated Venice, May 6, 1637, sonnet by Alfonso Pucinelli "all' autore, poeta, musico, e sonator di tiorba eccellissimo," sonnets by Bartolameo Angarani and Gio. Francesco Busenello to the author, on p. 5-12 a very interesting preface by the publisher with name of Francesco Manelli as composer and describing in detail the scenes, costumes, machines, etc., giving the names of the singers. Following the text of the opera on p. 61-68 "Sonetti del Signor Benedetto Ferrari in lode de signori musici più celebri, ch' intervennero nell' Andromeda," a sonnet by Carlo Federici to Ferrari, one by Donato Milcetti, "per l'Andromeda," latin ode by Bartolameo Angarani to Ferrari, and on last page the errata. From the publisher's preface and from the sonnets it appears that Annibale Graselli da Città di Castello represented Mercurio, Persco and Ascalà, Francesco Angeletti da Assisi represented Giunone, Giovanni Battista Bisucci Bolognese represented Protheo and Giove, Anselmo Marconi Romano represented Venere, Madelena Manelli Romana represented Andromeda and Francesco Manelli da Tivoli, the composer, Nettuno and Astarco Mago and Girolamo Medici Romano represented Astrea. Enthusiastic praise is also bestowed on Gio. Battista Balbi Venetiano, ballarino celebre, and on Ferrari's several tiorba accompaniments. From the dedication the date of performance may be fixed since Bariletti says:

"Andromeda che su le scene rinacque già son due mesi; su le glorie de' suoi natali, esce ad acrescersi negl' applausi dell' universo." SCHATZ 5887

Three acts. Third version of this opera. Neither Feind is mentioned nor Keiser. The Italian text is added to many of the arias. The text is somewhat different from the 1716 version. For instance, I, 1, now begins "Lungi da me vagha beltà—Schoenheit entferne dich von mir" instead of "Liebste freyheit, du allein," I, 1-1, 5 are the same, also dialogue of I, 6, but the aria "Unsre liebe bleibt bestaendig" has become "Mio tesoro. Mio diletto—Mein Schatz! Mein ergoetzen," the seventh scene now begins "Quanto è dolce, quanto piace—Wie angenehm und vergnuengt ist es" instead of "Amor, te'l giorno a fè—O Liebe! ich schwore dir," etc., etc. SCHATZ 5119

Paris, Claude Herissant, 1764. [vi], [2], 56 p. 20^{cm}.

Page 1 is preceded by two pages (numbered 75, 58) with list of Sedaine's works, the contents of the "Théâtre de la Foire & des Boulevards," etc. Cast and "avertissement," in which Sedaine says:

"Le 5 mars 1761 on a donné à l'Opera Comique de la Foire S. Germain, une pièce intitulée: les Bons pères, ou Les bons amis, qui, comme dit le Dictionnaire des Théâtres, n'eut pas de succès. L'auteur de la musique qui m'honore de son amitié [Jean Benjamin de La Borde], me pria de vouloir y faire des changemens, je les fis du jour au lendemain. Je retranchai les scènes, & j'en fis des neuves pour joindre les scènes divisées, mais tous mes efforts ne purent retarder la chute de la pièce: la musique cependant avoit fait plaisir, & sur-tout une des ariettes. Séduit par elle, je me mis en tête de mettre cette pièce en état d'être rejouée . . . il s'est trouvé à la fin que j'avois fait une maison neuve: cela a obligé le musicien de faire toute musique nouvelle, à l'exception d'un morceau qui, par le plus grand hazard, s'est rencontré ajusté sur mes paroles, & de cette ariette en question que j'a vois parodiée. Mais le musicien a exigé de moi que je laissasse les anciennes paroles; & de fait elles sont plus conformes à la musique qui avoit été faite pour elles. Je les ai donc conservées, du consentement du propriétaire de l'ancienne pièce" . . .

He then points out some differences between the new and the old piece, and says that he used two verses by La Fontaine. SCHATZ 5350

Annette et Lubin, comédie en un acte en vers; mêlée d'ariettes & de vaudevilles. Par Madame Favart & Mr. * * *. Représentée pour la première fois par les Comédiens italiens ordinaires du roi, le 15 février 1762.

Paris, Duchesne, 1763. 78, [2] p. 19^{cm}. (Theatre de M. Favart, Paris, Duchesne, 1763-77, t. v.)

One act. Cast. At the time of its appearance the play was attributed to Voisenon, but Font argues that he had nothing to do with it, and that the text was written by Mad. Favart in collaboration with her husband and Lourdet de Santerre for the wedding festivities of M. de Mailly and M^{lle} de Périgord. It was first privately performed in January, 1762, according to Favart's Corresp. Font incorrectly attributes the music to Martini, but the music was arranged and partly composed by Blaise. Many of his ariettes appear printed in the text (the duo "Lorsqu' Annette est avec Lubin" expressly bears his name), whereas no vaudeville air is so printed. "Mes trois femmes étoient veuves" was to be sung to "Air: de M. Sodi." ML 49.A2F1

Bologna, Clemente Ferroni, 1628. 51 p. 19^{cm}.

Five acts, preceded by a dedicatory "Canzone" by the author and his dedication, dated Bologna, June 2, 1628. Mariscotti says that the Accademia de' Gelati wished to honor the cardinal after his return to Rome from a successful diplomatic mission in France and Spain and decided for the purpose on

"qualche azzione academica, appropriata, quanto per noi si potesse il meglio, all' occorrenza, con machinare invenzione vistosa per varietà confacevole per argomento, e significante per allegoria. Fu lavorato di scrittura, e di pittura, e già erano imparate le musiche, e dato l'infiero compimento alla scena, e all'apparenze. Ma dipoi al mancar della cagione, venne à mancar l'effetto; non ci fù la persona, svani l'azione, rimase l'invenzione . . ."

Placed in this embarrassing situation the Academy finally decided not to perform the work in the cardinal's absence, but to have at least the text printed. The composer of the music is not mentioned. The work is not recorded by Ricci.

Apollo deluso, drama per musica rappresentato nel giorno natale dell' augustissimo e sempre invitto Leopoldo . . . Musica di Gio. Felice Sances . . . Poesia di Antonio Draghi . . .

Vienna, Matteo Cosmerovio, 1669. Unpaged. 19½^{cm}.

Three acts and licenza. Author's dedication of date Vienna, July 9, 1669, argument, and notice to the reader informing him that this drama

"nel suo nascimento egli non hebbe più d'una settimana per comparire alla luce . . . Sono concorsi à coprire la sua nudità con adobbi preziosi, il Signor Felice Sances, maestro di capella di S. Maestà Ces: quale con la soavità della sua armonia hà reso con mirabile artificio dolce l'amarezza del verso."

Not a single hint will be found in the libretto that Leopold I composed part or all of the score. This is the more noteworthy, because, according to Adler, the title page of the second act of the score at the Hofbibliothek, Vienna, reads: "Atto 2^o Apollo deluso. Musica di Sua M^a Ces^a Anno 1669" and the binding of the first act says "Di S. M. C." (this, however, probably meaning "property of" not "by"). In view of this libretto, however, it would be unsafe to agree with Adler that "probably the music of all three acts with exception of the licenza" is by Leopold I. Presumably the libretto was published with Sances' name as composer, though Leopold I, as he often did, had contributed more or less music to the score of his court conductor. Adler published in his "Musikalische Werke der Kaiser" as by Leopold I the arias "Aurimena, la tua pena" (II, 10), Recitativ "In oscura prigion" and aria "Pensieri non v'atterrite" (II, 11), "Se non basta" (II, 11), and "Sù, che fate" (II, 11).

Leipzig, Dyckische buchhandlung, 1772. xv, [1], 96 p. 17^{cm}.

Preface addressed to J. F. Bause by the author [Johann Jakob Engel] and dated Leipzig, November 10, 1771. The preface is interesting as containing Engel's views of the esthetics of the "Possenspiel." On p. vii, this shrewd remark:

"Ich denke uebrigens, man wuerde gut thun, wenn man aus allen possenspielen operetten machte. Unser publikum sieht diese possen gerne, und moechte doch gerne das ansehen haben, als wenn es sie verachtete; es lacht von herzen ueber die Goldonischen stuecke, und zuckt die achseln darueber, wenn sie aus sind."

On p. vi, this remark on the origin of this libretto:

"Ein tonkuenstler [Hiller] . . . bat mich um eine oper, worinn nicht der naive ton, sondern zur abwechslung der eigentlich komische herrschte . . . Mein freund wurde krank, und konnte lange zeit an keine komposition denken. — L'Argia. Drama per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro a San Salvatore l'anno 1669 . . .

Venetia, Francesco Nicolini, 1669. front., 81 p. 14^{cm}.

Three acts, without prologue. By Apollonio Apolloni, with considerable alterations of the original libretto, as acknowledged in the notice to the reader:

"Quest' opera hà fatto stupire di se stessa le scene più famose, & hora si conduce a farsi freggio del tuo eroico compiacimento. Vi doverai ammirare la virtù di due penne famose; una nella parte poetica, l'altra nell' armonica. Basta che io ti dinoti esser ella figlia di quei genitori de' quali applandesti alla Dori [text by Apolloni, music by Cesti]. Vi sentirai alcune ariette udite in altra occasione: mà perche sià noto, che furon prese da questo drama vi si hanno lasciate sì per essere di pochissimo numero, come anco di singolare esquisitezza. E stato ancora abbreviato, e fattavi qualche alteratione, à solo oggetto d'accomodarsi alla brevità, & alle congiunture delle parti . . ."

Accordingly, for instance, the aria, "Vendetta, vendetta" (I, 15), was replaced by "Amori fuggite" (I, 16, of the Venice ed.), the aria, "Ecco Alceo guerrier novello" (II, 5), by "Io pensavo innamorarmi" (II, 5); and the original final scene (III, 18), the quartet, "Alle gioie, a i diletti," was dropped. On the whole, the alterations were numerous, but not radical. The notice to the reader is followed by the argument and the scenario. It is preceded by the publisher's dedication, dated Venice, January 13, 1669.

Venetia, Gio. Pietro Pinelli, 1649. 96 p. 14^{cm}.

Three acts and prologue. G. B. Fusconi's dedication is dated Venice, December, 1645 [!]. Argument, cast, and important notice to the reader giving the odd history of the libretto, which according to Schatz was written by Pietro Michieli and Gio. Battista Fusconi. The notice reads:

"L'orditura di questa favola venne a preghiere d'amici più tosto precipitata, che tessuta in quatordecim sere dalla penna di quel famosissimo Cigno dell' Adria, che mantiene al nostro secolo in vita la poesia italiana: poiche essendo egli allhora di partenza, e in aspettazione della discretione de' venti, che gli aprissero la strada per un lungo viaggio maritimo non potè applicarvisi, che a momenti rubati al sonno. Partitosi adunque nell sconciatura di quest' opera, me la lasciò con amplissima licenza . . . Operai per tanto quello che seppi, e che potei rimettendola insieme nella fretta, che mi facevano gl' Interessati, che volevano recitarlo. Ma delusi da vari accidenti di fortuna che ne impedì la recita i loro desiderii, si compiacque l'inventore dell' opera di rivederla, e di rimutarla; perche a me ancora tocasse questo secondo fastidio, e mi reusci la facenda in guisa, che non vi resto quasi più vestigio alcuno dell' effigie datale dal primo schizzo. Con qual mio rammarico l'altri l'imagini mentre mi convenne ritoccar con rozzo pennello le linee eccellentissime d'un Apelle . . . Spero nondimeno che la diversità pur troppo apparente dello stile verrà resa uniforme dalla musica impareggiabile (ancorche diversa) delli Signori Gio. Rovetta, & Alessandro Leardini, precipi de musici moderni, e che l'eccellenza delle più famose voci del secolo coprirà i mancamenti della mia penna . . ."

Accordingly this is merely G. B. Fusconi's advance notice, and though Schatz, etc., actually enter "Argiope" under the two composers mentioned, the libretto itself would seem to furnish evidence that their setting, if at all composed, was not performed, and that an explanation of the remarkable discrepancy between the date of performance (1649) on the title page and the date of the dedication (1645) may be found in this notice, which follows the end of the text on p. 96:

"A chi haverà letto. Gli errori, che avvengono nella stampa, sono figli d'una madre, che pur troppo ne sà esser feconda. Perciò nel medesimo tempo, che quegli doveano venire da te emendati saranno stati ancora compatiti. Gli accidenti, che mutano l'essere alle cose in un istante, havendo privato della seconda gloria il nostro dramma, la quale sarebbe stata la musica del Sig. Rovetta, unita a quella del Sig. Leardini, ti lasceranno godere dell' armonia d'un solo Orfeo, mentre io te ne haveva apparecchiata quella di due."

Monteverdi, the composer, is not mentioned.

Wotquenne claims that the original edition was published at Florence in 1606. This is evidently a misprint for 1608, when Giunti, of Florence, published Rinuccini's text. The Brussels catalogue lists neither this edition nor ours, but one published at Venice in the same year. Schatz claims our edition to be the original. This opera (of which the music is lost, except the famous Lamento) was first performed, as indicated, on May 28, 1608.

L'Arianna—Continued.

— L'Arianna del Sig. Ottavio Rinuccini. Posta in musica dal Sig. Claudio Monteverdi. [!] Rappresentata in Venetia l'anno 1640. Al molto illustre Signore il Sig. Bortolo Stacio.

Venetia, Bariletti, 1640. 64 p. 13½^{cm}.

This is apparently the text as used in the winter of 1639 at Venice for the opening of the Teatro di San Moisè. On p. 5 Antonio Bariletti says in his dedication:

“. . . Hora dunque che l'Arianna, componimento, che fra' Drammatici ha riportati i primi vanti da' theatri italiani, ritorna à veder le scene in Venetia, per opra del Signor Claudio Monte Verdi [!] celebratissimo Apollo del secolo, e prima intelligenza del cielo armonico, prendo occasione di non tenerle i miei più lungamente celati; ma con offerirla al nome di V. S. di manifestargli al mondo per mezzo della sua nuova ristampa . . .”

This dedication is followed, on p. 8-9, by the “Sonetto del Signor Benedetto Ferrari dalla Tiorba: al Sig. Claudio Monteverdi oracolo della musica.”

Since the dedication begins on p. 5, since the verso of the title-page is blank and unnumbered, and since the signatures A3-A6 are in twos, it is clear that either p. 3-4 are missing or that the title-page was intended as p. 3, and was preceded, perhaps, by a frontispiece.

A line-by-line comparison of the Venice (1640) and the Mantova (1608) edition reveals exceedingly few differences. The verbal differences are indeed entirely negligible, except, perhaps, in Apollo's opening address, where, in the third stanza—

“Di strali armato, e non di face, o d'arco

has become—

“Di pace armato, e non di strali, o d'arco
A te, c'hai sovra l'acque scettro, e regno.”

Also, the “Odi Carlo immortal” has now become “Odi Duce immortal.” It is further noticeable that in the 1640 version “Uno del C.” [oro] was often employed instead of the chorus, so that, for instance, the last three lines of the chorus, “Miseri peregrin quietar nõ ponno,” were now sung only by “uno del c.”

The Venetian version, finally, is, toward the end, slightly condensed, as on p. 42 the chorus lines, “Bell'è il tacer,” etc. and on p. 62 (Amore) the lines “Soave e dolce nome,” etc., before Arianna's “Gioite al gioir mio,” and her lines, “Felice il martir mio,” before the chorus, have been dropped. The repeated spelling of the name as Monteverdi, not Monteverde, is interesting, since it strengthens Emil Vogel's contention, based on the composer's manuscripts, that his name was Monteverdi, and not Monteverde, as many Italian and other writers still insist on spelling it.

Armida. Azione teatrale per musica. [vignette.]Vienna, Ghelen, 1760. Unpaged. Vignettes. 22½^{cm}.

One act. Avvertimento that this is a modified Italian version of Quinault's "Armide," and the author resp. translator's Giannambrogio Migliavacca's dedication to conte Giacomo Durazzo, "supremo direttore della musica delle Maestà Loro I. I. R. R.," in which he says:

"A Parigi vi nacque la voglia d'imitare in versi toscani, e di far eseguire con musica italiana l'Armida di Quinault. Ritornato in seno dell' inclita vostra patria, ne cominciate, fra le delizie di Pegli, voi medesimo il lavoro, in compagnia d'illustre amico . . . Portatovi in appresso a questa Augustissima Corte, vi degnaste eccitarmi a proseguire, ed a condurre l'opera al suo termine, e se nel restarmene il desiderio, non mi fosse allora il tempo mancato di secondare i vostri impulsi, avrei, mercè vostra, io forse avuto il vantaggio, di essere il primo a produrre fra noi codesta nuova specie di spettacolo, come a voi la gloria non può negarsi, d'essere stato il primo a procurarlo. Finalmente, dopo tanti anni, voi avete costantemente voluto, che la sorte di mettere al giorno la da voi ideata imitazione, fosse a me riservata . . . acciò lo stile riuscisse tutto uniforme, voi, con generosità senza pari, non vi siete primieramente curato, di sacrificare la stessa egregia fatica, già da voi fatta, e di permettermi, che ad ordir la mia io incominciassi da capo . . . essendo destinata quest' opera a festeggiare il giorno natalizio di S. A. R. la serenissima arciduchessa sposa, principessa di Parma, sole poche settimane appena avanti tal giorno, per l'angustia del tempo, è convenuto, di mano in mano, che andavo scrivendo la poesia, passarla al compositore della musica, il che fu poi causa, che della già seguita edizione di questo libro io non rimanessi soddisfatto intieramente. Colla presente più corretta ristampa," etc., etc.

This seems to be the libretto for Tommaso Traetta's "Armida," first performed at Vienna, Saturday, January 3, 1761. SCHATZ 11382

Armida. Azione teatrale da rappresentarsi nel Teatro Vendramin di S. Salvatore nell' occasione della fiera dell' Ascensione dell' anno 1767 . . .Venezia, Modesto Fenzo, 1767. xlviii p.

One act. Unsigned dedicatory poem by the author, Giannambrogio Migliavacca, argument, cast, and name of Tommaso Traetta as composer, but not of librettist, who professes to have based his "Armida" on Quinault's Armide, though in the Italian taste. Of the music it is said "sarà tutta nuova;" consequently the identity with Traetta's "Armida," first performed at Vienna, Jan. 3, 1761, becomes doubtful.

First performed at Venice May 27, 1767.

— Armida. Opera musicale tradotta dal francese, senza mutar le note del famoso Gio. Battista Lulli.

Roma, Angelo Bernabò, 1690. 4 p. l., 87 p. 16^{cm}.

Five acts and prologue. In a prefatory note the unknown translator first apologizes for having, as a Frenchman, made this translation into Italian:

“Cantar in questa lingua alcune arie dell' opere francesi, è stato caso fortuito, e bizzarria d'un amatore della musica e della lingua italiana. La vaghezza del componimento musicale gli ha fatto poi tentare di tradurre opere intiere: ed ora il farne cantare, e stampare una in Roma, è stato atto di compiacenza per questi signori Francesi. La musica è parto d'un gran soggetto, nato in Italia, mà allevato da giovanne in Parigi, ed è il famoso Giovanni Battista Lulli, ornamento di Toscana, e ristoratore dell' armonia in Francia . . .”

He then interestingly dwells on the great difficulties of making exact metric translations from French into Italian and concludes by saying:

First performed at Rome, Teatro di Tor di Nona, 1690.

Three acts and licenza. Argument and scenario. German title page "Arminio . . . Dresden, gedruckt . . . bey der verw. . . . Stoesselin, 1745" and text face Italian. Mennicke calls this Hasse's second version of "Arminio," though he correctly gives Salvi as the author of the one text and Pasquini of the other. As a matter of fact the two texts have nothing in common except the subject, and consequently the two operas "Arminio" are two different operas, not the one an altered version of the other.

Arminio. Dramma per musica, da rappresentarsi sopra il Teatro di S. M. B.

London, G. Woodfall, 1760. 57, [1] p. 19½^{cm}.

Three acts. Argument, cast, and note, "La musica è di varj autori." English translation faces Italian. The last (unnumb.) p. contains the aria, "Care luci, che regnate," substituted for "Se al labbro mio" (II, 3). Burney (IV, 472) says: "All the airs in Arminio that Mattei sung, were composed by Perez." This would apply to "Il fuggir, cara mia vita" (I, 1), "Ah, padre adorato" (I, 2), "Fuggi dagli occhj miei" (I, 5), "Nel pensar al gran cimento" (I, 6), "Padre, tiranno, barbaro" (II, 2), "Caro sposo, amata speme" (II, 5), "Ah non più gelar mi sento" (III, 4). In Walsh's "Favourite songs," however, I, 1, and II, 5, are printed without Perez' names, whereas "Se l'amor tuo" (III, 4), not sung by Mattei, but by Cornacchini, is there attributed to Perez. The text is by Antonio Salvi, with interpolations from Metastasio.

First performed at London, Hay-Market, March, 1760.

Three acts. By Antonio Salvi, who is not mentioned. Dedication, cast, scenario, name of Alessandro Scarlatti as composer, and notice to the reader, in which the alterations in Salvi's text are acknowledged in this manner:

"Se poi colla licenza, che dal moderno uso si permette a chi di nuovo fà comparire in teatro opere altre volte recitate, si è mutato, o scemato in qualche parte per comodo della musica, o per la brevità tanto in oggi desiderata, ciò si è procurato di fare in guisa tale, che non resta alterata parte alcuna essenziale del drama; onde sicome non potrà alcuno dolersi di non ritrovarvi tutta l'antica sua bellezza, così si spera, che l'istesso riverito autore sia per condonare le piccole accidentali variazioni, che per la detta necessità vi si sono indotte."

Napoli, Michele Luigi Muzio, 1718. 64 p. 16^{cm}.

Three acts. A later version of Salvi's "Amore e maestà o sia L'Arsace." Impresario's dedication, dated Naples, December 10, 1718, scenario, cast, name of Domenico Sarro as the composer and notice to the reader which reads in part:

"Questo soggetto è lo stesso, che già espose su le scene di Francia il famoso Tomaso Cornelio, sotto il nome del Conte di Essex; ma dovendo questo servire alla musica, ed al Teatro italiano, si è cambiata la scena in Persia . . . conservando però i caratteri de' personaggi principali . . .

"Il fine dell' autore fù di formare una tragedia in musica col fine veramente tragico (novità non più veduta, almeno su le scene d'Italia) e di avere il preggio d'essere il primo a farti sortir dal teatro con le lagrime, frà le dolci armonie della musica, lo che è facile, che ottenga se attendi alla forza del soggetto, e se riguardi alla perfezione de' rappresentanti.

"Vi è stato in altro teatro in qualche parte variato il fine, per non renderlo totalmente funesto; come ancora in questo con non poca pena di ch'è l'hà diretto vi si sono variate alcune arie, & accresciuti, ò diminuiti alcuni recitativi, come altresì vi si sono dovute ponere le parti buffe, mà in modo, che nō interrompino il dramma, mà solo minorino la mestizia con un poco di allegria." Arsene. Nach Favart. Singspiel von A. G. Meissner [vignette].

Leipzig, Dykische buchhandlung, 1778. 3 p. l., 73 p. 16½^{cm}.

Four acts. In his "Vorbericht" Meissner says:

"Die schauspiel-direktion der stadt, wo ich fuer jetzt lebe, ersuchte mich, die gesaenge dieser operette zu verfertigen, da man die. so in der bereits 1778 erschienenen uebersetzung der franzoesischen musik unterliegen, nicht nuetzen koenne. Diese bitte . . . und der zusatz, dass ein wuerdiger tonkuenstler [Franz Seydelmann] meine neuen gesaenge zu setzen bereit sey, machten, dass ich versprach, alles zu thun, was ich thun koenne."

Instead of utilizing the dialogue in the "ueber alle maasen steife Frankfurter uebersetzung" ["Die schoene Arsene," by J. H. Faber], he preferred to translate Favart's "La belle Arsene" anew. He ends his remarks with this:

"Uebrigens ist diess das letzte singspiel, das ich nach dem franzoesischen bearbeite; darauf geb' ich mein wort."

The Ms. score at Dresden has the title "Die schöne Arsene" (Cahn-Speyer).

First performed at Dresden, Churfuerstl. Kleines Theater, March 3, 1779 (Schatz); Leipzig, April 15, 1779, and Dresden, 1781 (Cahn-Speyer). SCHATZ 9841

[Insprugg], Giacomo Christoforo Wagner, n. d. 59 p. 13½cm.

Three acts. Argument and scenario. Neither author nor composer mentioned, but the text is clearly an altered version of Tommaso Stanzani's "Arsinoe" as composed for Bologna by Franceschini. For instance, Stanzani's first scene "O regina del ombre" is now second and is preceded by the scene "Or che mi chiama al trono" with the arias "Bella dea, che al sol nascente" and "Aurette cortesi." Whether these and the other alterations were by Francesco Santurini, who modified Stanzani's text for Venice, 1677, is unknown to me. ML 50.2.A779F7

Arsinoe. A. T. of Keiser's La grandezza d'animo.

Arsinoe e Breno. Altered version of Pietro Guglielmi's Debora e Sisara.

Arsinoe, queen of Cyprus. An opera, after the Italian manner: All sung. As it is perform'd at the Theatre Royal in Drury-Lane, by Her Majesty's servants.

London, Jacob Tonson, 1705. 2 p. l., 48 p. 22cm.

Three acts. Cast and preface, signed by Thomas Clayton, who says:

"The design of this entertainment being to introduce the Italian manner of music on the English stage, which has not been before attempted; I was oblig'd to have an Italian opera translated: In which the words, however mean in several places, suited much better with that manner of musick, than others more poetical would do.

"The stile of this musick is to express the passions, which is the soul of musick: And though the voices are not equal to the Italian, yet I have engag'd the best that were to be found in England, and I have not been wanting, to the utmost of my diligence, in the instructing of them.

"The musick being recitative, may not, at first, meet with that general acceptation, as is to be hop'd for from the audience's being better acquainted with it: But if this attempt shall, by pleasing the nobility and gentry, be a means of bringing this manner of musick to be us'd in my native country, I shall think all my study and pains very well employ'd."

According to Hawkins (IV, 136) "Clayton had brought with him a collection of Italian airs . . . these he mangled and sophisticated, and adapting them to the words of an English drama, entitled Arsinoe Queen of Cyprus, called it an opera, composed by himself." Burney, on the other hand (IV, 199), quotes Clayton's words from the preface of the printed book that he "was obliged to have an Italian opera translated" and Burney names that written by Tomaso Stanzani in 1676 and first performed at Bologna with Petronio Franceschini's music. Mr. Husk in Grove's Dictionary sides with Hawkins and claims that Clayton used "an English piece, written by Peter Motteux, called "Arsinoe, Queen of Cyprus." The Dict. of National Biography goes still further and attributes to Motteux an opera libretto of the same title, printed in 1707 [!]. As a matter of fact, a comparison between the English libretto, printed in 1705 anonymously, the preface signed by Clayton, and Stanzani's libretto (both in L. C.) proves that the English libretto is a free translation of the latter. Motteux' name is not mentioned. Consequently, if he was connected at all with "Arsinoe," it can have been only as translator, not as author.

The title page of the score published by Walsh reads: "Songs in the new opera, call'd Arsinoe, Queen of Cyprus, compos'd by Mr. Tho. Clayton."

Until Hawkins' supposition (shared by Burauy) is proved that Clayton simply utilized a collection of Italian airs which he brought with him from Italy, it will be fairer to consider Clayton the actual composer.

First performed at London, Drury-Lane, Jan. 16, 1705.

Three acts. Impresario's dedication, argument, cast, scenario, and name of Ferd. Gius. Bertoni as composer, but not of librettist, Metastasio. On a fly-leaf Megabise's added aria (I, 6), "Sogna'l guerrier le schiere." This is Bertoni's first setting of the text.

First performed at Forlì, Teatro della Città, spring of 1775.

London, G. Bigg, 1779. 63 p. 19^{cm}.

Three acts. Argument, cast, Italian and English text. Schatz lists this with Bertoni's first setting of Metastasio's "Artaserse," but the librettos are so different from each other in the third act, where Metastasio has been tampered with very considerably, that the same music can hardly have been used throughout for both. Therefore, at least part of the opera must have been newly composed, or it was "entirely new," as the t.-p. states. In that case this would be the second setting of the text by Bertoni.

First performed at London, as indicated, in 1779.

Three acts. Argument, cast, scenario, and name of composer, Bertoni. Practically the same text as that of the Milan 1777 ed., therefore, especially in the third act, very unlike the London 1779 ed. Schatz lists this 1788 Genoa ed. as Bertoni's second setting of the text. This can be correct only if it was not a revival of the setting of 1775 and if the music for London, 1779 was not "entirely new." Unless Schatz had evidence to the contrary, just as likely as not Bertoni composed the text only once, but made additions and changes to suit the circumstances.

Ferrara, Bernardino Pomatelli, n. d. 63 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication, argument, cast, scenario, and name of Johann Adolph Hasse as the composer. The text differs both from Dresden, 1740, and from Venice, 1730. For instance, these two editions do not have at end of I, 3, the aria "Su le sponde del torbido Lete" and their scene I, 7, "Voi della Persia, voi" with the aria "Bramar di perdere" has been dropped. However, since this "Artaserse" (Hasse's third version, according to Schatz, in which view Mennicke concurs with a reservation) was first performed at Naples, Teatro di San Carlo, January 20, 1760 (according to Schatz. At Warsaw, August 3, 1760, according to Mennicke), it is impossible to tell from the Ferrara, 1765 ed. just what the Naples 1760 ed. contained.

Napoli, Michele Luigi Mutio, 1708. 5 p. l., 50 p. 14^{cm}.

Three acts. Impresario's dedication dated Naples, June 7, 1708, notice to the reader, argument, cast, scenario, and note:

"La musica è del Sig. Giuseppe Maria Orlandini. Le scene buffe, e tutte le arie con il presente signo * sono del Sig. Francesco Mancini . . . come anche molte altre accomodazioni."

The starred arias or parts of arias are: "Vinse Marte pugnando col brando" (I, 2), "Basti a lei, che per suo vanto" (I, 6), "Grida vendetta Amor" (I, 17), "Un'alma fedele ti chiama al rigore" (II, 4), "Scherza l'ape su del fiore" (II, 10), "La smarrita Tortorella" (II, 11), "Il Dio d'amore" (II, 12), "Sento nel petto mio" (II, 15), "Combattono a vicenda" (II, 20), "Spesso in un core" (III, 9), "La signorina mia" (III, 16), "Sò che non hò fortuna" (III, 18).

Schatz attributes the text to Zeno and Pariati, with alterations and additions by Andrea del Pò, but the notice to the reader says:

"L'Artaserse di Giulio Agosti Reggiano, dopo esser comparso sopra molt' scene d'Italia, viene avanti i lumi dell' erudita Partenope in qualche parte diverso dalla sua prima impressione, essendo stato di bisogno toglierne il meno necessario per adattarsi alla stagione, nella quale si rappresenta, ed aggiungergli il ridicolo per conformarsi all' uso della città, nella quale è recitato . . ."

"Le scene buffe, e alcune arie col segno § sono dell' A. P. . . ."

The arias or parts of arias with the sign § are:

"Che del cor. son dolce amore" (II, 5), "Fugge, e vola ad altro fior" (II, 10), "Sarai contento" (II, 13), "Tutta rigore" (II, 15), "Un avanzo di pietà" (II, 19), "Sdegnò, pietade, e amor" (II, 20). Comparison with Wotquenne's "Zeno, Metastasio and Goldoni" list proves that many of the arias actually belong to Zeno and Pariati's "Artaserse," but just as many do not, not to mention those with the sign §.

It would seem, therefore, that this opera was a pasticcio both in text and music.

Artaserse. Dramma per musica da rappresentarsi nel famoso Teatro di S. Salvatore la fiera dell' Ascensione dell' anno 1742 . . .

Venezia, Marino Rossetti, n. d. 46 p. 14^{1/2}cm.

Three acts. Metastasio is mentioned as the author and (by a contemporary hand) Giuseppe Antonio Paganelli as the composer. Impresario's dedication, dated Venice, May 1, 1742, argument, cast, and scenario.

First performed, as indicated, May 2, 1742; at Brunswick, in February, 1737.

Artaserse. Dramma per musica da rappresentarsi (nel famosissimo Teatro Grimani di S. Gio. Grisostomo) nel carnevale dell' anno 1750.

Venezia, In Merceria, n. d. 60 p. 15^{cm}.

The words in parenthesis are printed on a mounted slip. Originally the title page contained the name of the same theater. This was then crossed out and substituted in ms. by Teatro di S. Benedetto before Teatro Grimani was printed again as above.

Three acts. By Metastasio, who is not mentioned. Argument, cast, scenario, and name of Antonio Gaetano Pampani as the composer. SCHATZ 7754 — Artaserse. Dramma per musica da rappresentarsi nel Regio Teatro di via della Pergola nel carnevale del MDCCLXXXIII . . .

Firenze, Giovanni Risaliti, 1783. 48 p. 17^{cm}.

Three acts. By Metastasio, who is not mentioned. Argument, cast, and name of Giacomo Rust as the composer. On p. 19-23 description of Antonio Muzzarelli's ballet "La guerra del MDCLXXXIII fra i Turchi e gli Austriaci," on p. 39-41 of his ballet "Assedio e liberazione di Vienna," the composers of the music not being mentioned. Artaserse. Drama per musica da rappresentarsi nel nobil Teatro a Torre Argentina il carnevale dell' anno 1768 . . .

Roma, Ottavio Puccinelli, n. d. 60 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts. Impresario's dedication ("comparisce di nuovo su le nostre scene l'Artaserse"), argument, scenario, cast and names of Metastasio as author, of Sacchini as composer. In a note, Metastasio's text is called "in qualche parte . . . alterata" because of the "dura necessità di averlo dovuto accomodare al teatro presente." But it is not clear why it was necessary, for instance, to contract Metastasio's scenes I, 5, and I, 6, into one dropping both arias "Per pietà, bell' idol mio" and "Sogna il guerrier."

First performed in January, 1768, as indicated.

Roma, Zempel e de Mey, n. d. 79 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts. Impresario's dedication, scenario, argument, cast, and name of Leonardo Vinci as composer.

This fact obviously was unknown to Mr. Edward J. Dent when he wrote his "Notes on Leonardo Vinci" (Musical Antiquary, July 1913, p. 199). Otherwise this distinguished English scholar hardly would have written:

"From the Diario ordinario di Roma quoted by F. Piovano [Sammelbände d. I. M. G. 1906/7, v. 8, p. 76] it would seem that Artaserse was not produced with Vinci's music until after the composer's death. An Artaserse was produced at the Teatro delle Dame (Teatro d'Aliberti) in February, 1730, but it was possibly by another composer. Vinci died suddenly on Sunday, May 28, 1730. His Artaserse was described as new in June, 1731, when produced at the same theatre."

As a matter of fact, the Diario, as quoted by Piovano, says under date of June 16, 1731:

"L'altro dramma che deve andare in scena nel medesimo teatro [delle Dame] intitolato Artaserse, composto dal Signor abbate Pietro Metastasio, e posto in musica dal fu [!] Signor Maestro di Cappella Leonardo Vinci."

and under June 23, 1731, the Diario says, referring to this revival on June 19, 1731: "già recitato nel medesimo teatro l'anno 1730." These words make it absolutely clear that the Diario referred to Vinci's "Artaserse" as second opera of the season, when on February 11, 1730, it wrote, without mentioning the composer:

"Sabato sera [= February 4, 1730], nel Teatro detto delle Dame, andò in scena il secondo dramma intitolato Artaserse."

These quotations, together with the fact that Vinci's name appears in the 1730 libretto, leave no doubt, I think, that Vinci's "Artaserse" was actually performed for the first time at Rome, Teatro delle Dame, February 4, 1730.

Il Persco. 1665. A. Mattioli.

L'Eliogabalo. 1668. T. Orgiani.

L'Artaserse. 1668. Carlo Grossi.

In the dedication to the brothers Grimani, Aureli, referring to his "Eliogabalo," performed during the previous carnival at their theatre, says it was his intention to rest this year, but at the instance of the Grimani brothers he changed his mind, and wrote "L'Artaxerse," "anco trà la perdita funesta del padre, e d'un unico figlio." He then continues:

"So, che questa inusitata stravaganza di due titoli, desterà stupore non meno, che curiosità ne' lettori di saperne la causa: Mà basta à me che VV. SS. Illustrissime la sappino. Spero, che non si sdegheranno di ricevere quello, ch'Elle medesime si sono contentate di scegliere." SCHATZ 4216

London, T. Lowndes and J. Condell, n. d. 47 p. 20½^{cm}.

Three acts. Casts, argument, and preface, in which Arne (not mentioned) submits his translation of Metastasio's "Artaserse" as "this first attempt of the kind." "As the narrative part of this drama may seem too barren of forcible epithets, which in reading or speaking dignify the style," he quotes Dryden's and Lord Lansdown's sentiments on the subject of opera librettos. He further quotes Metastasio's own recipe for the poetry of an opera, and finally comments on "the necessity of sometimes departing from the author, on account of the different idioms of our language; and of leaving out many beauties in the narrative part of the drama, for the sake of brevity." Paris, P. de Lormel, 1788. viii, 62 p. 22^{cm}.

Cast, names of Nicolas François Guillard as author, of Sacchini as the composer, and "avertissement" which reads in part:

"M. William Mason a traité à Londres ce sujet. Il a été joué en 1776, sur le Théâtre de Covent Garden, sous le titre de Caractacus. [with music by Th. Aug. Arne]. Ceux qui liront l'ouvrage anglais, seront peut être surpris des changements considérables que je me suis permis. La conduite de la pièce, le dénouement, jusqu'aux noms sont ici différents . . .

"Le poème ne faisant gueres que moitié de la tâche que nous avons à remplir, le prix que celui ci a obtenu au concours me rassure moins que les talens du celebre compositeur qui a consacré a cet ouvrage les derniers élans d'un génie fécond qui étoit encore dans toute sa force, lorsqu'une mort aussi funeste qu'imprévue l'a enlevé aux plaisirs du public, & a porté le désespoir dans l'ame de ses amis."

Sacchini did not live to finish the score. The last act was completed by J. B. Rey, who successfully selected pieces from Sacchini's works for the purpose. The score was published with the title "Evelina."

Athalia. Ein trauerspiel mit chören. Nach Racine von Carl Friedrich Cramer. Die musik vom herrn capellmeister Schulz.

Kiel, bey dem verfasser, n. d. [xxviii], 179, [1] p. 15^{cm}.

On p. 141-179, Cramer's "Anmerkungen," some of which are equally interesting, as his "Vorrede," in which he first (and charmingly) gives the history of Racine's "Athalia" in France; then the history of Schulz' setting and this translation; then his reasons for taking some liberties with Racine—his ambition was "mein original nicht allein zu erreichen, sondern auch, wo möglich zu übertreffen," and with this in view, he busied himself with the "Flecken im originale, die abgewischt werden konnten und mussten"—and, finally, Racine's preface. As to Schulz' setting, Cramer says:

"Se. Königliche Hoheit, der Prinz Heinrich, der seinem grossen bruder wie an heldeneigenschaften, so auch an liebe zu den dichtern Frankreichs gleicht, trug seit verschiedenen jahren dem componisten, seinem capellmeister [1730-1787], auf, für sein Privat-Theater, das während seines sommeraufenthalts in Reinsberg seine liebste erholung ausmacht, die chöre dieser tragödie in musik zu setzen. Schulz erfüllte diesen befehl, und Athalia (ein vorzug, dessen sich die glänzende hauptstadt Frankreichs selber nicht rühmen kann), ward in Deutschland, auf dieser zwar kleinen, aber ihres geschmacks wegen merkwürdigen bühne, zum erstenmal vollständig, wie es ihre würde erforderte, aufgeführt. Die beschaffenheit der composition, ihr genauer musicalischer vortrag durch eine zureichende und gewählte capelle, so wie ihr dramatischer, in der die hauptrollen von einem manne, welcher, ob's sein beruf gleich nicht ist, dennoch desto rühmlicher die dreyfachen talente eines ein-sichtsvollen componisten, sängers und schauspiellers in sich vereinigt, und von einer braven actrize, Madame d'Orceville, gemacht wurden, erwarben sich bey mehrmaligen vorstellungen den beyfall des prinzen und aller kenner, die es aufführen sahen. Durch das gerücht davon gereizt, suchte ich, da ich die Athalia immer sehr geliebt, und schon früher mit Madame Seyler von ihrer verpflanzung auf die deutsche bühne geredet hatte, die schulzische composition näher kenner su lernen . . ."

Le Théâtre de la foire, Paris, 1737, t. ix, 2 pl., [385]-427 p. 17^{cm}.

By Carolet, who has this to say in a prefatory note:

"Ce petit acte est moins une piece qu'une description fidelle de l'état où se trouvoit alors le Théâtre de l'Opera comique. L'entrepreneur conseillé par des associés, ausquels la tête ne tournoit pas moins qu'à lui, se livroit, comme eux, à l'ignorance & à la prévention. Les bons acteurs murmuroient hautement de se voir forcés de représenter sans cesse de mauvaises pièces, & de contribuer avec des acteurs aussi pitoyables que neufs, à écarter le public d'un spectacle qui scut toujours sous d'autres chefs & sous d'autres auteurs, charmer son attente & ses plus chers loisirs."

Largely en vaudevilles. The airs, a few of which with name of Corrette as composer, are printed at the end of the volume in the "Table des airs." ML 48. L2X

Three acts. Author's dedication, dated Venice, February 10, 1678, argument, scenario, and notice to the reader who is informed that Antonio Zannettini composed the music and that the text is based on conte Berni's "Il ratto di Cefalo." This copy does not contain the frontispiece and woodcut in the Brussels copy. (See Wotquenne.) SCHATZ 11146

L'Aurora ingannata.

Prologue and four intermedii. Forms part (p. 6-10, 38-41, 77-79, 97-99, 147-150) of "FILARMINDO. Favola pastorale del Sig. Co. Ridolio Campeggi. In questa quinta impressione arricchita con L'Aurora ingannata. Favoletta per gl'intermedij in musica . . . In Venetia, MDCXXVIII. Apresso Gio. Battista Ciotti." (178 p. 13^{1/2}^{cm}.)

Date slightly mutilated. Allacci, without mentioning a composer, says: "In alcune delle suddette edizioni si vede L'Aurora ingannata dello stesso autore . . . udita in musica la prima volta nell' anno 1615." Schatz says under "Filarmindo" (not under "Aurora ingannata," which he does not seem to know): "Musik von Girolamo Giacobbi. Bologna, Sala Zoppia, 1605," but "Filarmondo" was merely a favola pastorale with no music, except perhaps by the choro. Corradi says that the intermezzi of "L'Aurora ingannata" were added in 1615. PQ

The second edition (1700) of Colasse's score bears this statement on the title page: "augmentée de toute la musique de feu Monsieur de Lully qui manquoit dans la premiere." Which Lully did he mean? Louis de Lully and Jean Baptiste de Lully, the younger, certainly not, because they were both still alive. To be considered, therefore, is only Jean Louis de Lully, who died 1688, about one year after his great father Jean Baptiste. Now, the son is not known to have collaborated with Colasse, whereas it is known that Colasse, as amanuensis of the elder Lully, saved and utilized in his own scores airs that had been discarded by Lully, who, moreover, on July 23, 1661, performed his own "Ballet des Saisons."

Three acts. Ballad opera. The tunes (49) not printed—merely indicated. Cast and preface, which reads, in part:

"When the town thought fit to pass sentence on this trifling piece, corrected by their judgment, I determin'd to finish the execution, and bury it in oblivion; lest by setting it in open light, I shou'd be thought presumptuous enough to think of confronting and expostulating with their resentment. But my too partial friends, who first seduc'd me by their approbation to exhibit it to the publick, over-rul'd my resolution; and thought it incumbent on me to publish it, in order to clear up some disadvantages it labour'd under in the representations, which made it obscure, and perhaps unintelligible, and to confute some insinuations scatter'd about, injurious to my private character . . .

"The only view of this performance was to expose the folly and absurdities of a prevailing (and, as I thought, vitiated) taste; which seem'd to prefer farce and buffoonery, as well as the unprofitable, immoral and unnatural representations of poetical fiction, to the more polite and instructive entertainments of dramattick poetry and musick.

"As the design is carried on in one continu'd allegory, all persons of taste (and to such only I make my humble appeal,) well know that an allegory, to be rightly understood in all its parts, requires an exact attention from the beginning to the end . . .

"For the judicious this piece was, tho' unhappily, calculated; and therefore not intended to entertain by ballad-singing; which was only accidental to the design; or rather a means to enliven the burlesque scheme. It was my view to alarm men of sense to a care of the liberal arts, which seem to languish, and, at their last gasp, invoke their assistance to raise them . . .

"I cou'd take notice of some invidious reflections industriously spread by a certain author, who has claim'd to himself the invention of this scheme; (tho' I doubt neither of us have any great reason to boast of it;) but as it is not the turn of my ambition to aspire at, much less to rival any man in the character of author, I shall readily give him up any thing but truth, I shall therefore only observe, that it was impossible for me to steal any hints from him, because this was wrote, and known to many gentlemen above a year before he dates the theft . . .

"It has been urg'd, in a place where I cou'd wish scandal and defamation might never enter, that this performance was aim'd to expose the celebrated author of the Beggar's Opera and his works; but to clear me from this abhor'd aspersion, I shall want no other vindication than what I am sure to find from the candid judgment of that ingenious gentleman . . ."

The beggar's wedding. A new ballad opera. As it is acted at the theatre in Dublin, with great applause; and at the theatre in the Haymarket. To which are added the new prologue and epilogue. By Mr. Char. Coffey . . . 5th ed.

London, Printed by J. D., 1733. 58 p. 16 cm.

Three acts. The airs are not printed, merely indicated. They are numbered consecutively in each act: 20, 15, 19, total 54.

Under the above title (prose and songs, in three acts) "The beggar's wedding" was first published with music at London in 1729. This and the second edition, 1729 (without music) and a third edition, 1729 (with music) are at the British Museum, as well as the fourth edition, 1731. Genest says under Haymarket 1729 of the "Beggar's wedding": "it seems to have come out at Dublin and then to have been acted at this theatre." Under Drury Lane, July 4, 1729 he then enters the first performance of the reduced version as "Phebe or Beggar's wedding."

First performed at Dublin, Smock Alley, March 24, 1729. (Lawrence).

Bertoldo, Bertoldino, e Cacasenno, dramma comico per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro Giustiniano di S. Moisè il carnovale dell'anno 1749.

Venezia, Modesto Fenzo, 1749. 60 p. 14½^{cm}.

Three acts. Neither the author, Carlo Goldoni, is mentioned, nor Vincenzo Legrenzio Ciampi, the composer. Goldoni's witty notice to the reader ends:

"Circa le arie, alcune sono figlie legittime, e naturali del libro, alcune addotate, altre spurie, ed altre adulterine per commodo, e compiacimento de' virtuosi, onde, ec."

This is the real and original title of Goldoni's famous libretto. All statements that Ciampi composed another opera called "Bertoldo in (or alla) corte," first performed at Parma are incorrect, because a comparison of the librettos (all in three acts) in the L. C. proves that "Bertoldo in corte" is practically identical with "Bertoldo, Bertoldino e Cacassenno." The opera became known also simply as "Bertoldo," but "Bertoldo in (or alla) corte" appears to have become the most popular title, and as such Ciampi's opera was first performed at Paris on November 22, or November 9, 1753, as a pasticcio. For instance (compare De La Laurencie's essay mentioned below) "Grandi, e ver son" was from Leo's "Olimpiade" and "Quando sento spirarmi" was parodied from his "Se mai senti spirarti" in his "Clemenza di Tito." "La donna onorata" does not appear in the original Venice, 1749 libretto of Ciampi's opera, though in the Brunswick and Strassburg librettos analyzed by me. "Così fugge e spaventosa" is not in Goldoni's text. For a detailed comparison of these different editions see the author's study on Ciampi's opera and Favart's "Ninette à la cour" in the Sammelbände d. I. M. G. 1910/11, p. 525-564.

To this essay I wish to add here that there exist two collections of "Favourite Songs . . . Bertoldo," not only one, as I presumed. The Royal College of Music in London possess both, with this ms. note on the title page, as Mr. Squire informed me: "Published originally in 1749 and republished with no. 1 in 1762." The L. of C. copy is identical with No. 2. The contents of No. 1 are:

Three acts. Impresario's dedication, Goldoni's original "Bertoldo, Bertoldino e Cacasenno" preface (with exception of the last paragraph), cast, and name of the, composer, Vincenzo Ciampi. The parts of "Aurelia, sorella del rè" and "Lisaura, figlià del rè, e della regina," have been dropped and the whole libretto has been considerably condensed and modified. For purposes of identification may be mentioned that the opening chorus "Amor discenda" has been dropped and that the opera now begins with the words "Amico, in questa alpestre," that its third act has only eight scenes instead of eleven, the second fifteen instead of eighteen, etc.

Paris, N. B. Duchesne, 1759. 86 p. 18^{cm}.

Cast. On p. 81–82 “Table des ariettes de Ninette à la cour, gravées en quatre parties” with the foot-note “Les ariettes marquées dans la table par une S, ne se chantent point à la Représentation; mais se trouvent gravées dans la musique.” These are in partie I, no. 9, “En tourbillon, un papillon,” in partie II, no. 18, “Au sein des alarmes,” and no. 21, “Qu’il a de gentillesse,” in partie III, no. 23, “Je veux tirer vengeance,” no. 24, “Assise sur le bord d’une onde,” no. 25 “Non, non, je n’ai peur,” and no. 27 “Quatuor.” On p. 83–86 “Catalogue des pièces des comédies françoise & italienne, & opera comiques qui se vendent détachés.” The text is a close parody of Goldoni’s “Bertoldo,” but the music is a pasticcio from Ciampi’s opera, and operas by Latilla, Cocchi, Selitti, Jommelli, Vinci, etc. Duni is said by some authorities to have arranged the score for Favart, but this is not certain. The whole complicated matter of text and music has been investigated by the author in the study mentioned above. Compare also De La Laurencie’s article on “Les bouffons,” S. I. M., 1912, nos. 6–8. The music of the “O dell’ Egitto,” final chorus in Rinaldo di Capua’s La Zingara” and his “Toute mon âme” is, as I since learned, borrowed from Hasse’s “Leucippo.”

No cast. No composer mentioned. No music printed in the text, but the text is followed on p. [81]–98 by twenty-seven “Ariettes de Ninette a la cour, parodie . . . Nouvelle édition corrigée, et conforme aux représentations” and on p. [97]–120 by six “Ariettes, pour servir de supplément . . .” with foot-note: “Ces ariettes ne se chantent point à la représentation; mais elles ont toujours été gravées dans la musique.” They are “En tourbillon, un papillon,” “Au sein des alarmes,” “Qu’il a de gentillesse,” “Je veux tirer vengeance,” “Assise sur les bords,” “Non, non, je n’ai point peur.” Of these only the words of “Qu’il a de gentillesse” appear in the present text (II, 10) and the same air is printed as no. 21 of the “Ariettes.” The others are remnants of the three-act version.

Paris, la veuve Duchesne, 1773. iv, [6]-80, p. 4 p. (music) 17^{cm}.

The music consists of the vaudeville: "Enfans voilà votre." In his avertissement the author repudiates the charge of plagiarism because of the great similarity of a scene with one in Grétry's "Silvain." His own piece, he says,

"faite dans son origine pour un théâtre de société, avoit été lue à ceux qui devoient la jouer & à quelques gens de lettres plus d'un an avant la représentation de Silvain. C'est donc le hasard qui a fait naître la même idée à deux poètes qui ne se connoissoient pas." Nevertheless, he says, he has done all in his power to weaken the resemblance. says that a friend of his, name not given, is responsible for this revision and modernization of (Beaumont ? and) Fletcher's "Bonduca," that

Paris, Cailleau, 1783. 18 p. 18½^{cm}.

Two acts. Scene by scene description of the action. The composer of the music is not mentioned. In an Avertissement the publisher says:

"... Grand peintre & grand machiniste, le chevalier Servandoni porta à sa perfection la Pantomime à Machines. Personne ne poussa plus loin que ce fameux artiste, l'art de faire jouer les décorations, d'en multiplier les effets, de les varier, de les opposer avec autant de rapidité.

"Ne pouvant employer aucun de ces grands moyens, le directeur de l'Ambigu-Comique puisa dans la nature même un nouveau genre de pantomime. Une action simple & suivie, des situations intéressantes, agréables, des tableaux pittoresques, variés & multipliés, qui tiennent toujours au sujet, voilà la tâche que cet entrepreneur s'est imposée.

"La Belle au bois dormant, fut le premier & l'un des plus agréables ouvrages qu'il ait offert au public, & le succès constant que cette pantomime a eu toutes les fois qu'on l'a remise au théâtre, dispense d'entrer, à cet égard, dans de plus grands détails.

"Bientôt les quatre Fils Aymon & Pierre de Provence, qui succédèrent à la Belle au bois dormant, obtinrent les applaudissemens les plus encourageans.

"Enfin, le Prince Noir & Blanc & Dorothee, semblent avoir réunis tous les suffrages d'un public, qui donne toujours une nouvelle preuve d'indulgence & d'intérêt à chaque effort nouveau que l'on fait pour lui plaire. . . .

"L'effet de ces sortes d'ouvrages, est de parler d'abord aux yeux, & de n'arriver au cœur ou à l'esprit, que par le secours de cet organe, & d'une musique destinée à remplacer le dialogue. On pense que leurs programmes n'en doivent être que la description . . ."

Il bottegaro gentiluomo. Intermezzo a' due voci.

Venezia, Domenico Lovisa, 1739. 12 p. 14½^{cm}.

Two parts. By Antonio Salvi, who is not mentioned. In the brief entry catalogue of his libretto collection Schatz attributed the music to Giuseppe Maria Orlandini, but in the manuscript of his Opera-dictionary he attributes it to Joh. Adolf Hasse, remarking that the intermezzo is also known as "Larinda e Vanesio," and originally, for the first performances at Naples, Teatro di San Bartolomeo, December, 1726, was called "L'artigiano gentiluomo." Florimo makes no mention of such a performance. Mennicke (p. 511) says that the Royal Library at Dresden possesses Hasse's "Cajo Fabricio," Dresden, 1734, with his intermezzi, "L'artigiano gentiluomo (=Larinda e Vanesio), and that a German edition of the text of these is in the Schatz collection. On p. 495 of his book he enters under "Intermezzi": "1726. L'artigiano gentiluomo, Neapel, Datum der Aufführung: ?, Exemplar: Dresden, Librettist: ?"

It is quite clear that this information was partly derived from Schatz himself, whose libretto collection, indeed, contains "Der handwerksmann als edelmann," Dresden, 1734.

To add to the confusion, Schatz, in his ms. work (in L. of C.), "Chronologische folge der von Johann Adolph Hasse in musik gesetzten dramatischen werke," enters as no. 6:

"Larinda e Vanesio. Intermezzi per musica in 2 parti. Text ursprüngl. m. d. titel "L'artigiano gentiluomo," von Antonio Salvi, verändert von [blank], Neapel, Teatro di S. Bartolomeo. xii, 1726."

"Besetzung

"Larinda

Sig^a Celeste Reste

"Vanesio

Sig. Gioacchino Corrado

"NB. Dieses werk wurde als zwischenspiel z. d. dramma per musica "L'Asparto" aufgeführt."

He then quotes from the libretto (which is not in his collection):

"Se l'intermezzi li vedrai tutti diversi dal loro primo essere, e da quella forma, che si sono rappresentati in Torino, Fiorenza, ed altri capitoli, sappi, che si è fatto per adattarli al costume di questa città."

As 6a. Schatz enters—

"L'artigiano gentiluomo (Larinda e Vanesio) . . . Dresden, 8/vii, 1734 . . . Textbuch in deutscher prosa, am textbuch der oper "Cajus Fabritius" angeheftet . . .

"NB. Dieses werk wurde als zwischenspiel z. d. dramma per musica "Cajo Fabricio" aufgeführt."

Schatz means, of course, that both the opera and the intermezzi were performed in Italian.

As 6^b he enters:

"Il bottegaro gentiluomo (Larinda e Vanesio) . . . Venedig, Teatro di S. Angelo, carnevale 1739 . . . Aufgeführt als zwischenspiel zu dem Dr. p. m. "Achille in Sciro" v. P. Chiarini."

"Il bottegaro gentiluomo" was indeed performed at Venice, 1739, with Chiarini's opera, "Achille in Sciro," and Wiel adds this note:

"Con questa opera furono rappresentati gli intermezzi: Un bottegaro gentiluomo, in due parti; e: Pandolfo (musica di G. A. Hasse)."

It will be noticed that Wiel attributes only the music of "Pandolfo" to Hasse, not of "Un bottegaro gentiluomo," whose composer he did not know. This point Schatz overlooked, and he (incorrectly), on Wiel's authority, attributed "Il bottegaro gentiluomo," Venice, 1739, to Hasse, after first having attributed it to Orlandini.

To sum up, while Hasse apparently composed Salvi's altered text under the title of "L'artigiano gentiluomo" or "Larinda e Vanesio," for Naples, 1726, used also later en in 1734, at Dresden, there is nothing to show that his music was also used at Venice, 1739, for another version of Salvi's text under the title of "Il bottegaro gentiluomo." I therefore prefer Orlandini as composer, though his connection with the work is made doubtful by the following entry: SCHATZ 7350

— Le bourgeois gentilhomme; or, Vanesio and Larinda. An interlude. Performed by Sig. Anna Maria Faini, and Signor Antonio Lottini, at the King's Theatre in the Haymarket. The music is composed by Signor Orlandini.

London, J. Chrichley, 1737. 15 p. 17^{cm}.

Two parts. This is not Salvi's text, as Schatz would have found on comparison. Salvi begins his with "Un Marte furibondo," for instance, whereas the London libretto begins, "Sotto mentite spoglie;" act second in this begins, "La, la, la, la, etc., Fate largo o Ganimede," instead of "Levami davanti."

First performed, as indicated, 1737.

The British enchanters; or, No magick like love. A dramatick poem. [port. vignette.]

London, J. Tonson, 1732. 71 p. 16^{cm}.

Five acts and prologue. Cast and notice to the reader:

"Upon the separation of the houses, when musical performances were confin'd to one theatre, and dramatick to the other [this regulation went in force about January, 1708!], it became necessary to lengthen the representation of the ensuing poem with several alterations and additions, and some entire new scenes, to fill up the spaces occasion'd by the necessity of leaving out the mixture of musical entertainment. Which additions are herewith printed, having never been publish'd before."

The text is by George Granville (Lord Lansdowne), and was written as an attempt to improve on opera librettos. It was first performed, evidently with "musical entertainments," at the Haymarket Theatre, February 21, 1706, and again with alterations on March 22, 1707 (Genest). The composer not recorded by Schatz or Clarence. LONGE 75

London, W. Griffin [etc.], 1767. 1 p. l., ii, 59, [1] p. 19½^{cm}.

Three acts. Cast and preface by the translator, Edward Toms (not mentioned), who says, in part:

" . . . This translation is attempted, so as to be sung to the original music, as performed in Italy . . . As the music of this opera, has always been esteemed the most capital work of that great composer Piccini, the translator thought it more just, to give up the claim to poetical harmony, rather than make the least infringement on the musical accent. He likewise flatters himself, that it will not be less acceptable to an English audience, by the dialogue's being without the incumbrance of recitative. All other alterations, are made only to adapt it to the English stage . . . Should this first attempt of bringing an entire Italian musical composition on the English stage, by applying our language to the harmony of their most eminent composer, prove acceptable to the public, the translator's intention is fully answered, as it may be the means of exciting some abler genius to tread the same path."

The last (unnumb.) p. contains the "Table of the songs," with note that "Bring, ye tedious hours," "Some men with artful praise," and "Thus the sun at morn'" "were not originally" in La Buona figliuola, "but are the composition of the same master." In Randall & Abel's, vocal score the air "Oh! (Off), my lord, pray forbear" is headed as by "Sig^r Pirillo, Napolitano." (Salvatore Perillo.)

Paris, Didot l'aîné, 1771. 48 p. 19cm.

Cast and anonymous preface, with Goldoni's name, and that of Domenico Baccelli as the musician either responsible for the musical side of the parody or indeed partly for the parody itself, since the author says: "Baccelli . . . me proposa de la faire connoître en France, en parodiant les paroles italiennes sur la quelle elle étoit composée." The preface contains also some observations on the difficulty of making parodies. The text is attributed to Jean François Cailhava d'Estandoux. On p. 45, a note to the effect that the piece was already half printed when the Comédiens italiens substituted the following ariettes, "Dans ces fleurs je vois l'image" (I, 1) and "La tendresse et la sagesse" (III, 5), for "Quel plaisir, quelle volupté" and "Dans mon coeur." Both substituted airts were by Piccini, but not from "La buona figliuola. On p. 47-48, the air of the ariette, "Pauvre Annette, quelle pitié" (I, 4).

Three acts. Cast, scenario, name of Giacomo Rust as the composer, and dedication by Antonio Dian, which reads, in part:

"A prima vista potrebbe forse sembrar quello [drama] stesso, che a tempi addietro venne in altre scene di questa Dominante rappresentato; ma, toltone un aria sola della prima buffa nell' atto secondo, che siè desiderato di conservare, egli è tutto nuovo. La dotta pena, che quello scrisse, valendosi d'arbitrio non conteso ai poeti, immaginò combinazioni di personaggi, di nazione, di caratteri, e di episode diverse da quelle che ci somministra il Teatro comico francese, e ciò forse per adattarsi allo stile delle drammatiche rappresentazioni musicali di quei dì, assai diverso dall' odierno. Io ho bramato che si concilino possibilmente uniformità colla commedia francese e condotta di dramma musicale, il che si è fatto, per quanto disparità di circostanze fra questo, e quella, e massime per la distribuzione delle arie, e per la combinazione de' finali, non l'abbia impedito."

Three acts in prose. In his dedication addressed to the "Annehmliches frauenzimmer" the translator gives as raison d'être of his translation:

"Das sinnliche vergnuegen, so Sie bei vorstellung dieses stueckes durch die ohren, und augen geniessen, suche ich vollkommener zu machen, wenn ich auch Ihrem verstande was dabei zu thun gebe."

and in his "Vorbericht" he expresses the same idea:

"Der uebersetzer hat auf nichts dabei geseben, als dieses trauerspiel in rein deutsch zu bringen, um es einigen zuschauern verstaendlich zu machen."

He does not mention Hasse, the composer, whose "Cajo Fabricio" was first performed at Dresden, July 8, 1734, Mennicke adding "2 Fassg.?" (2d version?). Two intermezzi have been added on p. 81-88 under the title "Der handwerks-mann ein edelmann." This is a translation of "L'artigiano gentiluomo," under which title the intermezzi were performed at Dresden simultaneously with "Cajo Fabricio." It is the title of Antonio Salvi's original text, but when it was first performed in an altered version with Hasse's music, at Naples, Teatro di S. Bartolomeo, December 1726, it was called "Larinda e Vanesio."

Calfurnia. Drama per musica. Da rappresentarsi nel Teatro di Sant' Angelo il carnevale dell' anno 1713 . . .

Venezia, Marino Rossetti, 1713. 59 p. 14½^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication by the author, Grazio Braccioni, dated Venice, January 26, 1713, argument, cast, scenario, and name of "Giovanni Heyninghen di Sassonia" (Johann David Heinichen) as composer. SCHATZ 4701 — Die roemische grossmuht, oder Calfurnia. In einem musica-lischen schau-spiele im monath februar. 1716 auf dem Hamburgischen Theatro aufgefuehret.

Hamburg, Friedrich Conrad Greiflinger, n. d. Unpaged. 16½^{cm}.

Scenario and "Vorbericht" by the translator, Johann Ulrich König, in which he mentions Heinichen as the composer, and remarks that the translation was made from the score, because he does not know the name of the Italian author and never saw a printed copy of the Venetian libretto of 1713. He also states that he has done nothing

"als nebst der uebersetzung hin und wieder einige stellen den hiesigen liebhabern zu gefallen, geaendert und hin und wieder etliche taentze, arien, decorationen oder auftritte eingerueckt . . ."

Such arias appear with German text only, and their composer is not mentioned. The other arias have the Italian text added to the German. SCHATZ 4702

Il Caligola. L. T. of Pagliardi's Caligula delirante.

Venetia, Francesco Nicolini, 1672. front., 84, [1] p. 14½^{cm}.

Three acts. By Domenico Gisberti, who is not mentioned, and whose title originally was "La pazzia in trono ovvero Caligola delirante." Publisher's dedication, dated Venice, December 18, 1672, argument, notice to the reader, scenario, and name of "Giovanni Maria Pagliardi, mastro di capella del sereniss. Gran Duca di Toscana," as the composer. SCHATZ 7582

— Il Caligola. Dramma per musica, rappresentato in Roma nel nuovo Teatro di Tor di Nona nel presente anno 1674 . . .

Roma, Stamparia della Rev. C. A., 1674. 63 p. 13½^{cm}.

Three acts. Gisberti's text, with noticeable differences from the version of Venice, 1672. For instance, I, 2 now begins, "O Di quanto il Sol vede," instead of "Su! mia figlia corraggio;" I, 6, "Nesbo di regal ceppo," has been dropped and I, 7, "De la vaga Teosena," has become I, 6, etc., etc. SCHATZ 7586

Calimedonte, rei do Epiro, ou Os amores de Sisbe e Selene: baile heroico-pantomimo em quatro actos para se executar no Real Theatro de S. Carlos em beneficio de Theresa Mellazzi em 9 de janeiro de 1796.

Lisboa, Simão Thaddeo Ferreira, 1796. 21 p. 15^{cm}.

Argument and detailed description of the single acts. Neither the composer of the music is mentioned nor the "composer" of the ballet. Not recorded by Schatz. ML 52.2.C2

Calipso. Dramma per musica. Da rappresentarsi nel Real Teatro di S. Carlo nel di 30 maggio 1782 festeggiandosi il glorioso nome di Ferdinando IV . . .

Napoli, Vincenzo Flauto, 1782. 56 p. 16^{cm}.

Three acts. Author not mentioned, and unknown to Schatz. According to a footnote on p. 20, the text had been greatly changed to adapt it to this theatre. Dedication dated May 30, 1782, argument, scenario, and name of Giacomo Insanguine, called Monopoli, as composer. On p. 10-18, argument, cast, and description of Paolo Franchi's "La principessa di Tingi, ballo eroico pantomimo in cinque atti." The second ballet was Giuseppe Trafieri's comic ballet, "La vendemia ossia La contadina impertinente." Giuseppe Giordani is mentioned as composer of both ballets. SCHATZ 4839

Torino, Onorato Derossi, n. d. viii, 58 p. 16½^{cm}.

Three acts. By Donzel (who is not mentioned), with a few alterations. Argument, cast, scenario, and name of Bernard(in)o Ottani as the composer. Vittorio Amedeo Canavasso is mentioned as the composer of the music for the ballets, a description of which was to follow on p. 59.

First performed December 26, 1776, as indicated.

First performed at Venice, Teatro di S. Apollinare, fall of 1651.

La Calisto. Intermezzi printed with Sarro's Candaule rè di Lidia.

Calisto: or, The chaste nimph. The late masque at court, as it was frequently presented there, by several persons of great quality. With the prologue, and the songs betwixt the acts. All written by J. Crowne.

London, Printed by Tho. Newcomb, for James Magnes and Richard Bentley, 1675. 12 p. l., 81, [1] p. 21½cm.

Five acts, prologue and epilogue (last, unnumb. p.). Cast of "The persons of the play," not of the singers. John Crowne's dedication and his preface in which he states that he was—

"invaded, on the sudden, by a Powerful Command, to prepare an entertainment for the court, which was to be written, learnt, practised, and performed, in less time than was necessary for the writing alone. True, it was not performed, till some months after the time first decreed, but that hapned from the discretion of those on whom the dancing and musical parts depended, who found it required time to do any thing in perfection; but I not knowing it would be so deferred, finished my part within time first allotted me, which was scarce a month; not only for the play, but the prologue, and songs, the nature of which I was wholly a stranger to, having never seen any thing of the kind; and by these means, I was forced upon a brisk dullness, writing quick, but flat. I was also confined in the number of the persons; I had but seven allow'd me, neither more nor less: those seven to be all ladies, and of those ladies, two onely were to appear in men's habits. Next, for my subject, it was not, I confess, imposed upon me by command, but it was for want of time to find a better: For I had but some few hours allow'd me to choose one . . .

"Having made this little vindication of my self, I were now bound in gratitude, (before I conclude) to record the due praises of those whose admirable performances in their several kinds, lent this entertainment much of the praise it had; namely, the singers, and the composer of all the musick both vocal and instrumental Mr. [Nicholas] Staggins . . . if the judgments of others, and those the most skilful too, be not mistaken, Mr. Staggins has not only delighted us with his excellent composition, but with the hopes of seeing in a very short time a master of musick in England, equal to any France or Italy have produced . . ."

The singers evidently were professionals in the king's service; their names are not mentioned.

Performed 1675, as indicated.

"Nachfolgendes sing-spiel ist einigermassen ein versuch zur verbesserung der theatralischen musick in teutscher sprache, nach dem model der Italiaener . . . Unser schau-platz hat von einigen jahren her einen grossen theil der musick von ihnen entlehnet; verschiedene ihrer beruehmtesten opern sind bey uns nicht allein aufgefuehret worden, sondern es haben auch bestaendig einige ihrer geschickten landes-leute in selbigen gesungen . . .

"Nimmermehr ist der vorsatz derjenigen, welche die italiaenische opern erstlich bey uns eingefuehrt, dahin gerichtet gewesen, dass selbige den gaentzlichen besitz unsers theatri, mit ausschliessung aller ahrten, so wir selbst hervorbringen moechten, einnehmen solten. Ich weiss auch nicht wie einige unter uns neulicher zeit zu den gedanken gekommen, dass die teutschen worte zur musick untauglich seyn: Dass die teutsche sprache nicht so weibisch, und mit vocalen angefuellet sey, als die italiaenische, solches gestehe ich gern; aber damit ist es noch lange nicht ausgemacht, dass sie zur harmonie untuechtig sey . . .

"Es est gewiss von viel grosserer folge bey schau-spielen, dass sie in einer dem auditorio verstaendlichen sprache aufgefuehret werden. Dieser satz, deucht mich, braucht eben nicht viel beweises. Three acts. By Adriano Morselli, who is not mentioned. At end of second act, on p. 28-35, apparently as intermezzo, is printed the text of the one act "La CALISTO Scherzo drammatico."

Impresario's dedication, argument of "Candaule" and of "La Calisto," cast, scenario, and name of Domenico Sarro as composer of "Candaule," list of characters, without cast and without name of composer of "La Calisto," and after the dedication a notice to the reader, which says, in part:

"L'autore del presente drama è incerto, fù però rappresentato in questa medesima città nell' anno 1679, mà con qualche diversità da quel ch'oggi si rappresenta solamente intorno alla locuzione, essendo rimasto in tutto l'intrico dell' antica favola.

"Lo scherzo drammatico è nuova poesia, mà se conoscerai, che il personaggio del Pastor Napoletano sia fuor di costume, compatisci con la tua bontà il mio desiderio di rendere il drama più allegro."

Neither the author nor the composer of this is mentioned; but Schatz attributes the music to Sarro. The point is not of much consequence, in view of this note, printed at end of the third act:

Three parts. Cast, names of the author, resp. translator, Johann Philip Praetorius, and of the composer, Georg Philipp Telemann, and notice to the reader, in which Praetorius protests that his frequent use of "auslaendische woerter" ("gegen meine bis herige gewohnheit") is not to be construed as an admission of the German language's poverty for operatic purposes. On the contrary: "Ich bin der unvorgreiflichen meinung, die sprach-vermengung sey unserer mund-arth eben so anstaendig, als ein buntes pickel-haerings-kleid einem ehrbaren und ansehnlichen manne," but the use of foreign technical terms, as in this libretto, he considers quite proper.

The author of the Italian original is not mentioned, and is unknown to Schatz. The Italian words of the arias are added to the German.

London, R. Withy, W. Griffin [etc.], 1765. 2 p. l., 27 p. 20^{cm}.

Two acts. Cast. After Favart's "Le caprice amoureux ou Ninette à la cour."

First performed at London, Drury Lane, November 28, 1764.

LONGE 26

The captive, a comic opera; as it is perform'd at the Theatre-Royal in the Hay-Market.

London, W. Griffin, 1769. vi, [2], 23 p. 19½^{cm}.

Two acts. Cast and prefatory note, with remark:

"The dialogue of this trifle is taken [by Isaac Bickerstaffe?], with some alterations, from a play of Dryden's [Don Sebastian] . . . The songs . . . have been selected with great care . . ."

This is followed by a "Table of the songs, with the composers' names:" Ciampi, Cocchi, Duni, Galuppi, Perez, Vento, Vinci, and Charles Dibdin, who composed for the piece the songs, "Ah, how sweet the rural scene," "Poor panting heart," "In emblem I am like a cat," "But pr'ythee spare me," and "Now, now, my fairest, let us go."

First performed 1769, as indicated.

LONGE 37

The captive of Spilburg. In two acts, as performed at the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, altered from the favourite French drama called Le Souterrain, with a preface by the translator. The music by Dusseck . . .

London, Machell Stace and J. Hatchard, 1799. x, 46 p. 21^{cm}.

Last page numbered 47 by mistake. Cast, dedication, and preface, with sensible remarks on the difficulties of a librettist, as, for instance:

"The principal alteration consists in the airs, which, when new music is to be composed, it is seldom of any advantage to translate."

This translation of Marsollier's "Camille, ou, Le souterrain" is generally attributed to Prince Hoare.

First performed November 14, 1798.

LONGE 249

Caractacus, a dramatic poem: written on the model of the ancient Greek tragedy. By the author of Elfrida . . . The second edition.

London, J. Knapton and R. and J. Dodsley, 1759. vii, [1], 96 p. 19^{cm}.

Dedication by the author, William Mason, dated March 20, 1759. Not this, but the following dramatized version was composed by Thomas Augustine Arne and first performed at Covent Garden, December 6 (not December 1) 1776. (The anonymous "Caractacus" music generally attributed to Arne, is certainly not his work.)

— Caractacus. A dramatic poem. Written on the model of the ancient Greek tragedy. First published in the year 1759, and now altered for theatrical representation. By W. Mason . . .

York, Printed by A. Ward, and sold by R. Horsfield and J. Dodsley, in London, 1777. 4 p. l., 76 p. 19½^{cm}.

Five acts. Cast, author's dedicatory poem dated Aston, Nov. 12, 1776, and "Letter to Thomas Harris, Esq.," the manager, dated September 10, 1776, in which Mason appreciates Harris' "very fair and candid behaviour towards me, in not only asking my permission to bring Caractacus upon the stage, but in thinking me capable of making the alterations in it."

Mason continues:

"As I have endeavoured, in fitting it for the stage, not to leave it totally unfit for the closet, I suspect it may still be too long for representation. If, therefore, upon rehearsal with the music, you should find this to be the case, I will send you a second copy, in which several other lines and passages shall be mark'd with inverted commas, which you may either omit, or retain, as shall then seem expedient. But, if I print the tragedy, these passages will not be so marked, for the above reason . . ."

It should be noted, that this York edition of the text appeared later than the libretto printed for the performances. Arne is not mentioned by Mason.

Three acts. By cardinal Pietro Ottoboni himself, with "notizia istorica," resp. "avertissement historique," scenario, and name of the composer, Giovanni Costanzi. The sixty-two plates were designed by cav. Niccolò Michetti and engraved by different artists. They represent the scenes of the opera as arranged by Michetti. The engr. front., not numb. as a pl., also by Michetti, is interesting as it contains a picture of the opera orchestra of the time with two cembalists and ten other players. On p. 61-64 the text of the "Machina che termina il dramma," a kind of licenza.

First performed at Rome, Palazzo Ottoboni, October, 1729.

Castore e Polluce. Tragedia lirica in tre atti da rappresentarsi in Monaco nel Nuovo Teatro di Corte . . . nel carnevale dell' anno MDCCLXXXVIII.

n. i., 1788. 85 p. 15½^{cm}.

Argument, cast, scenario, and name of Georg Joseph Vogler as the composer.

A note on p. [8] says:

"Questa tragedia lirica per comodo del Teatro, e servizio della musica da cinque, che era prima a Parigi è stata ridotta in tre atti."

The explanation of this somewhat misleading note is that Carlo Innocente Frugoni translated Pierre Joseph Justin Bernard's five-act "Castor et Pollux," as composed, for instance, by Rameau, into Italian. Georg Joseph Vogler, who is mentioned as the composer, then reduced Frugoni's five-act Italian version to three acts, in which form the opera was first performed at Munich on January 12, 1787.

"Questa favola descritta nel poema del cavalier Marino à voi s'appresenta sparsa di pensieri, e ripiena d'affetti; alterato però con inventioni dal Signor Ottavio Tronsarelli e ristretta nel termine d'un giro di Sole; tra lo spatio di brevissimi giorni composta, e con non minore velocità di tempo d'alcune machine abbellita, e mirabilmente rappresentata nel palazzo dell' Illustrissimo Sig. [Lisbona], Stamperia reale, n. d. 76 p. 15½^{cm}.

Three acts. Argument, cast and names of Giovacchini Pizzi as the author, of Antonio Sacchini as the composer.

First performed at Rome, Teatro di Torre Argentina, carnival 1769. Wotquenne (Brussels catalogue) speaks of a "Chimena," first performed at Rome in 1762 but such a work is not recorded by Schatz.

SCHATZ 9223

— Il Cid, an opera; as performed at the King's Theatre in the Haymarket. The music by Signor Antonio Sacchini, a Neapolitan composer. The poetry by Giovan Gualberto Bottarelli. The translation by Botarelli, jun. . . .

London, W. Griffin, 1773. VIII, 47, [1] p. 19^{cm}.

Three acts. The VIII p. contain a dedication by the author, to the count de Lauraguais, dated London, January 14, 1773, just as flattering to the recipient as to Sacchini and the danseuse Heinel. This is followed by a rather self-adulatory letter sent by the count de Lauraguais to Bottarelli in response to one from this gentleman. It is dated Brompton, January 15, 1773, and in it the count says:

"car lorsque Shakespear étoit barbare et sublime, tout le reste l'étoit barbare et ridicule. J'ai bâti le théâtre que les gens de goût desiroient depuis long-tems. Si c'est le motif du tribut que vous me rendez, il est raisonnable."

In his notice to the reader Bottarelli says "that no longer than five weeks were employed in the composing of this piece," meaning of course, his "composing" not the composition of Sacchini in which part of the original 1769 score was used. Not the same as Pizzi's text.

First performed as indicated in January 1773.

Milano, Gio. Batista Bianchi, n. d. 76 p. 15½^{cm}.

Two acts. Impresario's dedication dated Milan, October 16, 1790, cast, scenario and name of Antonio Salieri as the composer. The text was by Giuseppe Petrosellini, with alterations by Lorenzo da Ponte, neither of whom is mentioned. With the opera was performed Pietro Angiolini's ballo eroico "Rinaldo e Armida," the composer of the music not being mentioned.

First performed at Vienna, Hoftheater, December 11, 1789, as "La dama pastorella", at Rome, Teatro Valle, carnival 1780.

Il Cinese rimpatriato.

Intermezzo by Giuseppe Sellitti, first performed at Paris, June 19, 1753.

Libretto not in L. of C.

According to de La Laurencie in S. I. M. 1912, nos. 7/8, p. 14 "Il Cinese rimpatriato" was given with an overture by Jommelli and contained among others the arias "Mi sta d'incanto," "Già colmo di piacere," "Io sono una donzella" and "Zerbinetti d'oggi." "

Paris, Duchesne, 1754. 48 p. 21^{cm}.

Parodied from Sellitti's "Il Cinese rimpatriato."

On p. 33-48, the melodies of the three "Ariettes" and the Duo, "L'amour d'un trait vainqueur." Of these "Petits maitres sans cervelle" was the same as Sellitti's "Zerbinetti d'oggi." The "Airs" are indicated by title or first words. SCHATZ 9828 — Les Chinois, comédie en un act, en vers, meslée d'ariettes; parodie del Cinese: représentée pour la première fois par les Comédiens italiens ordinaires du roi, le 18 mars 1756. Nouvelle édition.

Paris, N. B. Duchesne, 1759. 80 p. 19^{cm}. (Theatre de M. Favart, Paris, Duchesne, 1763-77, t. iii.)

Cast. On p. [40], a "Catalogue de musiques nouvelles relatives aux pieces de théâtres, & autres." On p. 41-80, eleven "Ariettes du Chinois, intermede."

The text was not wholly by Favart. He wrote it "avec M. Naigeon, 1756," as appears from p. xix of the preface of the first volume of his "Theatre." As the text gives the source of most of the ariettes, we know that the music of "Je vais, grace à ma fille" was the same as of "Già colmo di piacer," in Sellitti's "Cinese," likewise of "Que je baise cette main" (= "Zerbinetti d'oggi"), and of "Avec adresse, a ta maîtresse" (= "Mi stà d'accanto") and that "Qu'une fête pour ce soir" (= "Questo ioglio"), and "Qu'il tombe qu'il meure" (= "Lo voglio scannare") are from Pergolesi's Tracollo. "Ma fille, ma chere fille" has been identified by Wotquenne as "Ricerca il caro bene" in Cocchi's "La scaltra governatrice," and "Sous votre empire" as "Non son piccina" in the same opera. "Il m'a démis l'alouette" is a vaudeville. The final chorus "Epouse aimante" and the air "Son coeur d'abord palpité" (= Mh'a detto la mia mama) have not been identified by Wotquenne.

The reader is told:

“Questo drama ha sortito i suoi natali in Napoli, sotto felice influxo di servire alle scene di Venetia: mà quando egli s'è ritrovato di qui s'avvide, che non haveva adobbi all' uso di questa città. La differenza del costume l'haveva, sì nelle parole, come nel soggetto, allevato, con maniere differenti dal genio Veneto delicatissimo in ogni sentimento: l'hà preveduto la virtù, e la prudenza dell' autore, che gli fù padre, onde hà concessa facoltà di regolarlo, accrescerlo, e sminuirlo . . . Le mutationi, che egli hà fatte nel soggetto poco rileva, che si sappiano; basta che sono state approvate, e conosciute necessarie per seguire lo stile delle nostre scene. Molti sono li versi mutati, mà ritenuto il concetto, che vi era prima, e questi non importa il conoscerli. Li altri, che vedrai segnati nel margine con questo segno „, sono quelli che intieramente sono stati aggiunti, sì come anco il prologo è d'invenzione di questo soggetto già qualche tempo discorsa anco dà lui à qualche suo confidente: e hora gli hà fatta la poesia . . . Per ispiegarti la fretta, con che egli hà composto, basta che io ti giuri, che in due soli giorni hà aggiustato il terzo atto, e fattivi li versi, che in quello vedi segnati „, come ti hò già detto; havendo variato anco l'ordine del soggetto, ch'è molto differente dà quello che era prima. Egli però protesta, e si dichiara, che queste mutazioni, sì come le hà fatte con permissione dell' autore del drama, così ha mutato non per migliorare, mà per accomodarsi al costume. A tutti li versi aggiunti, ò mutati hà fatta la musica il Signor Francesco Cavalli Apollo dell' armonia: ti direi i luochi particolari dove la sentirai, mà basta, che l'ascolti, che senza altra notitia la riconoscerai, per l'esperienza della sua isquisitezza . . .”

Three acts, with prologue. Scenario, argument, publisher's note to the reader, and his dedication, dated Venice, February 4, 1665.

The reader is informed:

“Torna di nuovo questo drama à ricalcar le scene del famosissimo Theatro Grimani, dove prima fece pompa de suoi splendori . . . lo troverai fecondato di nuove ariette, per meglio compiacerti. A queste hà fatta la musica il virtuosissimo Signor Andrea Mattioli mastro di capella dell' A. Sereniss. di Mantoa, che già famoso per molte compositioni arricchite in altre città col freggio delle sue note, doppo l'haverti fatta ammirar nel Perseo la sua virtù, è stato anco pregato ad illustrar con queste gioie il presente drama per fartelo con nuove gemme comparir più pomposo . . .”

As the text is practically the same as in the 1654 ed., this can mean only that music by Mattioli was substituted for some of Cavalli's arias.

Cleonice. Drama per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro di Sant' Angelo il carnevale dell' anno 1740 . . .

Venezia, Marino Rosetti, 1740. 48 p. 25^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication signed by Bartolomeo Vitturi, argument, cast, scenario, name of Hasse as the composer, and notice to the reader:

"La presente drammatica composizione è del celebre Sig. abate Pietro Metastasio . . . ma poi ridotta all' uso de' nostri teatri. Ora nuovamente si riproduce sovra le pubbliche scene, ma abbreviata di molto per adattarla, quanto fosse possibile, a chi la deve rappresentare; o se qualch' una delle arie non corrisponde totalmente alle scene, ciò nasce per esser stato in arbitrio dei musici di [?] a piacere, a cagione della ristrettezza del tempo . . ."

The alterations presumably were made by the librettist Vitturi. According to Schatz "Cleonice" is but a replica of Hasse's "Demetrio" of 1732 and was first performed at Vienna, Hoftheater, February, 1734. Mennicke says (p. 510):

"Diese erste fassung [of "Demetrio"] wurde auch unter dem titel "Cleonice" 1733 in Wien gegeben; dagegen wurde 1739 in Wien Hasses komposition mit eingelegten arien anderer komponisten wieder als Il Demetrio gegeben; auch Metastasio's Textbuch dieser neuen gestalt des musikalischen teils hat "varianti." Diese neuere fassung gab man auch 1739 in Neapel."

Cleonice—Continued.

I prefer to let this Cleonice of Venice, 1740, stand under its own title, because the connection of the "Cleonice" text with that of "Demetrio" is so very slight. True, scenes I, 10, I, 11, I, 12, start out like I, 13, I, 14, and I 15, in Metastasio's "Demetrio," but they remain alike only for a few lines, and this is also true of a few other such scenes. Furthermore, the arias in such scenes have become different. "Amo te sola" (I, 11) having taken the place, for instance, of "Dal suo gentil semblante" (I, 14). And this aria, "Amo te sola," is from Metastasio's "Clemenza di Tito," just as "E vero che oppresso" (III, 2) is not from his "Demetrio" but from his "Adriano in Siria." The fact is, that very little of the dialogue and very few more arias except "Ogni procolla infida," will be found in "Demetrio." Most of the arias, indeed, are not by Metastasio at all, and the very few, that are, have been selected from his different works. Since it is known that Hasse was in Venice during the carnival of 1740, it stands to reason that he superintended the performance of the opera and composed anew whatever had to be composed for this decimated version of "Demetrio."

Three acts. Text a pasticcio by author-compiler unknown to Schatz. English translation faces Italian. Argument, cast and note "The music by several celebrated masters." From Bremner's "Favourite songs" we know that the aria "Se più il mio core" (I, 10) was composed by Felice Giardini as also "Non so dir se pensia" (II 9 words from Metastasio's "Isola disabitata") and "Quel labbro adorato" (III, 9, words from Metastasio's "Demetrio") was composed by Galuppi. "Io so qual pena" (words from Metastasio's "Demetrio") composed by Giardini and the duet "Tu parti mio," composed by Bertoni, do not figure in the libretto!

First performed as indicated, November 26, 1763.

The [5] p. contain booklists by J. Tonson and J. Darby.

The three parts are paged consecutively.

First part: Five acts. Dedication, prologue, epilogue, cast.

Second part: Five acts. Dedication, preface, prologue, epilogue, and cast. In his preface Thomas Durfey takes issue with his critics, praises certain performers, and says:

“The rest of the characters in both the parts were likewise extremely well performed, in which I had as much justice done me as I could expect; nor was the musical part less commendable, the words everywhere being the best of mine in that kind: and if in the whole, they could draw such audiences for so long time, in such violent hot weather, I shall not despair, that when the season is more temperate, to see at their next representation, a great deal of good company. I have printed some scenes both in the first and second parts, which were leit out in the acting—the play and the musick being too long; and I doubt not but they will divert in the reading, because very proper for the connexion . . .”

Third part: Dedication, prologue, epilogue, cast, and preface, in which Durfey defends himself against the critics of “some little distant obscenities and double entendres” in his piece, etc., tries to explain its “miscarriage” by the “accidents happening in the presentment,” and says:

“The songish part which I used to succeed so well in, by the indifferent performance the first day, and the hurrying it on so soon, being straitned in time thro’ ill management—(tho’ extremely well set to musick, and I’m sure the just critick will not say ill writ) yet being imperfectly performed, was consequently not pleasing, and the dances too, for want of some good performers, also disliked: all which, tho’ impossible for me to avoid, and not unreasonably to be attributed any way to a fault in me, yet the noisy party endeavoured to use me as ill as if it were, till the generous opposition of my friends gave me as much reason to thank them for their justice, as to despise the others malice . . .”

Whereas the score printed simultaneously with the performances in 1694 and 1696 (third part) says, “sett by the most eminent masters of the age” (parts I–II), and (part III) “being the last piece set to musick by the late famous Mr. Henry Purcell: and by Mr. Courtville [Raphaël Courteville], Mr. [Samuel] Akeroyd, and other eminent masters of the age [John Eccles, colonel Pack, Morgan],” the libretto does not even mention Purcell.

— Comus. A mask. By John Milton. Adapted for theatrical representation, as performed first at the Theatre-Royal, Covent-Garden, in the year 1744. Regulated from the prompt-book . . .

London, John Bell, 1791. front., 1 p. l., xii, [3], 16–66, [2] p. 15^{cm}. (J. Bell, British Theatre, London, 1791–97, v. 2.)

The front. represents Miss Storace as Euphrosine in the opera, and is dated January 31, 1791. The 1 p. l. is an added engraved title page, with a scene from the opera, and is dated September 20, 1790.

Three acts, prologue, and epilogue. Biographical sketch of Milton, preface, editorial comment, reading, in part:

"Comus, as it is here given, is an adaptation to the modern stage—by the retrenchment of much dialogue, and the addition of many airs.—That the poetry of this beautiful piece suffers by a modern hand can be little doubted. Veneration for the author might wish it in the original state; but a dramatic exhibition must please to be repeated—the aim should be to venture as little innovation as possible. The music of Arne, in the modern Comus, is well known; it is as intelligent as modern music can be . . ."

In the preface we read:

"In the year 1774 [? 1772] it was abridged, and has ever since been performed as an afterpiece at the Theater-Royal in Covent-Garden . . ."

Though in parts a trifle shorter than in the 1738 ed., the text is not George Colman's abridged two-act version, but that of Dalton.

In a prefatory note we are told that certain noblemen wished to honor "Cardinal Caraffa, dignissimo Legato di questa città" with an

"Accademia di belle lettere, accompagnandola con l'armonia della musica. E perche fù mai sempre opinione, che non possa darsi un vero seguace della virtù, che non habbia prima dal petto esigliato Amore, venne giudicato proporre ciò per problema. Così sù la sera delli 29 del corrente doppo essersi radunati nella sala dell' Ercole del Palazzo publico li SS. Cardinal Legato . . . ciascuno de quali dopo essersi posti ne proprij luoghi à sedere, al suono d'una bellissima sinfonia di varij stromenti musicali, si diede principio . . ."

This is followed by another note in which "Gio. Paolo Colonna organista in S. Petronio" is mentioned as the composer. As Colonna was appointed to this position in 1659 and became the choirmaster on Nov. 1, 1674, the date of this scenic "problema" is at least approximately fixed. Cora. Ein singspiel [vignette].

Leipzig, Dykische buchhandlung, 1781. 5 p. l., 75 p. [1] p. errata. 19^{cm}.

On last p. l.:

"Nach schwedischem text: Der musik, welche herr Naumann, churfürstl. sächsischer wirklicher kapellmeister zu Dresden, in Schweden für das königliche Theater komponirt hat, untergelegt."

This note refers to Gudmund Göran Adlerbeth's text, "Cora och Alonzo" (based on Marmontel's "Les Incas ou La destruction de l'empire du Pérou"), and its setting by Naumann for the inauguration of the Royal Operahouse, Stockholm, September 30, 1782.

The p. l. contain a preface signed by the author of the German text [Johann Leopold] N[eu]m[an]n and dated "Bl—[ase]witz, den 26 sten august 1780." It is addressed to the composer, and is about as adulatory as possible. Neumann says, for instance:

"Ueberall, wo sanfte herzen schlagen, segne man Ihren namen: wo die toukunst tempel hat, stehe Ihr denkmal bey Händel und Marcello!"

The only remark historically important is this:

"Sie wissen, mein theurester freund, wie fest ich's beschlossen hatte, meinen deutschen text su Ihrer Cora schlechterdings nie von Ihren noten su trennen, und öffentlich einzeln abdrucken zu lassen, weil ich vollkommen überzuegt bin, dass dieser text alles, was er seyn kann, lediglich durch Ihre komposition, ohne Ihre musik aber, als ein auch zum lesen bestimmtes poetisches produkt, dem publikum nie interessant seyn könnte. Die vorstellungen einiger freunde Ihrer Cora, dass der einzeln gedruckte text das singen aus dem klavierausage, wenn zumal bey den chören mehrere personen aus einem exemplare singen sollten, nicht nur erleichtem, sondern auch sogar dabey unentbehrlich seyn würde, haben mich endlich überredet, meinen vorsatz su ändern . . ."

The German version was first performed at Schwedt (Brunswick), Hoftheater, Sept. 20, 1786; previously at a concert, Dresden, Hotel de Pologne, March 15, 1780.

In it Branchi calls his pastoral comedy "L'amorosa innocenza" and the present intermezzi:

"opere d'un vostro sudditto, e divoto servidore, le quali per la stanchezza de' miei pensieri sepolte nell' oblio, non potevano più risorgere, se non col vostro benigno e potète favore, comparendo, come fanno, con tanta splendidezza sopra il Teatro solito del Salone . . ."

This somewhat mysterious statement is easily explained, since comparison proved the present text to be practically identical with that of his "Coronatione d'Apollo. Per Dafne convertita in Lauro. Balletto in musica," which formed part of his "Trattenimento musicale d'Apollo con il Reno," Bologna. Moscatelli, 1621 (ML 52.2.T7), performed "nelle nozze sontuose" of count Federico Rossi di S. Secondo and Donna Orsina Pepoli. The text was then simply in six scenes ("Uscita" 1-6) and in the sixth Apollo addressed about two pages to the bride and groom beginning with the line "Da te mi parto, o generoso heroe." In the 1623 edition the text is divided into four "intermezzi" with nine scenes, the first "uscita" of each intermezzo being preceded by a "sinfonia" as also the second "uscita" of the third and the third "uscita" of the fourth intermezzo. The text calls this last "Settima sinfonia. In cielo," but actually allusion is made only to six sinfonies. Apollo's compliments to the count and countess Rossi have been dropped (the line "Ogni parte miglior de la mia vita" being followed immediately by "Belle Naiadivezzose") but the 1623 version did not end with the line "E del bel lauro il pregio ogn'hor s'avviva." Instead, "La fama. Volando per aria in diversa maniera" sings after that "Felsina, tù vedesti," etc.

Paris, Merigot jeune, 1770. 36 p. 19^{cm}.

On p. 29-36 the "Airs": "Se peut-il que l'on propose" (I, 1), "Je suis un officier nouveau" (I, 3), "La reine des fleurs" (I, 3), "L'autre jour à coups de pomme" (I, 6), and the vaudeville "Je suis le seigneur du village" (II, 4).

The text is preceded by an "Explication du sujet" with this remark:

"Il y a plus de trois ans que les paroles & la musique de la piece suivante sont faites. Trop éloigné de la Capitale pour en demander la réception au Théâtre Italien, je me suis trouvé prévenu par M. Favart, qui a saisi ce sujet sous le même point de vue que moi, lorsque j'ai été à même de le faire; je sais à combien de titres il mérite la préférence; mais comme les personnes mêmes qui la lui ont accordée m'ont dit que ma piece, à bien des égards, n'étoit pas inférieure à la sienne, j'ai cru pouvoir la mettre sous les yeux du public, non pour entrer en concurrence avec M. Favart, mais pour étendre davantage, s'il est possible, la renommée d'une institution qu'on ne sauroit trop faire connoître.

On 2d p. l. "A table of airs in the opera," verso "Dramatis personae" printed by mistake between p. 2 and 3. This is identical with "The court medley," as comparison proved, except for the addition of three scenes after the words "with your Highness's kind offer" the rest of the sentence and song to air xxx, "My time, O ye Muses," being dropped. The additional scenes contain four songs to airs 30, "Since all the world's turn'd," 31 to 33 (airs not indicated). The "table of airs" however, lists the 30 airs as in "the Court medley" table! La coronatione d'Apollo per Dafne conversa in Lauro, intermezzi in musica del Sig. Silvestro Branchi, Academico Ravvivato, detto il Costante, per la sua opera intitolata, l'Amorosa innocenza, recitata nel Salone. A' gl'illustriss. Signori li Signori Fabio Gozadini confaloniero [etc, etc] dignissimi Antiani per il primo bimestre dell' anno 1623. Il compositore della musica è il Signor Ottavio Vernizzi.

Bologna, per gli eredi di Gio. Paolo Moscatelli, 1623. Unpaged. 14½ cm.

Four intermezzi, preceded by the author's dedication to the gentlemen mentioned in the title, evidently his patrons. It is dated February 1, 1623.

In it Branchi calls his pastoral comedy "L'amorosa innocenza" and the present intermezzi:

"opere d'un vostro sudditto, e divoto servidore, le quali per la stanchezza de' miei pensieri sepolte nell' oblio, non potevano più risorgere, se non col vostro benigno e potète favore, comparendo, come fanno, con tanta splendidezza sopra il Teatro solito del Salone . . ."

This somewhat mysterious statement is easily explained, since comparison proved the present text to be practically identical with that of his "Coronatione d'Apollo. Per Dafne convertita in Lauro. Balletto in musica," which formed part of his "Trattenimento musicale d'Apollo con il Reno," Bologna. Moscatelli, 1621 (ML 52.2.T7), performed "nelle nozze sontuose" of count Federico Rossi di S. Secondo and Donna Orsina Pepoli. The text was then simply in six scenes ("Uscita" 1-6) and in the sixth Apollo addressed about two pages to the bride and groom beginning with the line "Da te mi parto, o generoso heroe." In the 1623 edition the text is divided into four "intermezzi" with nine scenes, the first "uscita" of each intermezzo being preceded by a "sinfonia" as also the second "uscita" of the third and the third "uscita" of the fourth intermezzo. The text calls this last "Settima sinfonia. In cielo," but actually allusion is made only to six sinfonies. Apollo's compliments to the count and countess Rossi have been dropped (the line "Ogni parte miglior de la mia vita" being followed immediately by "Belle Naiadivezzose") but the 1623 version did not end with the line "E del bel lauro il pregio ogn'hor s'avviva." Instead, "La fama. Volando per aria in diversa maniera" sings after that "Felsina, tù vedesti," etc.

Printer's sign on recto of last leaf. No dedication, no preface. The two leaves preceding last l. contain a laudatory poem of eight stanzas, to Corsi, beginning:

“Del S. Jacopo Corsi.”

Qual novo altero canto
O Musa, ò Dea mi detta, ond' io risuono
Corsi tuo nobil vanto,
Corsi, che tutti sproni,
E tutti accendi alle virtù celesti,
Mentre primier le belle vie calpesti.”

Strange to say, the chronological history of “Dafne” is still open to conjecture. At least, it has never been told in a manner as to silence criticism and I doubt very much that this can be done at present. Everything depends on a satisfactory interpretation of the strictly contemporary sources, which alone can establish the chronology of this, the first opera.

Before these sources are quoted for analysis, attention may well be called to the customary statement that Rinuccini's “Dafne” is based on his “Combattimento di Apollo col serpente Pitone.” an intermedio performed in 1589 at Florence with Luca Marenzio's music. As a matter of fact, Rinuccini used only one number of this, the madrigal “Ebra di sangue in questo oscuro bosco” for his “Dafne” text.

The earliest document that calls for consideration is Rinuccini's dedicatory preface to his “L'Euridice” text, published in October 1600. In this he says, so far as the chronological history of “Dafne” is involved:

“È stata opinione di molti . . . che gli antichi Greci e Romani cantassero sulle scene le tragedie intere; ma sì nobil maniera di recitare nonchè rinnovata, ma nè pur, che io sappia, fin qui era stata tentata da alcuno, e ciò mi credev'io per difetto della musica moderna, di gran lunga all'antica inferiore. Ma pensiero si fatto mi tolse interamente dall' animo M. Jacopo Peri: quando, udito l'intenzione del Signor Jacopo Corsi e mia, mise con tanta grazia sotto le note la favola di Dafne (composta da me, solo per fare una semplice prova di quello che potesse il canto dell' età nostra) che incredibilmente piacque a quei pochi che l'udirono.

“Ma molto maggior favore e fortuna ha sortito L'Euridice, messa in musica dal medesimo Peri con arte mirabile e da altri non più usata . . .”

It will be noticed that Rinuccini does not mention Giulio Caccini at all, either in connection with “Euridice” or “Dafne.” Caccini, in turn, neither in the dedicatory preface (dated December 20, 1600) of his “Euridice score” (dated 1600 but hardly published before our year 1601) nor in the dedication and preface of his “Le nuove musiche” (published at the earliest in July 1602, since the imprimatur is dated July 1, 1602. The title page is dated 1601 and the dedication February 1, 1601, both times 1601 being the same as 1602, new style) mentions his rival Peri. More singular still, he does not mention “Dafne,” yet in his “Nuove Musiche e nuova maniera di scriverle” of 1614 he says:

“Molti anni avanti che io metessi alcuna delle mie opere di musica per una voce sola alla stampa, se ne eran vedute fuori molte altre mie, fatte in diversi tempi et occasioni, delle quali furono più note la musica che io feci nella favola della Dafne del Sig. Ottavio Rinuccini, rappresentata in casa del Sig. Jacopo Corsi d'onorata memoria, a quest' Altezze Serenissime et altri Principi; ma le prime che io stampassi furon le musiche fatte l'anno 1600 nella favola dell' Euridice, opera del medesimo autore: e furon le prime che si vedesser date in luce in Italia da qualunque compositore di tale stile a una voce sola; diedi appresso fuore l'anno 1601 [!] quelle che io intitolai Le nuove musiche . . .” [for Peri's priority in the use of this famous term see Euridice].

In the preface of his “Euridice” score (dated 1600, but as the dedication is dated February 6, 1600, which is the same as February 6, 1601, new style, the score was published in 1601, new style) Jacopo Peri has this to say:

"Onde fatta udire a quei Signori la mia opinione, dimostrarai loro questo nuovo modo di cantare, e piacerne sommamente, non pure al Signor Jacopo, il quale aveva di già composte arie bellissime per quella favola, ma al Signor Pietro Strozzi, al Signor Francesco Cini, et ad altri molti intendentissimi gentiluomini (chè nella nobiltà fiorisce oggi la musica), come anche a quella famosa, che si può chiamare Euterpe dell' età nostra, la Signora Vittoria Archilei . . . e per tre anni continui che nel carnevale si rappresentò, fu udita con sommo diletto e con applauso universale ricevuta da chiunque vi si ritrovò. Ma ebbe miglior ventura la presente Euridice . . ."

Finally, Marco da Gagliano in the preface of his "Dafne" of 1608 writes:

"Ritrovandomi il carneval passato in Mantova [carnival 1607-8] . . . volle [Vincenzo Gonzaga, duke of Mantova] fra l'altre che si rappresentasse la Dafne del Signor Ottavio Rinuccini da lui con tale occasione accresciuta e abbellita, fui impiegato a metterla in musica: il che io feci nella maniera che ora vi presento . . .

" . . . credo che non sarà disutile, nè lontano dal nostro proposito il ridurvi in memoria come e quando ebbero origine si fatti spettacoli . . ."

"Dopo l'aver più e più volte discorso intorno alla maniera usata dagli antichi in rappresentare le lor tragedie . . . il Sig. Ottavio Rinuccini si diede a compor la favola di Dafne, il Sig. Jacopo Corsi, d'onorata memoria . . . compose alcune arie sopra parte di essa, delle quali invaghitosi, risoluto di vedere che effetto facessero su la scena, conferì insieme col Sig. Ottavio il suo pensiero al Sig. Jacopo Peri, peritissimo nel contrapunto e cantore d'estrema esquisitezza: il quale, udita la loro intenzione e approvato parte dell' arie già composte, si diede a comporre l'altre, che piacquero oltre modo al Sig. Corsi, e con l'occasione d'una veglia il carnevale dell' anno 1597 la fece rappresentare alla presenza dell' eccellentissimo Sig. Don Giovanni Medici e d'alcuni de' principali gentiluomini de la città nostra. Il piacere e lo stupore che partorì negli animi degl' uditori questo nuovo spettacolo non si può esprimere, basta solo che per molte volte ch'ella s'è recitata, ha generato la stessa ammirazione e lo stesso diletto. Per sì fatta prova venuto in cognizione il Sig. Rinuccini quanto fusse atto il canto a esprimere ogni sorta d'affetti, e che non solo (come per avventura per molti si sarebbe creduto) non recava tedio, ma diletto incredibile, compose l'Euridice, allargandosi alquanto più ne' ragionamenti. Uditala poi il Sig. Corsi, e piacutole la favola e lo stile, stabilì di far la comparire in scena nelle nozze della Regina Cristianissima. [Florence, October 6, 1600] Allora ritrovò il Sig. Jacopo Peri quella artificiosa maniera di recitare cantando, che tutta Italia ammira . . ."

Not a word about Caccini's "Euridice," much less about his "Dafne," as if Marco da Gagliano, so liberal in his praise of Peri and Monteverdi, wished to rebuke Caccini for his undeniable tendency to appropriate the priority in all matters bearing on this new art of opera. To quote the later accounts of Vitali, Giustiniani, Bonini, Bardi, della Valle, Doni, would serve no useful purpose. They add either nothing new or by combining hear-say with deductions from earlier printed accounts, they partake of the character of secondary sources and merely help to confuse matters.

All these accounts have been made conveniently accessible by Solerti in his book "Le origini del melodramma." My arguments are based on this and on data in Solerti's more historical book "Gli albori del melodramma." Also his book "Musica, ballo e drammatica alla corte Medicea dal 1600 al 1640" was helpful, but I regret that Solerti was not always at his best in dissecting for reconstructive purposes the mass of contemporary data so patiently unearthed by him, since he utilized them for some rather loose and contradictory statements in his second work mentioned above.

The only definite date of performance is given by Marco da Gagliano. He says that Jacopo Corsi during carnival of 1597 had Peri's "Dafne" performed in the presence of Giovanni Medici and some of the principal gentlemen of Florence. He does not specifically state that the performance took place at Corsi's palace nor that it was the first performance but it is only reasonable to interpret his remarks to that effect. Marco da Gagliano does not say, as one sometimes find stated, that he was present. Being in Florence at the time as a rising student of composition under Bati, he either based his account on personal experience or on contemporary local reports. At any rate, his account carries with it considerable weight.

Rinuccini does not mention a date of performance. He merely says that Peri's "Dafne" was performed before a few enthusiastic listeners and later in an improved form of the text at Corsi's palace before a large audience of Florentine noblemen, the Grand Duchess and the cardinals Del Monte and Montalto.

The presence of both these cardinals furnishes the pivotal clue. We know from the "Storia d'Etichetta" (a record of events at court by the master of ceremonies) that they actually attended on January 21, 1599, a performance of "Dafne" thoughne, not at Corsi's palace but at court, at the Palazzo Pitti "nella sala delle statue," the same hall in which "Euridice" was first produced one year later, on October 6, 1600. This apparent contradiction between Rinuccini and the "Storia d'Etichetta" would be a barrier to further deductions, but fortunately the household accounts of Corsi's wife are preserved and therein we find under date of January 18, 1599, the entry of a certain sum "a Romolo [spenditore] per ispeze fatte nei giorni che s'è fatto la comedia" and under April 23 a similar entry. This last entry may refer to expenditures of the Corsis for the Palazzo Pitti performance of "Dafne" but this inference is not at all obligatory. Also Signora Corsi may have made her entry for January 18 several days later but, in the absence of proof, we are justified in following the lines of least resistance and in assuming that she made her entry of January 18 for expenses incurred by a performance of "Dafne" at the latest on January 18, 1599. Since such a performance is not recorded in the "Storia d'Etichetta" it would follow that it took place at Corsi's palace, if at all, and not at court. Therewith we have a loophole for reading into Rinuccini's account that "Dafne" was performed at Corsi's palace not later than January 18, 1599, in the presence of the two cardinals who were in the city as early as January 5, 1599.*

Peri's account, at first reading, appears to be clear and definite, but, on the contrary, it is misleading. In first place, he either meant that Corsi and Rinuccini "fin l'anno 1594" requested him to compose "Dafne" or that at the request of these two gentlemen he composed "Dafne" "fin l'anno 1594." At any rate, he does not say, though that is now commonly taught, that "Dafne" was performed in 1594. Even if the second interpretation of his ambiguous statement is accepted, it is clear that after "Dafne" was composed "fin l'anno 1594," it must have consumed time to prepare and rehearse the work for performance. This necessarily narrows the margin of the year 1594 still more. Now, according to modern Gregorian chronology, the last months of the old Julian Florentine year 1594 coincide with the first months of our year 1595. Consequently we are practically obliged to look to the first months of our year 1595 as the earliest possible date of performance of "Dafne," even if Peri with his words "fin l'anno 1594" intended a reference to the first performance of his "Dafne."

Peri does not say where "Dafne" was performed. On the other hand his words, too, leave no doubt that the first performance was witnessed by only comparatively few music lovers. He then explicitly states that the work delighted the hearers "per tre anni continui che nel carnevale si rappresentò." By what turn of reasoning Solerti could interpret this clear-cut statement to mean that "Dafne" was first performed during carnival of 1594/5 and then during the three successive carnivals 1595/6, 1596/7, 1597/8, I am utterly unable to understand. It seems to me that Peri's words bind us to the interpretation that "Dafne" was performed during three successive carnivals inclusive of the first (apparently more or less tentative) performance.

Pietro Bardi, conte di Vernio, who was an eye and ear witness, said in 1634 of this performance:

* The question suggests itself: Were perhaps these cardinals in each other's company in Florence at some earlier date, which would help to establish the correct chronology of "Dafne"? Alessandro Guidotti says in his dedication of the score of Emilio de' Cavalieri's "Rappresentatione di anima et di corpo" (Roma, Nicolo Mutii MDC): "... nel 1595 il Giuoco della cieca alla presenza de gl'illustrissimi cardinali Monte, e Mont' Alto, e del Sereniss. arciduca Ferdinando."

This is corroborated by a letter written on November 14, 1595, from Florence by Piermaria Cecehimi to Giov. Battista Laderchi, secretary of the duke of Ferrara. These two documents offset any argument that may be derived from the fact that neither the "Storia d'Etichetta" nor Settimani in his diary mention the presence of the cardinal del Monte when speaking of the performance of Cavalieri's "Il Giuoco della cieca" at the Palazzo Pitti on October 29, 1595. On the other hand, in none of the various sources is any allusion whatsoever made to a performance of "Dafne" in October 1595 at the Corsi palace in the presence of these two cardinals. Nor is this surprising, since the first performance of "Dafne," according to both Peri and Marco da Gagliano, took place during carnival, whatever the year of first performance may have been. There appears to be no record of both cardinals mentioned being in Florence at the same time except in October 1595 and during carnival 1599.

Of course, there always remains the possibility of a misprint in either Peri's 1594 or Marco da Gagliano's 1597. However, we are not justified in assuming a misprint—which, by the way, so far as I can see, would not simplify matters—until circumstantial or direct evidence obliges us to do so.

"La prima poesia, che in istile rappresentativo fosse cantata in palco, fu la Favola di Dafne del Signor Ottavio Rinuccini, messa in musica dal Peri con poco numero di suoni, con brevità di scene, e in piccola stanza recitata, e privatamente cantata, e io restai stupido per la meraviglia."

Of a "Dafne" by Caccini not a word is said, though Bardi's hereditary interest in Caccini was pronounced.

Carnival began in Florence like in other Italian cities end of December. This would imply that Peri's "Dafne" was first performed in 1595 during carnival, repeated during carnival 1595/6 and again repeated during carnival 1596/7 or, if we adhere to Marco da Gagliano's date of carnival 1597 as that of the first performance, that "Dafne" was first performed during carnival 1597, repeated during carnival 1597/8 and again repeated during carnival 1598/99.

If we accept the first alternative, then neither Solerti's nor my interpretation of the meaning of "tre anni continui" could possibly carry us down to the performance or performances in January, i. e. carnival, 1599, at which the two cardinals undoubtedly were present. It would imply that Peri observed silence on the most conspicuous performance of his "Dafne" recorded. That is hardly credible.

If we accept Marco da Gagliano's carnival 1597 as the date of the first performance and further accept my conjecture that the Palazzo Pitti performance of January 21, 1599, was preceded by a performance at Corsi's palace not later than January 18, 1599, before the same two cardinals, then the contradictions between the contemporary reports would seem to vanish.

This theory that "Dafne" was first performed in carnival 1597 seems to be weakened by the long interval between "fin l'anno 1594" the earliest possible date of composition and carnival 1597, the deducted date of first performance. True, but we have seen that it is not at all necessary to argue that Peri composed "Dafne" "fin l'anno 1594" (which may mean January, February, even March of our 1595). If "fin l'anno 1594" he merely was requested by Corsi and Rinuccini to try his hand at an operatic setting of "Dafne," then it stands to reason, as this was a venture into a virgin field of composition, that Peri did not go about his task in a hurry. Indeed his words "onde fatta udire a quei Signori la mia openione" would seem to imply preliminary deliberation and tests before he demonstrated to them "questo nuovo modo di cantare" and the actual composition of such "nuove musiche," as Peri—prior to Caccini—called them in the dedication of his "Euridice" score, with such a raffinement of careful attention to the setting of the verses as Riemann has revealed to us lately, presumably at that stage of the operatic game was not a matter of just a few days. Furthermore, if the work was first performed during carnival 1597, rehearsals, etc., must have preceded the performance so that after all the interval between "fin l'anno 1594" and carnival 1597 is narrowed perceptibly.

Finally, the acceptance of carnival 1597 as the date of first performance would explain readily why Peri, who certainly was not a seeker after priority, while insisting on his own different manner of procedure, in his "Euridice" preface, should so unreservedly have credited Emilio de' Cavalieri with the priority of making heard "la nostra musica sulle scene." If Peri's "Dafne" had been composed "fin l'anno 1594" and performed early in 1595, this tribute to Emilio de' Cavalieri would be just a trifle too liberal. On the other hand, if Peri's "Dafne" was not performed until carnival 1597, then Peri's tribute would be entirely plausible and justified, since Emilio de' Cavalieri created somewhat of a sensation with his scenic musical pastoral "Il Giuoco della cieca," performed on October 29, 1595, at the Palazzo Pitti in continuation of his pastoral experiments "Il satiro" and "Disperazione di Fileno," both of the year 1590 and the texts of all three by Laura Guidiccioni.

Without claiming to have unravelled the knotty problem, I believe the chronological history of "Dafne" to be about about as follows:

Not later than "fin l'anno 1594" Rinuccini's "Dafne" text was ready in its original form for a composer. Not earlier than "fin l'anno 1594" Peri began to compose it. The first performance took place before a small audience of connoisseurs at Corsi's palace during carnival 1597. The work was repeated during carnival 1597/8 at Corsi's palace in the original or in the improved version of which Rinuccini speaks. The work was again repeated, this time surely in the improved version, at Corsi's palace before the two cardinals Del Monte and Montalto not later than January 18 (carnival) 1599 and again, but at the Palazzo Pitti before the same cardinals and a large audience of Florentine nobility, on January 21, 1599.

From the household accounts of Signora Corsi we further know that "Dafne" must again have been performed at the Corsi palace late in August, 1600, and it is perhaps for this performance that the libretto (of course the improved version; the original version is not extant) was printed. It should be noted that Signora Corsi does not mention Peri.

Again "Dafne" was revived on October 26, 1604, at the Palazzo Pitti (not at the Corsi palace, as Gandolfi incorrectly stated) in honor of the duke of Parma. The libretto for this performance (a reissue of the 1600 ed. with new title page and negligible differences. For the differences between the texts of 1600, 1604 and 1608 see 2d vol. of Solerti's "Gli albori del melodrama") exists, whereas no copy of the libretto used for the performance at Mantova in 1608 of Marco da Gagliano's "Dafne" in a further revision of the text by Rinuccini, has been traced. Possibly no such libretto was published. The performance of 1604 is recorded in Tinghi's diary, which forms the substance of Solerti's fascinating book "Musica, ballo e drammatica alla corte Medicea dal 1600 al 1640." It should be noted that Tinghi does not mention a composer.

Whose score was used for these performances of August 1600 and October 26, 1604? Giulio Caccini started on his voyage to France in September 1604. Consequently this fact together with his own statement that his "Dafne" music was performed at Corsi's palace, whereas the 1604 performance occurred at the Palazzo Pitti, excludes Caccini. The probabilities are that Peri's score was used.

That Caccini's "Dafne" music was not used for performance during Peri's "tre anni continui," I think, is a fairly safe hypothesis, especially as Peri does not mention interpolations from a score by Caccini, whereas he did not hesitate to state that some of Caccini's "Euridice" music was used in the first performance of his own "Euridice" on October 6, 1600. That Caccini's "Dafne" music was not drawn upon for the performance on January 21, 1599, is certain, since it did not take place at the Corsi palace but at the Palazzo Pitti.

There remains the performance late in August 1600. To this Peri laid no claim and as no composer is mentioned by Signora Corsi, it is permissible to argue that at least for this performance music by Caccini was used. Permissible but not obligatory, because Caccini's words "la musica che io feci nella favola della Dafne del Sig. Ottavio Rinuccini, rappresentata in casa del Sig. Jacopo Corsi" do not necessarily imply either that he composed the whole text or even that the music composed by him was used in a stage performance of Rinuccini's "Dafne" favola. What makes the use of music by Caccini even in August 1600 doubtful is, that Caccini forgot—and he was not given to forgetting such things—to mention his share in the history of "Dafne" in his "Euridice" preface, though he had ample time to incorporate pertinent remarks therein! For the same psychological reason it is doubtful that "Dafne" music by Caccini was performed at all up to the time that he sent his "Nuove musiche" to the press in 1602, since they, too, fail to mention any music composed by him for Rinuccini's "Dafne"!

On purpose so far nothing has been said about Corsi's "Dafne" music. This much Peri makes perfectly clear, that Jacopo Corsi was the first to compose "Dafne" music and that Corsi had already composed "arie bellissime per quella favola" before he, Peri, undertook to set the "Dafne" text according to his own ideas. Peri's account does not permit us to argue that these arias by Corsi were interpolated for the performances of Peri's score. In view of Peri's silence on this point, the correctness of Marco da Gagliano's statement that Peri "approvato parte dell' arie già composte, si diede a comporre l'altre" which would seem to imply that in carnival 1597 a score was used, largely by Peri, but partly by Corsi, becomes rather doubtful.

A disturbing element is thrown into the chronology of "Dafne" as outlined above by the entry of the "Storia d'Etichetta" for the performance of "Dafne" on January 21, 1599. The "Storia d'etichetta" does not mention Peri, but says "si fece nella sala delle statue la pastorella in musica del Sig. Jacopo Corsi." It is of course possible that Corsi had composed the entire "Dafne" text in the meantime and a literal interpretation of the entry in the "Storia d'etichetta" would therefore mean that a "Dafne" score by Corsi was performed on January 21, 1599. While conceding this possibility, something else must be taken into consideration which weakens this possibility very much.

The courtier diarists do not seem to have taken the trouble to inform themselves about the composers who furnished the music for these court entertainments. Thus the ambassador of Parma wrote to his duke about "Euridice": "si rappresentò in casa del Granduca da un gentiluomo della città la favola di Orfeo et Euridice in versi e sempre in musica, che durò un ora e mezza." Furthermore Tinghi attributed the score of "Euridice" to Emilio de' Cavalieri and just as hazy were Giovanni del Maestro's notions about the composer of "Euridice" when he said in his "Memorie": "dopo desinare si fece una commedia nel Palazzo de' Pitti sul salone di sopra, tutta in musica opera del Signor Jacopo Corsi e materia del Signor Ottavio Rinuccini." The correct state of affairs was, however, recorded by Michelangelo Buonarroti in his official "Descrizione" (1600) of the festivities. Without mentioning Peri or Caccini, he wrote: "la onde avendo il Signor Jacopo Corsi, fatta messere in musica con grande studio la Euridice, affettuosa e gentilissima favola del Signor Ottavio Rinuccini."

Thus, quite in keeping with the ideas of the time, Jacopo Corsi, Maecenas and "Padre" of music (as Marco da Gagliano calls him), was considered to have had a kind of proprietary right as author in the entertainments planned and financed by him for court. It was of no particular interest to courtiers to know the names of professionals engaged to provide the music for entertainments under the auspices of a gentleman like Corsi. Other librettos of the time have come to my notice which bear out this impression. In such cases, as in the case of "Dafne," words like "la pastorella in musica del Sig. Jacopo Corsi" would therefore by no means always signify composed by Corsi, but the "pastorella in musica" which Corsi engaged some musician to compose for entertainments planned by him.

Notwithstanding the plain historical fact of priority—Rinuccini's "premier le belle vie calpesti" is more than a mere poet's compliment—very little interest was taken in Corsi's share in the first opera until, quite accidentally, Miss Hortense Panum, while collecting material for her and Mr. Behrend's history of music, discovered, at the Brussels Conservatory library in 1888, two excerpts from "Dafne" in a collection of (late 16th and early 17th century) monodies, and these excerpts bore the heading, "del S^e Jacopo Corsi." Miss Panum then published these two excerpts (the one Apollo's "Non curi la mia pianta," the other the final chorus, "Bella ninfa fugitiva") in the Musikalisches Wochenblatt, 1888 (y. 19, p. 346-347). This fact was not mentioned by Mr. Wotquenne when he, in 1901, with not quite correct historical notes, published the two Corsi torsi in photographic facsimile on two fly-leaves between p. 46-47 of his "Annexe I" of the "Catalogue de la Bibliothèque du Conservatoire Royal de musique." "Bella ninfa" was also published by Hortense Panum and W. Behrend in their "Illustreret Musikhistorie," 1905 (p. 218-219), and both pieces by Solerti in his "Gli albori del melodramma" (I, Suppl.).

It is one of the caprices of fate, indeed, that the "Dafne" scores of both Peri and Caccini should have been lost, but that music by Jacopo Corsi, who was the first to compose at least parts of Rinuccini's text of this, the first opera, should have been preserved!

Dafni. Favola boschereccia per musica. Da rappresentarsi nel Teatro Malvezzi l'anno MDCXCVI . . .

Bologna, gli eredi del Sarti, n. d. 72 p. 13^{cm}.

Prologue and three acts. Dedication by "Gli Uniti" and notice by the anonymous author, Eustacchio Manfredi, to the reader, beginning:

"Tu leggi in questo piccol volume il drama stesso, che vedrai rappresentare sù queste scene; ne per altro si è dato alle stampe, che per aiutare il tuo orecchio mentre l'udirai a cantare. Voglio dire, che egli non è fatto per leggerlo fuori di questa occasione, e che quando quest' opera sia udita con diletto hà attenuato il suo intento. Siasi ella tragedia, o pastorale, o tragicomedia, o qualsivoglia altro poema, che importa? ella è un divertimento per musica addattato al gusto presente, ed al genio della maggior parte, e però dispensato dalle leggi rigorose della Poetica . . ."

Damon and Phillida. A ballad opera in one act. As it is perform'd at the Theatre-Royal, Drury-Lane, by His Majesty's servants. With the musick prefix'd to each song.

London, Printed for J. and R. Tonson, in the Strand, 1765. 31 p. 19½^{cm}.

Lacks front. On p. [5], a publisher's list.

The 15 airs are mostly printed with their titles.

Schatz says, under "Damon and Phillida:" "Words by Colley Cibber, altered from his pastoral, 'Love in a riddle.' The music partly composed, partly selected out of various ballads and dance tunes, and adapted to the words of the songs by Henry Carey. First acted at the Theatre Royal in Drury Lane, London, 1729." The date of performance and Carey's connection with "Damon and Phillida" may be open to discussion, but it is a fact, as comparison proved, that "Damon and Phillida," both as to characters, words, and the airs used, is kin to Cibber's "Love in a riddle." If Clarence says "entirely taken" therefrom, he seems to be mistaken, but certain parts have been lifted verbatim from "Love in a riddle," for instance, from the air III, "Tell me, Philly, tell me roundly," to air VII, "I'll range around the shady bow'rs." The modus operandi seems to have been to lift the desired scenes out of "Love in a riddle," and to connect them with new dialogue. Whether this condensed version under a new title is due to Cibber himself, I am unable to tell.

Genest says, under Drury Lane, January 7, 1729, when writing of the first performance of Cibber's "new pastoral," "Love in a riddle," on that day:

"not long after, formed the best scenes of 'Love in a riddle' into a musical entertainment—they have been frequently acted as 'Damon and Phillida.'"

The British Museum has the work in the London 1729 edition.

Five acts. By Du Roullet and baron von Tschudi, who are not mentioned. On p. iv, the note: "La musique est de MM. le chevalier Gluck & Salieri." Cast and avertissement, which reads, in part:

"On nous a communiqué un manuscrit de M. de Calzabiggi, auteur de l'Orphée & de l'Alceste italiens, dont nous nous sommes beaucoup aidés. Nous avons emprunté quelques idées du ballet des Danaïdes du célèbre M. Noverre, ce moderne rival des Batilles & des Pilades; nous y avons joint les nôtres, & du tout nous avons composé notre plan.

"Un de nos amis, que sa famille nous a défendu de nommer, a bien voulu, pour accélérer l'ouvrage, mettre en vers une partie de notre composition, & ce n'est pas certainement celle dont le style paraîtra le plus négligé. La mort vient de nous enlever cet excellent homme connu par plusieurs ouvrages en prose & en vers, également estimés."

The work by Calsabigi alluded to is supposed to have been his "Ipermestra o Le Danaïdi." Gluck's name as joint-composer was merely used to help the opera to a success. After twelve performances Gluck notified the public that his collaboration had consisted merely in giving his former pupil, Salieri, expert advice.

Clément and Larousse give April 26, 1784, as the date of first performance. So does Schatz, stating that the date of April 19 in the libretto and in the score is an error.

One act with prologue. Cast and preface, in which the author, Isaac Bickerstaff (not mentioned), says that instead of utilizing the two existing English translations of St. Foix' "Oracle," he thought it "juster to give a more faulty paraphrase of my own.

"With regard to the music, I apprehend it must please; as it has been selected with the greatest attention, both to the beauty of the airs, and its effect upon the theatre. There are, indeed, some people, who may possibly be of opinion, that I ought to have chosen old English and Scotch ballads; or got music composed in the same taste. But, in fact, such sort of compositions scarce deserve the name of music at all; at least they can have little or no merit on the stage, where everything ought to be supported by a degree of action and character."

A pasticcio made up from music by Shalon, Vento, Cocchi, Piccinni, Monsigny. Tuit's statement that James Hook "wrote some of the music" is not borne out by Squire's Brit. Mus. catalogue, which merely shows that later on interpolations by Hook were used.

"Lettor carissimo, se uno tu sei di quegli, a' quali abbia io protestato di non volere quest' anno, e forse mai più comporre de' simili drammi buffi, voglio anche comunicarti la ragione, che ad astenermene mi obbligava, ed i motivi, che mi hanno fatto dal mio proponimento discendere. Il dramma serio per musica, come tu saprai, è un genere di teatrale componimento di sua natura imperfetto, non potendosi osservare in esso veruna di quelle regole, che sono alla tragedia prescritte. Molto più imperfetto il dramma buffo esser dee perchè cercandosi dagli scrittori di tai barzellette servire più alla musica, che a sè medesimi e fondando, o nel ridicolo o nello spettacolo la speranza della riuscita, non badano seriamente alla condotta, ai caratteri, all' intreccio, alla verità, come in una commedia buona dovrebbe farsi. Questa è poi la ragione per cui cotai libretti, che si dicono buffi, rarissime volte incontrano. Io ne ho fatti parecchi, che il Tevermini librajo in Merceria alla Provvidenza ha potuto stamparne quattro tometti in 12. Di questi alcuni hanno avuto fortuna grande, altri mediocre, ed alcuni altri l' hanno sofferta pessima, e questi forse saranno i men cattivi, e più regolati de' primi. L' esito dipende tal' ora dalla musica, per lo più dagli attori, e sovente ancora dalle decorazioni. Il popolo decide a seconda dell' esito, se l' opera è a terra, il libro è pessimo. Se è un poco serio, è cattivo perchè non fa ridere; se è troppo ridicolo è cattivo perchè non vi è nobiltà . . ."

Debora e Sisara. Azione sacra per musica di Carlo Sernicola, P. A. Da rappresentarsi nel Real Teatro di S. Carlo nella quaresima dell' anno 1788 . . .

Napoli, Vincenzo Flauto, 1788. 43 p. 19^{cm}.

Two acts. Impresario's dedication dated Naples, February 10, 1788, argument, scenario, cast, and name of Pietro Guglielmi as the composer. SCHATZ 4241 — Arsinoe e Breno. Dramma serio per musica da rappresentarsi nel Nuovo Teatro della nobiliss. Accademia Intronata di Siena l' estate dell' anno 1790.

Siena, Pazzini Carli, n. d. 40 p. 17½^{cm}.

Two acts. Argument and cast. Comparison proves that Sernicola's text of "Debora e Sisara, azione sacra" was simply, more or less, secularized into a "dramma serio" by an unknown author. For instance, whereas the words of the finale quartett of the first act "Rabbia, furor, dispetto" were retained, the original finale tutti of the second act "Tolse il ciel le nostre pene" has become "Con noi cantino le sfere." Both operas begin "Ah! qual viltade è questa," but after that their texts disagree very much oftener than not. The composer, Pietro Guglielmi, is not mentioned.

A footnote on p. 6 says that the title of the first ballet by Giacomo Gentili would be "La felicità nata dalle sventure" and of the second "Il bottaro." The composers of the music are not mentioned. SCHATZ 4315

Three acts with prologue. The author's dedication is dated January 5, 1644. The composer, Pietro Francesco Cavalli, is not mentioned. SCHATZ 1745

La Delia o sia La sera sposa del sole. Poema drammatico di Giulio Strozzi.

Venizia, Gio. Pietro Pinelli, 1639. 80 p. 13^{cm}.

Three acts. Author's dedication dated Venice, January 20, 1639, argument, allegoria, and notice to the reader which reads in part:

“La musica è sorella di quella poesia, che vuole assorellarsi seco, ma, quando non s’ intendono bene tra di loro, non sono ne attenenti, ne amiche.

“Il canto, che raddolcisce gli animi, riesce in due maniere un’ abborita cantilena, ò quãdo s’ hà da gir dietro alle chimere del poeta, ò quando dileguandosi la parola, ò la finale d’ al cuna voce nell’ ampiezza de’ teatri, smarriscono gli uditori il filo de gli ammassati concetti. . . . Per questo io son ricorso alla stampa, acciò ch’ ella sia la contracrifa di que’ musici, che cantano talhora più volentieri à loro medesimi, ch’ agli ascoltanti”

At the end of the libretto a note informs us that more than three hundred verses were dropped in the performances of the opera. The composer, Francesco Paolo Sacratì, is not mentioned. SCHATZ 9256

Livorno, Antonio Lami e comp., n. d. 62 p. 14½^{cm}.

Two acts. Argument, cast, scenario, and impresario's prefatory note, in which he says:

"si è dovuto mutilare forse troppo quest' opera, e defraudarla di gran parte delle sue bellezze. Il togliere tutti a un tratto gl'inconvenienti, e gli abusi introdotti negli spettacoli teatrali sarebbe cosa troppo pericolosa ad un impresario. Dal canto mio vorrei veder tornare quei tempi in cui il buon senso, il buon gusto, e la proprietà prevalevano al gran spettacolo: vorrei che un drama di celebre autore facesse gustare tutt' i meriti suoi, e che una rappresentazione non si riducesse ad una Accademia di canto, come pare che ammano ammano vada a ridursi: vorrei che la danza si limitasse nella danza medesima. Ma spetta ad un pubblico, non a me, a correggere gli abusi, col dar moto ad una riforma degna d'un secolo illuminato."

Composer not mentioned, and unknown to Schatz. As third ballet was given, composer of the music not mentioned, Domenico Ricciardi's "Il barbiere di Siviglia." SCHATZ 11319

Three acts. Argument, cast and names of Metastasio as author, of Joh. Ad. Hasse as composer. German title page, "Demetrius . . . Dresden, gedruckt . . . bey der verw. . . . Stoesselin" and text face the Italian, which is not quite the same as in the Venice, 1732, edition. For instance, in I, 7, the chorus, "Ogni Numo, ed ogni Diva" precedes the dialogue, "Dal tuo labbro o Regina," with which the 1732 ed. begins, and the aria in I, 8, is now "Se libera non sono" instead of "Se non posso su quel trono." Schatz and Mennicke call this Hasse's second version.

Three acts. Argument, scenario, cast and names of Jon. Ad. Hasse as composer of the opera, of Alessio Rasetti as composer of the ballets. The text is not quite the same as in the original Dresden, 1740, edition for Hasse's second "Demetrio" version. For instance, the aria, "Frà tanti pensieri Di regno, e d'amore" (I, 3) has become "Fra il tumulto de' pensieri Dell' impero e del mio affetto;" "Ogni procella infida" (I, 5) has been replaced by "Chi non sa, che gran conforto," and the aria, "Pensa, che sei crudele" has been dropped from III. 2. and "Quel labbro adorato" from III, 4.

Three acts. Argument, scenario, cast, name of Niccolò Jommelli as composer ("La musica sarà") and notice to the reader which begins:

"Questo è il quinto anno che s'apre di primavera, con qualche grido, questo teatro, ed altrettanti sono i drammi in musica che vi si sono fatti rappresentare del celebre Sig. abate Metastasio con solo dispiacere di doverli per comodo della stagione abbreviare, che però in questo, come negl' altri, nel dichiararsi chi vi ha mesto mano che lo ha fatto senza pregiudizio alla somma stima che nutre per un tanto virtuoso, rimette il lettore a leggerne, e ammirarne il vero originale nelle opere stampate del medesimo . . ."

This was done, and it was found that indeed Metastasio's text was slightly shortened. For instance, in the dialogue of I, 5 (with aria "T'intendo ingrata") in Creusa's monologue the lines "Dove andò quel sereno," etc., were dropped, as were the arias "Tu sai chi son" (II, 1), "E' soccorso d'incognita mano" (II, 4), "Ah che nè mal verace" (III, 3) and the entire scene III, 9 "Dove, crudel, dove mi guidi."

Otherwise Metastasio was not tampered with, since only the aria in I, 13 "Se ardire, e speranza" was replaced by "Temo in un punto." ML 50.2.D39J5

— Demofonte, dramma per musica da rappresentarsi nel Regio-Ducal Teatro di Milano, nel carnevale dell' anno 1753 . . .

Milano, Giuseppe Richino Malatesta, n. d. 6 p. l., 51, [1] p. 14½^{cm}.

Three acts. By Metastasio, who is not mentioned. Dedication ("il secondo dramma") dated Milan, January 27, 1753, argument, cast, scenario and name of Niccolò Jommelli as composer. The unnumb. p. contains the aria "Solo effetto era d'amore" substituted for "Il suo leggiadro viso" in I, 8. The text in this libretto does not coincide fully with that in the Padova, 1743, edition. For instance, I, 5 of the Milan ed. has become much different in the dialogue and has no aria. Scene I, 13 has now the aria "Di pena si forte" (from Metastasio's "Ipermestra") instead of "Temo in un punto" and II, 3 has now the aria "Benchè innocente sia" instead of "Se tronca in ramo." — Demofonte. Dramma per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro Ducale di Stutgart festeggiandosi il felicissimo giorno natalizio di Sua Altezza Serenissima Carlo, duca regnante di Wirtemberg e Teck . . . La poesia e del . . . Pietro Metastasio . . . La musica è nuovamente composta dal Signor Niccolò Jommelli . . . I balli sono inventati dal Signor Giovanni Giorgio Noverre . . .

Stutgart, Cotta, 1764. 231, [2] p. 21½^{cm}.

Three acts. Argument, cast, scenario. German title page, "Demophon," and text, by Caj. Neusinger (Abert), face Italian. Schatz and Abert call this Jommelli's second version.

The text of the Stuttgart version differs somewhat from that of the Padova version. For instance, Stuttgart starts out with an added scene "Adrasto! Ah dunque" with aria "Per lei fra l'armi" which originally belonged to I, 4. The original I, 1 scene "Credimi, o padre" has now become I, 2. In I, 5 the dialogue is again different (also from Milan, 1753) and there is no aria. The scene I, 13, "Consigliatemi, o Dei" has been dropped entirely. Instead, the former I, 12 "O là ministri" in a much longer form is used as last scene of the first act and now with a duet instead of with a solo aria.

On p. 82-109 cast and description of the ballet "La morte di Licomede—La mort de Licomède . . . La musica di nuova composizione del Signor Teller" [Florian Deller], on p. 160-187 cast and description of the ballet "Ipermestra-Hipermenestre," "musica . . . novamente composta dal Signor Rodolfo." [Rudolph. This settles Abert's query on p. 80 of his Jommelli biography]. The third ballet, without name of the composer, was called "Atalanta ed Ippomene—Atalante et Hippomene."

First performed, as indicated, February 11, 1764.

The last [2] p. contain colophon and printer's mark.

On p. [3]-10 a most minute and fascinating description of the apparatus (i. e. auditorium, seating arrangements, etc.) with name of Giovanni Battista Cini as author of the intermedii "Psiche ed Amore" performed with Francesco d'Ambra's comedy "La Cofanaria." From Il Lasca's edition of the "Descrizione" (see below) we know that it was originally written by Cini.

On p. 10-23 description and text of the six intermedia. The text of these is exactly the same as in the edition below, but the description is shorter. Also this difference appears that the musical data (substantially the same as in the edition below) follow each intermedio, instead of being grouped together at the end. Alessandro Striggio is mentioned as the composer of the first, second, fifth intermedio, Francesco Corteccia of the third, fourth and sixth.

On p. 24-26 description of the banquet, etc., following the performance.

— Descrizione de gl' intermedii rappresentati con la commedia nelle nozze dell' illustrissimo, ed eccellentissimo Signor principe di Firenze e di Siena.

Firenze, Filippo Giunti, 1593. 22 p. 15^{cm}.

Forms part of "La COFANARIA. Commedia di Francesco d'Ambra. Con gl'intermedii di Giovambattista Cini. Recitata nelle nozze del . . . Don Francesco de Medici, & della Sereniss. regina Giouanna d'Austria. Di nuovo ristampata," same publisher, same date.

The description of the six "intermedii . . . tratti dalla novella di Psiche, e d' Amore descritta molto piacevolmente da Apuleio nel suo Asin d'oro" is preceded by a dedication signed "Il Lasca" (psued. of the poet, Antonio Francesco Grazzini). It is undated, but is obviously of about the same date as the dedication of the comedy by the editor, Alessandro Ceccherelli, "Firenze il dì 15. di gennaio 1565." Il Lasca says:

"Essendo da altri con fretta & per ciò con poca cura stati mandati in luce gl'intermedij che con la commedia si fecero nelle Lor Realissime Nozze cavati da una semplice descriptione fatta dall' autor loro innanzi a la loro rappresentatione ad istanza di Sua Altezza accioche ella potesse più agevolmente intenderli, mosso di lui, & di loro à compassione che pareua che poca cura se ne prendesse mi son messo ad allargargli alquanto, e ridurli nella forma che le vedranno . . ."

With these remarks, Il Lasca refers to the publication of the "Descrizione dell' apparato della commedia ed intermedia d'essa, fatta in Firenze il giorno di S. Stefano l'anno 1565."

The description of the intermedii proper Il Lasca follows up, "a soddisfazione de' curiosi musici," with a description of the orchestra employed and other musical features, and then says:

"L'invenzione, & le parole de gl'intermedij furono di M. Gio. Battista Cini, & sotto la sua cura furono condotti sì come la commedia, e tutto il restante ad essa appartenente . . ."

"Messer Alessandro Strig[gi]o fece le musiche del primo del secondo, & del quinto, intermedio. Quelle del terzo, del quarto, & dell' ultimo furono fatte dal Maestro della cappella di Lor Eccellenze illustrissime: Messer Francesco Corteccia."

The music is generally considered lost, but a remark on p. 18 of Il Lasca's description makes it clear that it was in the press in 1565 ("stampandosi la musica"). Il Lasca issued an edition of his "Descrizione de gl'intermedii" in 1566, with a "rather better" text and a different dedication, as Mr. G. E. P. Arkwright, the editor of the Musical Antiquary, added to a footnote of mine in my reprint (with introductory remarks) of the 1593 "Descrizione" in his journal, October, 1911. The "Descrizione" had previously been reprinted in the fifth volume of the "Teatro Comico Fiorentino," Firenze, 1750 (copy in L. of C.).

The text of "The Deserter of Naples," on p. [1]-8. Of the last song, "Anacreon" ("To banish life's troubles") [Richard John Samuel] Stevens is mentioned as the composer. A note on p. [3] says:

London, T. Becket, 1773. vi, [2], 36 p. 20^{cm}.

Two acts. Cast and preface signed by Charles Dibdin, who says:

"Le Deserter [text by Sedaine, music by Monsigny], is well known to have been these five years the most favourite musical piece on the French stage: . . .

"It was thought, therefore, that if the unnecessary incidents were expunged, and those retained were rendered more probable; if, by making an uniform partition between the dialogue and the songs, it could be brought more to wear the complexion of an Opera, The Deserter might be entitled to a favourable reception on the English stage: how far these suggestions were reasonable, the public (who are the best judges, and by whose arbitration I shall always be proud to abide) will determine.

"With regard to the music, as I found it a work of great invention, I should have kept it in its original state, had it been possible; but, besides the excessive length of the songs, the continual breaks into recitative, the frequent sudden alterations of the stile, and above all, that sameness which so particularly characterizes the French music. I found it much too grave to stand the least chance of success in an after-piece: I, therefore, selected what I thought the beauties, and what I could not effect by having recourse to the original, I have endeavoured to supply myself.

"In justice to the French composer, I think it absolutely necessary to declare, that the songs, beginning 'One conduct's for both love and war,' 'The nymph who in my bosom reigns,' and 'The whims of folks in love'; are wholly my own; and that the first air in the piece ['I can't for my life'], and that beginning, 'My life's three parts diminish'd' are by Philidor, a name of no inconsiderable note in the musical world."

Le devin du village, intermede; par J. J. Rousseau; représenté pour la premiere fois à Fontainebleau, sur le Théâtre de la Cour, devant Leurs Majestés, les 18 & 24 oct. 1752. Et à Paris, par l'Académie royale de musique le 1 mars, 1753.

Geneve, Pierre Gosse, 1760. 59 p. 18³/₄^{cm}.

One act. Text by Rousseau, with exception of that of the ariette "Avec l'objet de mes amours," which was by Cahusac. Cast, Rousseau's "première & unique dédicace" to Duclos, his "Avertissement" and (printed in the text) the airs as in the score published by M^{re} Boivin, Le Clerc, etc. The Avertissement reads: "Quoique j'aie approuvé les changemens que mes amis jugèrent à propos de faire à cet intermede, quand il fut joué à la cour et que son succès leur soit dû en grande partie, je n'ai pas jugé à propos de les adopter aujourd'hui, & cela par plusieurs raisons. La première est, que puisque cet ouvrage porte mon nom il faut que ce soit le mien, dût-il en être plus mauvais. La seconde, que ces changemens pouvoient être fort bien en eux mêmes, & ôter pourtant à la pièce cette unité si peu connue, qui seroit le chef-d'oeuvre de l'art, si l'on pouvoit la conserver sans répétitions & sans monotonie. Ma troisième raison est, que n'ayant fait cet ouvrage que pour mon amusement, son vrai succès est de me plaire; or personne ne sait mieux que moi comment il doit être pour me plaire le plus."

First performed at Fontainebleau October 18, 1752, with recitatives by Yeliotte and Francoeur instead of those by Rousseau and with an overture and a final Diver-tissement made up from music by Rameau, Dauvergne and others. First performed at Paris, Académie royale de musique together with Michel Blavet's one act opera-bouffon "Le jaloux corrigé" on March 1, 1753, with an overture and a final Diver-

Cast. One act. Of the first seven scenes the text in this edition is practically the same as in the score published by M^{me}. Boivin (175-) and Le Clerc (176-) but that of the eighth (last) scene differs considerably. Nor I do not find it in the Le Duc (178-) or Dufaut et Dubois scores (181-). The most striking difference is this that the Chœur avec le Devin "Colin revient à sa bergère" does not appear in this Geneva edition of the text and that Colin's Romance "Dans ma cabane obscure" is preceded by the chorus "Chantons, chantons le dieu qui règne en nos hameaux."

London, T. Becket and P. A. de Hondt, 1766. 4 p. l., 30, [1] p. 20^{cm}.

Two acts. Cast and preface, in which Burney apologizes for defects in his translation:

"The native simplicity and beauty of the original poetry, he could not flatter himself with the hopes of preserving in the translation . . . However, the airs have been scrupulously preserved from change or mutilation . . ."

In a foot-note he adds:

"Upon rehearsing the music, it has been thought necessary to retrench the second act, for fear of satiety."

Three acts. Argument. No composer is mentioned. This is one of his texts which Metastasio later on revised. Here are a few telling differences between the original and the later version: The original version has in I, 11 the aria "Ogni amator suppone; the later version has no aria. In the original version I, 14 begins "Lo so, quel cor feroce" and has the aria "Infelice e sventurato." This scene was suppressed in the later version, so that the later I, 14 is the same as the original I, 15 "Come! Da' labbri tuoi." In the original version II, 1 begins "Signor ove te'n vai," in the later version "Chi fu che all inumano." ML 49.A2M4

Euridice, ballo eroico-Orphée & Euridice," music by Deller (Abert). Schatz and Abert call this Jommelli's third setting. The text is strikingly different from that of the 1751 edition. For instance, Adrasto has been dropped from the list of characters, the opera begins "No principessa, amico" instead of "Non più. Fedel Adrasto." The aria "D'avversa sorte" has been dropped from the first scene, in fact the text of the three first scenes has been condensed into one, so that the aria "Dirò che fida sei" in I, 5, now comes in I, 3, the aria "Fra lo splendor nel trono" has been dropped from I, 9 (resp. I, 7), the scene (I, 10) "De gli nomini ornamento" with the aria "Vorrei pria esanime" has been replaced by (I, 8) "Empio! L'orror, che porta" with the aria "Se dalle stelle tu non sei guida," etc., etc.

Dionisio Siracusano. Drama per musica da rappresentarsi nel nuovo Teatro Ducale di Parma il carnevale dell' anno 1689 . . .

Parma, Stamperia ducale, n. d. 88 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts. By Antonio Salvi, who is not mentioned. Impresario's dedication, argument, cast, scenario, and notice to the reader which reads in part:

"Se . . . vedrai il suddetto drama cangiato, diminuito, ò accresciuto, sappi che essendo trabalzati simili componimenti da un teatro a l'altro, cangiando rappresentanti, è necessario il dar nuova forma alle parti secondo le abilità appoiche un' abito fabbricato per la vita d'un' uomo di rado s'acconcia a quella d'un altro."

Bibiena, the scene painter, is mentioned, also Torelli, the "inventore degli abiti," but not the composer, Giacomo Antonio Perti.

The disappointment: or, The force of credulity. A new American comic-opera, of two acts. By Andrew Barton, esq. . . .

New-York, Printed in the year, 1767. v, [7]-58 p. 16½^{cm}.

Epilogue and prologue which begins:

"Tho' distant far, from fam'd Britania's isle,
Where comic-scenes, call cynics forth to smile;
Our artless muse, hath made her first essay
T'instruct and please you with a modern play" and preface, signed by Andrew Barton, which reads in part:

"The following local piece, intitled, (The Disappointment, or the Force of Credulity) was originally wrote for my own, and the amusement of a few particular friends, who (unknown to me) were pleased to signify their approbation of it, in such a manner, that it soon engrossed the chief part of the conversation of all ranks of people; who expressed their desire to hear it, and have it published. Under these circumstances, I was greatly at a loss how to proceed, I did not choose (as I saw no merit in it) to expose it to the criticisms of critics, to put it in the power of gentlemen skill'd in scholastick knowledge, to ridicule my ignorance, or condescend to the intreaties of those, who I thought had no more sense than myself, and who might (perhaps) have made it better than it really is. Conscious therefore of my own inability, I determined to excuse myself to all; and in this determination I persisted for some time, but at last, for my own safety, was obliged to capitulate and surrender on the following stipulations; First, the infrequency of dramatic compositions in America: Secondly, the torrent of solicitations from all quarters: Thirdly, the necessity of contributing to the entertainment of the city: Fourthly and lastly, to put a stop (if possible) to the foolish and pernicious practice of searching after supposed hidden treasure. These terms, hard as they are, I have with reluctance been forced to submit to, I am therefore obliged in vindication of my conduct, to assure the public that the story is founded on matter of fact, transacted near this city, not long since, and recent in memory of thousands; for the truth of which assertion I appeal to numbers of my fellow citizens."

This first American ballad opera (with 18 airs indicated by title. "Air IV. Yankee Doodle") was to have been first performed by the American Company at Philadelphia on April 20, 1767, but it was withdrawn, "personal reflections" rendering it "unfit for the stage." "The disappointment" is sometimes attributed to Thomas Forrest or to John Leacock, but the evidence is not sound (Sonneck).

Venezia, Modesto Fenzo, 1784. front., 79 p. 18 cm.

Three acts. Cast, scenario, name of composer, Francesco Bianchi, and that of the librettist, Bartolomeo Benincasa, who (p. 3-11) addresses an interesting esthetic preface, "Agli amatori del melodrama italiano," in which he explains at length his reasons for attempting "un nuovo genere di dramma"—indeed, a kind of reform of libretto writing. One of his reasons is that Metastasio and his predecessors "non hanno mai scritto, che drammi eroicamente erotici," and that "avendo egli quel sommo uomo esaurito il suo genere" he had become somewhat tedious to the Italian nation. Benincasa pleads for "un dramma in musica, che sia tra la grand' opera eroica e la comica operetta." He finally remarks that the present opera was sketched, put in verses, composed, and staged in 35 days.

On p. [37]-44, argument, cast, scenario, and detailed description of the five-act "I baccanali, ballo tragico pantomimo d'Innocenzio Gambuzzi." Neither of this nor the second ballet, "Le vendemmie fiamminghe" is the composer mentioned.

First performed, as indicated, December 26, 1784.

Il disertore; a new comic opera; as acted at the King's Theatre in the Hay-Market. Written by Mr. Badini. The music entirely new, by Signor Guglielmi.

London, T. Baldwin, 1770. viii, [2], 95 p. 17½ cm.

Three acts. Author's dedication, dated May 10, 1770, cast, and author's preface, in which he says:

" . . . I shall be blamed in having written it [the drama] rather for singers than for actors . . . This piece was written merely to replace another, the representation of which had been forbidden. The spectacle exhibited at present by France in the island of Corsica, appearing to me well calculated for the stage, I wrote an opera intitled—I Francesi in Corsica—the business and the characters of which were a striking portraiture of the odd manners of our age. Political cautions however quashed my design, and I was then obliged to take "The Deserter" in hand. Though the ground of this drama be taken from the French, yet a comparison of the two pieces will shew, that the French dramatist only furnished me with the block for making the work . . . In writing the songs, as on them generally depends the success of our operas, I have carefully endeavoured to suit them to the capital object of vocal music: which is, to heighten the energy of sentiments inspired by the accents of tenderness, pity, joy and love in general. Every accompaniment deficient in this view, fails of its proper effect: and a good reason of so few operas taking is, that when the music has no affinity with the words, it becomes purely a futile clutter of instruments; an unmeaning harmony, which, not affecting the heart, soon tires the ear, and causes the spectator to repeat that bon mot of Fontenelle: Sonate que me veux-tu?"

On an inserted leaf he adds that, "rather than to jar with any body, and chiefly with musicians," he has replaced Lovatini's "Se quel ciglio ancor ti miro" (II, 6) by "Tergi'l bel ciglio, o cara." English translation, with caption title, "The deserter," faces the Italian text.

Three acts. Cast, scenario, and name of Pietro Guglielmi as composer. Badini's text is considerably altered. For instance, the aria "Se quel ciglio ancor rimirò" is now at the end of II, 4, instead of II, 6, and the very first aria, "Ogni amante che si sposa," has been replaced by "All' amoroso ardore." London, J. Watts, 1754 [?]. 8 p. l., 64 p. 19cm.

Three acts, with introduction. Cast, table of the 15 songs, the airs of which (ballad airs) are printed in the text, and mostly with their titles, author's dedication, and preface, in which Fielding says that

"this comedy was begun at Leyden in the year 1728, and after it had been sketched out into a few loose scenes, was thrown by, and for a long while no more thought of. It was originally writ for my private amusement . . . Mr. Booth and Mr. Cibber . . . upon seeing the aforesaid sketch, both dissuaded me from suffering it to be represented on the stage; and accordingly it was remanded back to my shelf, where, probably, it would have perished in oblivion, had not the solicitations of the distress actors in Drury-Lane prevail'd on me to revise it, at the same time that it came into my head to add those scenes concerning our elections. Being thus altered, it was often rehearsed on that theatre, and a particular day appointed for its action; but the Giant Cajanus, of a race who were always enemies to our poor Don, deferred his appearance so long, that the intervention of the actor's benefits would have put it off till the next season, had I not brought it on where now it appears . . ."

Don Sancho: or, The students whim.

5 p. l., 20 p. 19^{cm}.

Title page wanting of this farce, printed 1739. Two acts with epilogue, prologue, and a masque, "MINERVA'S TRIUMPH." Clarence lists this as a "ballad opera," though no airs are indicated in the text to which the 12 songs of the piece were to be sung. Still, the second player's words in the prologue, "meer ballad farce," may mean that the piece was intended as such. The dedication is signed by Elizabeth Boyd as author, as also a prefatory note in which she says that Mr. Chetwood, the prompter of Drury-Lane, secured a hearing for "Don Sancho" in the Green-room, that the piece was "acknowledged worthy of the town's applause," but that the lateness of the season, etc., prevented a performance."

Don Saverio. A musical drama. As it is perform'd at the Theater-Royal in Drury-Lane. The musick by Mr. Arne.

London, J. Watts, 1750. 2 p. l., 16 p. 21^{cm}.

Two acts. Cast, argument, and footnote:

"The intention of this piece is to display different kinds of expression in music; florid epithets or forc'd conceits are avoided, and the songs and recitative are endeavour'd to be written (as near as possible) in such a dialect as the character concern'd would naturally make use of on such an occasion, it being a standing rule in musical productions, that, where the meaning of the poet is in the least intricate, the song is unattended to, and the music lost."

Text presumably by the composer.

First performed 1749, as indicated.

Two parts. Cast. Neither Belmuro, the author, nor Hasse, the composer, is mentioned. German text and title page, "Don Tabarrano," face Italian. The text is not quite the same as in Schatz 4529. For instance, in the first intermezzo the aria "Collà sul praticello" has been added, and in the second the aria "Se non credi alle parole" replaces "Strappami il core, o barbaro," and the final duet is "O che gioia, o che contento" instead of "Pace si, si, dolce mia vita."

First performed, as indicated, February 13, 1747.

Two acts. Impresario's dedication, dated Milan, September 20, 1791, cast, scenario, and name of Marcello di Capua (Bernardini) as composer. The libretto was written by the composer (Schatz), and it was based on Goldoni's comedy, "La vedova scaltra." The first ballet, performed in 1791, together with the opera, was called "Lo spazzacamino principe," and was by Antonio Muzzarelli, the composer of the music not being mentioned.

First performed at Rome, Teatro Valle, in the spring of 1787.

— Le quattro nazioni. Dramma giocoso per musica da rappresentarsi in Firenze nel Regio Teatro di via Santa Maria nell' estate dell' anno MDCCXCIII . . .

Firenze, Stamp. Albizziniana, 1793. 60 p. 16½^{cm}.

Two acts. Cast, name of Marcello di Capua (Bernardini) as composer and note that the text has "per suo originale" Goldoni's "La vedova scaltra." Schatz lists "Le quattro nazioni" as a later version of "La donna bizzarra" (see below) but, though a few lines are the same in both, they are really two entirely different librettos. Not even the number of scenes is the same and the characters are named differently. For instance, whereas "Armellina, locandiera" and "Monsieur Tremo" appear in both, "Donna Aurora, donna di spirito" does not appear at all in "La donna bizzarra," where "D. Elvira, donna spiritosa e bizzarra" is a combination of both "Donna Aurora" and "Donna Elvira, sorella di Donna Aurora" of the other libretto. As a matter of comparison, the text and the characters of "Le quattro nazioni" are identical with those of "La donna di spirito," the four nations being represented in both by "Don Mauro, Spagnuolo," "Monsieur Tremo, Francese," "Baron Zuffre, Tedesco," "M. Biri, Olandese," and "Don Ruggiero, cavaliere italiano." Consequently, "Le quattro nazioni" is simply a later title of "La donna di spirito," and the text of both, to repeat it, has very little in common with that of "La donna bizzarra," though possibly the same music was used as for "La donna di spirito." Much more related is the text of:

— Li cinque pretendenti. Dramma giocoso per musica da rappresentarsi nel Ces. Reg. Teatro di Trieste il carnevale dell' anno 1794

Trieste, Stamperia governiale, n. d. 58 p. 16^{cm}.

Two acts. Cast and name of Marcello di Capua (Bernardini) as composer. The characters in this libretto are the same as of "La donna di spirito." The first act has seventeen scenes, and of these fourteen appear in the first act of "La donna di spirito." The alterations in the second act are more pronounced and only a few scenes have been retained, yet unmistakably "La donna di spirito" is the original.

Two acts. Cast and name of Marcello di Capua (Marcello Bernardini) as composer. Schatz considers this a later version of "La donna di spirito," but see above the note under "Le quattro nazioni." On p. 5-9 argument, cast, and detailed description of "Il trionfo de' Spagnoli, o sia La disfatta de' Marrocchini. Ballo composto e diretto dal Sig. Gio. Battista Giannini." Three acts and prologue. Dedication signed A. B. and dated Venice, January 1, 1663, argument, scenario. Neither the author, Apollonio Apolloni, is mentioned, nor the composer, Marc' Antonio Cesti.

The date of first performance is generally given as indicated by this edition of the libretto, but Schatz dates it Florence, Teatro dei Sorgenti, carnival, 1661, with the title, "La Dori ovvero La schiava fedele."

Venetia, Francesco Nicolini, 1666. 6 p. l., 72 p. 13^{cm}.

Prologue and three acts. Dedication signed F. N. and dated Venice, January 1, 1663, argument, scenario. The composer, Marc' Antonio Cesti, and the author, Apollonio Apolloni, are not mentioned — La Dori ovvero Lo schiavo reggio. Drama per musica da rappresentarsi nel nobilissimo Teatro Grimano di SS. Gio. e Paolo l'anno 1667 . . .

Venetia, Francesco Nicolini & Steffano Curti, 1667. 7 p. l. (incl. front.), 64 p. 13½^{cm}.

Three acts, with prologue, publisher's dedication, dated January 16, 1667, argument, scenario, and preface, with Cesti's name as composer, and this remark:

"Si è incontrato molte difficoltà, così nel ritrovare l'originale della musica, come nell' agguistarlo, & nel trasportare le parti . . . si sono aggiunte alcune ariette per maggiormente adornare il drama."

The modifications were very slight; for instance, in Act I the third scene, "Astro d'Amore gradito," with the aria "E gran felicità goder," was dropped and the second scene, "Viverò, viverò. Ma s'il Fato," added. In Act II the aria in scene 9, "Chi non prova d'Amor ignudo," was added, but the scene 14, "Ahi qual fiero timore," dropped. In the third act, scene 12, "De l'insigne reali," was dropped; also the final quartet, "Amori volate," for which was substituted "Pur cangia i suoi rigori."
SCHATZ 1785

— La Dori. Drama per musica ristampato, e rappresentato . . . agli augusti sponsali della Reale Altezza di Mariana Christina, delfina di Francia, nata principessa elettorale di Baviera. Alla mcđ.^{ma} R. A. consecrato con l'aggiunta di nuovo prologo posto in musica dal S. D. Giuseppe Antonio Bernabei . . .

Monaco, Giovanni Jeclino, 1680. 7 p. l., 104 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts. Argument. The dedication is signed by Ventura Terzago, who wrote the poetry of the new prologue and probably was also responsible for considerable modifications of the original libretto. For instance, it may be noted for purposes of identification that in the second act the fourteenth scene, "Ahi qual fiero timore," and the third scene, "O destino, destino," have been dropped; that the scene "Sotto vario altro pianetta" has been added, and the second scene, "Erasto, Erasto," considerably enlarged beyond the original seventeen lines.

First performed, as indicated, at Munich, Churfürstl. Hoftheater, in March, 1680.

La Dorisbe ovvero L'amor volubile e tiranno, drama per musica di Gio. Domenico Pioli da recitarsi nella Sala de' Sig. Capranica nel carnevale dell' anno 1711 . . .

Roma, Rocco Bernabò, 1711. front., 81 p. 14^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication, argument, cast. The composer, Alessandro Scarlatti, is not mentioned.

Dent does not mention the opera under this title, only under the alternative title, which would seem to have been, according to Dent, the original title. If he mentions (p. 117) a libretto with date 1707, this is probably an error for 1709, when the opera was first performed, in May, at the Teatro di S. Bartolomeo, Schatz giving the exact date of May 25. SCHATZ 9531

Dorothée, pantomime à spectacle; précédée des Preux chevaliers, prologue-pantomime. Par M. Audinot. Représentée, pour la première fois, sur le Théâtre de l'Ambigu-comique, à la Foire Saint-Germain, en l'année 1782.

Paris, Cailleau, 1782. 16 p. 18½^{cm}.

The prologue is in one act, "Dorothée" in three. Synopsis of the plot. The composer of the music is not mentioned. The approbation is dated January 26, 1782.

Probably not identical with the "Dorothée," music by Jean Baptiste de Rochefort, mentioned by Fétis. ML 48.B2

Cast. Probably by Mrs. James [Harriet Horncastle] Hook.

First performed March 8, 1784, as indicated.

LONGE 95

The double elopement. A. T. of Linley's The duenna.

La double épreuve, ou Colinette à la cour, comédie lyrique en trois actes, représentée pour la première fois par l'Académie royale de musique, le mardi 1^{er} janvier 1782. Les paroles de M * * *. La musique de M. Grétry.

Paris, P. de Lormèl, 1784. 62 p. 19^{cm}.

Cast. By Jean Baptiste Lourdet de Santerre, who based the text on Favart's "Ninette à la cour." In the avertissement he says:

"Il a cru trouver tout ce qu'il désiroit dans le sujet très connu de Ninette à la cour; & peu jaloux de la gloire de l'invention, il ne s'est fait aucun scrupule de s'en emparer: les théâtres étrangers, comme les théâtres anciens, sont un fonds commun où il est permis à tout le monde de pînsen. Et pourquoi plusieurs poètes n'auroient-ils pas la liberté de faire d'un opéra bouffon italien ce qu'on fait des tragédies de Sophocle & d'Euripide?"

On p. 39-40, the air of "On trouve un objet charmant" (II, 11), and on p. 60-61, "L'amitié vive & pure" (III, 10).

The downfall of bribery: or, The honest men of Taunton. A new ballad-opera of three acts. As it was lately perform'd by a company of players at a certain noted inn at Taunton in Somersetshire.

The downfall of bribery—Continued.

By Mark Freeman, of the said town, freeholder and grocer. . . . To which is added, A new ballad by way of epilogue. Spoken by the person who acted in the character of Freeman.

London, Sam. Pike, n. d. 3 p. l., 36 p. 19^{cm}.

Three acts. Table of the 16 airs, the titles of which are indicated in the text. This quotation of a quotation from the Craftsman, No. 385, Nov. 24, 1733, on the title page gives a clue to the origin of the piece:

"A few persons at Taunton, who had it in their power to turn the election of a mayor, lately refused a sum of two thousand pounds for their votes upon that occasion."
LONGE 168

The dragon of Wantley. A burlesque opera. The musick by Mr. John Frederick Lampe, and performed at the Theatre-Royal in Covent-Garden. Moderniz'd from the old ballad after the Italian manner, by Sig. Carini [pseud.] The 12th ed., with additions. To which is prefix'd, the original ballad (cum notis variorum) by way of argument, &c. &c. &c. . . .

London, J. Shuckburgh, 1738. 32 p. 19½^{cm}.

Title vignette.

Three acts. By Henry Carey. Cast. The text is preceded on p. 13 by "Puff" signed "P. Anderson. Westminster, Jan. 1, 1738"; p. 7-13, "An excellent ballad"; p. 6, "A critical remark on the old ballad, call'd The Dragon of Wantley . . ."; and p. [iii]-v, Carey's dedication of date Pall-mall, Jan. 3, 1738, to the composer, in which he says:

"Many joyous hours have we shared during its composition, chopping and changing, looping, eking out, and coining of words, syllables, and jingle, to display in English the beauty of nonsense, so prevailing in the Italian operas. . . . Lowness (figuratively speaking) is the sublimity of burlesque: if so, this opera is, consequently, the tip-top sublime of its kind. Your musick, on the other hand, is as grand and pompous as possible, by which means the contrast is the stronger, and has succeeded accordingly."

After complimentary remarks about the performers, Carey says:

"in a more singular sense we stand indebted to Mr. Rich, who received our poor disconsolate Dragon with pleasure, after it had lain several years dormant in the repository, and under the inspection, of the most wise, most learned, and judicious, 'Squire Whet-d'ye-call-him, Master of Drury-Lane play-house."

First performed at London, Covent Garden, October 26, 1737. ML 50.2.D67L2

Gl'ecessi della gelosia. Drama per musica di Domenico Lalli da rappresentarsi nel Teatro di S. Angiolo nel carnevale dell' anno 1722 . . .

Venezia, Marino Rossetti, 1722. 56 [1] p. 15cm.

Three acts. Author's dedication, argument, cast, scenario, and name of Tommaso Albinoni as composer. The supplementary page contains the aria, "Chiama l'amante fido," as substitute for "Il mio core ingelosito" (III, 13). SCHATZ 116

— La Mariane. Dramma per musica di Domenico Lalli da rappresentarsi nel Teatro di S. Angelo l'autunno dell' anno MDCCXXIV . . .

Venezia, Marino Rossetti, n. d. 59, [1] p. 14 $\frac{1}{2}$ cm.

Three acts. Argument, scenario, cast, and Lalli's dedication, dated November 15, 1724. The supplementary page contains the arias "Al cader di ria tempesta," as substitute for "A un sleale un traditore" (Act II, sc. 1), and "S'ha pietà delle mie pene" for "Un certo non sò che" (Act III, sc. 3). The same page contains this note: "La musica delle arie è del Signor Giovanni Porta, à riserva di quelle signate con stelletta, che sono del primo lor compositore." Accordingly, only four arias were retained from "Gl'ecessi della gelosia." These are: "Quanto è grave il mio dolore" (I, 1), "Lieto parto amato bene" (I, 11), "Escimi tutto in lagrime" (II, 12), "Basta dir che la mia pena" (III, 9). The dialogue is largely the same as in Albinoni's opera. SCHATZ 117

Firenze, Domenico Ambrogio Verdi, n. d. 60, [1] p. 15cm.

The additional page contains the substitute aria "Maggior pena di tutte le pene," for I, 12.

Three acts. Antefatto, cast, scenario. No author or composer is mentioned, but comparison proved most of the dialogue to be the same as in Domenico Lalli's libretto,

"Gl'eccessi della gelosia." Venice, 1722, as composed by Albinoni, and in 1724 repeated there as "La Mariane," with a few arias retained from Albinoni's opera, but most of them composed by Giov. Porta. As to the arias in this 1726 ed., most of them are not contained in the Venetian librettos. The few that are, either belong to those expressly in the 1724 ed., stated to be by Albinoni, as, for instance, "Lieto parto amato bene," or by Porta, as "Farò (voglio) vendetta sì." Elfrida, a dramatic poem. Written on the model of the ancient Greek tragedy. By Mr. Mason. The second edition.

London, J. and P. Knapton, 1752. 1 p. l., xix, [1], 80 p. 19^{cm}.

The xix p. contain five "Letters concerning the following drama, dated 'Pemb. Hall, 1751.'" Not this but a dramatized version by Colman was used with Thomas Aug. Arne's music at Covent Garden, November 21, 1772. LONGE 44

— Elfrida, a dramatic poem. Written on the model of the ancient Greek tragedy. By William Mason . . . Adapted for theatrical representation, as performed at the Theatre-Royal, Covent-Garden, in the year 1773 . . .

London, George Cawthorn, 1796. front., 1 p. l., 68 p. 15^{cm}. (J. Bell, British Theatre, London, 1791-1797, v. 35.)

The front represents Mrs. Hartley as Elfrida, and is dated November 12, 1796. The p. l. is an added engraved title page of same date.

Elfrida—Continued.

Five acts. Argument, cast and prefatory note. The date 1773 in the title would indicate that this is George Colman's dramatization (first performed November 21, 1772) of the dramatic poem "Elfrida" (1752) and not William Mason's own, performed February 22, 1779. Thomas Augustine Arne, the composer of the incidental music, is not mentioned.

Title within engraved ornamental border, text in ornamental borders, and vignettes at the head of each of the three acts. Impresario's dedication, argument, cast, scenario, and name of Tommaso Traietta as the composer. The dedication informs the reader that the libretto is an Italian translation by conte Jacopo Antonio San-Vitale of Bernard Le Bouvier de Fontenelle's drama. The impresario, Giuseppe Compstoff, has also this to say:

"Nuda ella viene, e priva di quegli aiuti teatrali, che alla illuminata mente di V. A. R. ed agli occhi d'un pubblico giustamente critico potrebbero renderla e luminosa, e bizzarra. Un solo uomo privato giugner non può a quel segno, a cui tender possono le mire di personaggi illustri, che si fan gloria di istradare i dipendenti loro per la via d'un onesto lusinghiero piacere alle vere massime d'una più soda, e perfetta morale. L'Igigenia in Tauride, e l'Olimpiade sul nostro teatro tra innumcrabili evviva poco fa rappresentate, rendono abbastanza testimonianza del vero. Vide il Fiorentino teatro sotto gli augusti auspici felicissimi della R. A. V. ciò, che a lui sembrava quasi impossibile; lo vide, e grandemente lo applaudì . . ."

According to this the agreement was that several of Gamera's works, including such that were not yet published, were to be published. Nothing came of it because "un ragguardevole personaggio di questa città," to whose care they had been entrusted, kept them and they were not found again until after his death. On the basis of his privilege of 1778 Piattoli now first publishes "Erifile" and, as he justly remarks, in view of the paper, press work, and a few exquisite vignettes, in a better make up than was customary. Three acts. Cast, scenario, and notice to the reader, who is told:

"La prima volta, che fù dato alla luce il presente drama parto di celebre autore [Francesco Silvani] si recitò in questo teatro col titolo la Fede tradita, e vendicata, e ne trasse un sommo universale applauso. In altri teatri con diversi titoli ma sempre fortunatamente replicossi, ed ora su queste scene comparisce di bel nuovo, benchè abbreviato di molto quando non volessimo dire stropicciato . . ."

According to Wiel, "La fede tradita, e vendicata" was performed at Venice, 1704 and 1715, with music by Francesco Gasparini, and 1726, with music by Antonio Vivaldi. Now, one of the later titles of the libretto was, "Ricimero," and an opera of this title (music by Galuppi) was first performed at Milan, Regio Ducal Teatro, December 26, 1744 (Piovano). Neither Galuppi nor any other composer is mentioned in the Ernelinda (Venice, 1750) libretto, which points to a pasticcio, and indeed, Allacci says, "musica da diversi." Wiel simply has, "Musica;?" Schatz attributes the music to "Galuppi & andere componisten," evidently on the strength of Galuppi's "Ricimero," of Milan, 1744. Piovano does not commit himself, but says that if Ernelinda was by Galuppi, it could have been but a replica of his "Ricimero." The quotation from the notice to the reader does not permit such an interpretation. The probabilities are that "Ernelinda" was a pasticcio, with ingredients from Gasparini, Vivaldi, and Galuppi.

"J'ai imité de l'Italien ce poeme, composé par Mathieu Noris, Vénitien, & représenté, pour la première fois, à Venise en 1684, sur le théâtre de saint Chrisostôme, qui étoit alors un des plus fameux de l'Europe. Cet auteur a joué long-tems, même après sa mort, d'une grande réputation; nous avons de lui 40 opera, mais celui-ci est le seul qui se soit conservé sur les théâtres d'Italie, malgré la vicissitude des goûts & des tems. Je l'ai vu représenter à Parme, mis en musique par le sieur Ferardini, professeur à Naples. Le grand intérêt qui me parut résulter de ce drame, me déterminâ d'abord à le traduire, & de retour en France, cherchant à tenter un nouveau genre sur le théâtre de notre Académie-Royale, j'ai cru ne pouvoir mieux faire que de l'imiter. Le fameux abbé Metastasio m'avoit prévenu; il en a copié des scènes entières, & notamment la septième du second acte, dans son Adrien: il ne m'en falloit pas davantage pour me convaincre du mérite réel de ce poeme. Mais quels changemens n'ai-je pas été contraint d'y faire? Un opera dure cinq heures en Italie, il n'en doit pas durer trois en France, encore est-il nécessaire d'y insérer au moins un Ballet par acte, chose absolument inconnue dans l'opera Italien. A Paris tout se chante; à Rome, à Londres, à Vienne, les scènes se débitent. A ces corrections, que la durée horaire & le goût national m'ont rendu indispensables, j'en ai joint, que mon goût particulier m'a dictées. Le troisième acte n'a aucune ressemblance avec l'original."

Prologue and three acts. Argument, scenario, publisher's dedication and notice to the reader, in which he says:

"Ecco finalmente l'Eupatra già anni quattro promessa. Duodecima fatica drammatica del Sig. Gio. Faustini di felice memoria. Se le sue opere hanno in questa città, & nell' Italia tutta, dove frequentemente vengono rappresentate ottenuti gl'applausi universali, non si deve temere, che anco questa Principessa non habbia a cōseguire i dovuti li allori . . . L'autore quasi presago di sua intempestiva morte lasciò di suo pugno ne' fogli alcune notarelle, onde andavano poste certe canzonette, che sono poi state fatte da virtuosissimo soggetto. A gl'idioti paiono oscure quelle favole, che solo si svelano nell' ultime scene, ma gl'intendenti, e studiosi l'amirano, poiche in simili compositioni devono tenersi sospesi anco gl'ingegni più curiosi, che così hà sempre professato l'autore, non solo nelle dodeci opere sin' hora stampate, mà in altre ancora, che si riserbano gl'anni venturi, havendo egli sempre applicato tutto l'animo all' inventione, da che, per la continua, & incessante application, ne derivò l'origine di sua infermità, che troppo acerbamente in età di trentadue anni gli levò la vita . . . L'Euridice d'Ottavio Rinuccini, rappresentata nello sponsalio della Christianiss. regina di Francia, e di Navarra. [coat of arms]

Firenza, Cosimo Giunti, 1600. 4 p. l., 16 l. 20 $\frac{1}{2}$ cm.

On verso of last leaf printer's mark, a wood-cut.

The preliminary matter consists of the title page (verso blank), Ottavio Rinuccini's dedication to Maria Medici dated "Di Firenze il dì [blank] d'Ottobre 1600" (p. 1. 2-3, verso of 3 blank) and the list of Interlocutori (p. 1. 4, verso blank). Though easily accessible by quotation elsewhere, the famous dedication follows here in full:

"È stata opinione di molti, Christianies. Regina, che gl'antichi Greci, e Romani cantassero su le scene le tragedie intere, ma sì nobil maniera di recitare non che rinnovata, ma ne pur che io sappia fin qui era stata tentata da alcuno, & ciò mi credeu'io per difetto della musica moderna di gran lunga all' antica inferiore, ma pensiero sì fatto mi tolse interamente dell' animo M. Iacopo Peri, quando vldio l'intentione del Sig. Iacopo Corsi, e mia mise con tanta gratia sotto le note la faula di Dafne composta da me solo per far vna semplice proua di quello, che potesse il canto dell' età nostra che incredibilmente piacque a que pochi, che l'vdirono, onde preso animo, e dato miglior forma alla stessa faula, e di nuovo rappresentandola in casa il Sig. Iacopo, fu ella non solo dalla nobiltà di tutta questa Patria fauorita, ma dalla Serenissima Gran Duchessa, e gl'illustrissimi Cardinali Dal Monte, & Montalto vldita, e commendata, ma molto maggior fauore, e fortuna ha sortito l'Euridice messa in musica dal medesimo Peri, con arte mirabile, e da altri non più vsata hauendo meritato dalla benignità, e magnificenza del Sereniss. Gran Duca d'essere rappresentata in nobilissima scena alla presenza di V. M. del Cardinale Legato, e di tanti principi, e signori d'Italia, e di Francia, la onde cominciando io a conoscere, quanto simili rappresentationi in musica siano gradite, ho voluto recar in luce queste due, perche altri di me più intendenti si ingegnino di accrescere, e migliorare sì fatte poesie, di maniera, che non habbiano inuidia a quelle antiche tanto celebrate da i nobili scrittori. Potrà parere ad alcuno, che troppo ardire sia stato il mio in alterare il fine della faula d'Orfeo, ma così mi è parso conuenueuole in tempo di tanta allegrezza, hauendo per mia giustificatione esempio di poeti Greci, in altre faule, & il nostro Dante ardì di affermare essersi sommerso Vlissee nella sua nauigatione, tutto che Omero, e gl'altri poeti haussero cantato il contrario. Così parimente ho seguito l'autorità di Sofocle nel L'Aiace in far riuolger la scena non potendosi rappresentar altrimenti le preghiere, & i lamenti d'Orfeo. Riconosca V. M. in queste mie ben che piccole fatiche l'humil deuotione dell' animo verso di lei, & vna lungamente felice per riceuer da Iddio ogni giorno maggior grazie, e maggior fauori."

It will be noticed that Rinuccini mentions only Jacopo Peri as composer of his "L'Euridice," yet we know from Peri himself, that part of the music used on October 6, 1600, the date of first performance of "L'Euridice" was by Giulio Caccini. He informed the public in his score of "L'Euridice," dated 1600, but actually published in February, 1601, at the earliest, since the dedication¹ is dated February 6, 1600 (old style; new style=February 6, 1601):

"E benchè fin allora l'auessi fatta nel modo appunto che ora viene in luce, nondimeno Giulio Caccini (detto Romano) il cui sommo valore è noto al mondo, fece l'arie d'Euridice et alcune del Pastore e Ninfe del coro; e de' cori "Al canto, al ballo," "Sospirate" e "Poi che gli eterni imperi": e questo perchè dovevano essere cantate da persone dependenti da lui, le quali arie si leggono nella sua, composta e stampata pur dopo che questa mia fu rappresentata a S. M. Cristianissima . . ."

In other words, Peri would give us to understand that the interpolation of music by his rival, Caccini, was wholly unnecessary; that it was forced on him; that Caccini had composed, by October 6, 1600, only a small part of Rinuccini's text; and that he completed the score not until after the performances. Convinced of his own priority, Peri seems to have felt especially disappointed because Caccini succeeded in getting his own, later score sooner published than he, Peri.

If Peri's statements are correct, then Caccini must have composed the larger part of his score in a hurry, since he dates the dedication of his score December 20, 1600, which permits the inference that the score was not on the market until early in 1601, i. e., dated by the publisher, Giorgio Marescotti 1600, but published during that part of the old-style year 1600, which according to the new would be 1601. Peri's statements are indirectly corroborated by the fact that Caccini is singularly silent on the whole question of priority, and has nothing whatsoever to say about the history of his score in the performances of 1600. He simply writes:

L'Euridice—Continued.

"Avendo io composto in musica in stile rappresentativo la favola d'Euridice e fatta la stampare."

Caccini did not have the satisfaction of seeing his entire score performed at Florence until December 5, 1602, when his "L'Euridice" was given in honor of cardinals Montalto and Del Monte and marchese Peretti. The performance lasted two hours, and it would seem that Caccini had at least this satisfaction, that no interpolations from Peri's "L'Euridice" were forced upon him.

Soleri, who discovered this performance of 1602, describes the 1600 libretto in his "Albori" (vol. 2) exactly as above, i. e., with a blank date in Rinuccini's dedication, but in his "Gli origini del melodramma" he reprints the dedication, with the date of October 4, and so did Guidi in his reprint of Peri's "Euridice" score. It seems that two issues of the libretto exist differing from each other in that particular only.

Stutgart, Cristoforo Frederico Cotta, 1758. 135 p. 18^{cm}.

Three acts. Argument, cast, scenario. German title page, "Aetius," and text face Italian, which is not quite the same as in the first version of 1741. For instance, scene I, 6, has been much condensed and lacks the aria, "Se un bell' ardire," as also in the much altered scene I, 8, the aria, "Se povero il ruscello," and II, 3, the aria, "Cara, se un core amante." The last two scenes of the first act are totally different, etc., etc. The Stuttgart version, unless a fourth version exists, would then belong to the third version (Vienna, October 4, 1749) and was first performed, as indicated, February 11, 1758. The second version was first performed at Naples, Teatro di San Carlo, November 4, 1748. SCHATZ 4858

Lisbona, Stamperia reale, n. d. 74 p. 16^{cm}.

Three acts. Argument, cast, scenario, and names of Metastasio as author, of Nicolò Jommelli as composer ("nuova composizione"). The text is somewhat different from that of the third (resp. fourth) version of 1758. For instance, the scene I, 8, "Ezio sappia, ch'io bramo," has a different dialogue; I, 9, "Vedrem, se ardisce ancora," has become I, 10; the scene, "Eccomi al cenno tuo," with the aria, "So chi t'accese," has been added as I, 9, and the two last scenes in act I are again different, the act closing with the line, "Quando si sa morir," instead of "Io qui torno a palpitar." Schatz calls this the third setting of "Ezio" by Jommelli. SCHATZ 4894

London, J. and R. Tonson and S. Draper, 1755. 48 p. 18^{cm}.

Three acts and prologue. Cast and argument. “Generally attributed to Garrick, but is repudiated by him,” says the Dict. of Nat. biog. The Advertisement on p. [6] would seem to imply that John Christopher Smith himself wrote, i. e. compiled, the text:

"Many passages of the first merit, and some whole scenes in the Midsummer Night's Dream, are necessarily omitted in this opera, to reduce the performance to a proper length; it was feared that even the best poetry would appear tedious when only supported by recitative. Where Shakespear has not supplied the composer with songs, he has taken them from Milton, Waller, Dryden, Lansdown, Hammond, etc., and it is hoped they will not seem to be unnaturally introduced."

On the other hand, these two lines in the "Prologue, written and spoken by Mr. Garrick" (which, by the way, is a plea for English opera), would lead us to suspect Garrick's authorship, after all:

"I dare not say, who wrote it—I could tell ye.
To soften matters—Signor Shakespearelli."

London, Jacob Tonson, 1692. 3 p. l., 52 p. 21½^{cm}.

Five acts. Prologue and preface. According to Barelay Squire "an anonymous adaptation of Shakespear's "Midsummer night's dream," in which, curiously enough, not a single line by Shakespear appears with [Henry] Purcell's music. It was produced at the Dorset Garden Theatre in the spring of 1692."

The curious preface reads in part: "And many of the English gentry are sensible what advantage Paris receives, by the great number of strangers which frequent the opera's three days in a week, throughout the year. If therefore an opera were established here, by the favour of the nobility and gentry of England; I may modestly conclude it would be some advantage to London, considering what a sum we must yearly lay out among tradesmen for the fitting out so great a work. Davenant's Siege of Rhodes was the first opera we ever had in England, no man can deny . . . 'Tis true, the Siege of Rhodes wanted the ornament of machines, which they value themselves so much upon in Italy. And the dancing which they have in such perfection in France. . . . That a few private persons should venture on so expensive a work as an opera, when none but princes or states exhibit 'em abroad, I hope is no dishonour to our nation. And I dare affirm, if we had half the encouragement in England, that they have in other countries, you might in a short time have as good dancers in England as they have in France, though I despair of ever having as good voices among us, as they have in Italy. These are the two great things which travellers say we are most deficient in . . ."

Three acts. Author's dedication, "motivi del drama," scenario, and notice to the reader, with Marc' Antonio Ziani's name as composer, beginning: "Eccoti un poetico innesto tronco vecchio, gambo nuovo." This refers to the fact that this is "La Falsirena," with a new title and considerably altered. For instance, I, 1 has now the aria, "Speranze gradite," instead of "Speranza dolce e cara"; the second scene begins with the aria, "Sì, sì rapide correte," instead of "Perche mai luci adorate"; and the aria, "Il dardo di Cupido," has been dropped from the third scene.

Three acts. Dedication by the impresario Tomaso Garzia ("nella stagion presente nel mio teatro comparir deve"), cast, prefatory note and remark:

Fanfale—Continued.

Accordingly, only the arias “Quanto Amore è tristarello” (I, 3) “Aure amene, che spirate” (I, 7), “A me tu chiami bestia” (I, 11), “Si signore, io lo farò” (I, 12), “Cor mio inzuecherato” (I, 14), “Capace di più amarti” (I, 17) were by Leo. In other words, only the first act seems to have contained arias by him. The prefatory note sheds further light on this curious replica:

Faramondo—Continued.

The alterations are very much more numerous than these words would permit to infer. The Florence replica, for instance, begins, "Più che mai fiere, oh Dio" instead of "Sveno, Germano; O Dio!" and the scenes VII, "Del Tasso infausto," VIII, "Mio rè, pronta qui veggo," have been replaced by "Tardi giungemmo, amici" and "Signore, a tanta pompa." Dedication by the impresario Gio. Sebastiano Brilliandi ("dovendo esser l'ultimo [drama] della presente stagione"), scenario, argument, cast and name of Antonio Cortona as the composer. This preliminary matter (except the dedication) and the text both in Italian and French.

A curious libretto. It is clearly by Lucchini (not mentioned) but with noticeable, even if not very numerous differences. For instance, the scene 4, 8 in the Venice 1726 version (see Vivaldi) "A sorprendermi il cor" is not in the Brussels version and the former scene 1, 9 "Qual sembianza improvvisa" is now 1, 8 but with the aria

Farnace—Continued.

"Fia quel semplice augelletto" instead of "Al vezzezzgiar d'un volto." The second act begins with the former scene II, 5 "Di Farnace e del figlio" and III, 12 (with which the unpaginated matter begins) is the same (though much condensed) as the former scene III, 13 and last "Berenice morrà, morrà Pompeo." Now, the text of acts I and II is given complete with added French prose translation, whereas of the third act only the Italian text of the just mentioned (last) scene was printed, but to this was added the complete French prose translation of the third act. Comparison with Ant. M. Lucchini's "Farnace" text, as, for instance, set by Rinaldo da Capua (1739), proves that these two texts, notwithstanding the many differences, are identical. Rinaldo da Capua's opera begins: "Benche vinto, e sconfitto;" that of Perez: "Del nemico Farnace," which are the opening words of scene 3, act I, in Rinaldo da Capua's "Farnace."

Three acts. Author not mentioned, and unknown to Schatz, but unmistakably, and notwithstanding many differences, the text is identical with Lucchini's "Farnace" text, as comparison proves. Lucchini's text, at least in Rinaldo da Capua's setting (1739), begins: "Benche vinto, e sconfitto;" in the Pescetti setting: "Del nemico Farnace," which are the opening words of scene 3, act I, in Rinaldo da Capua's opera.

pregio à gl' antichi più famosi di Roma già dal tempo distrutti, ne questi s'apre giamai, che solo in occasione di nozze di serenissimi principi Farnesi; Così in esso rappresentandosi qualche drama non mai scompagnato da molteplicità di musici, da varietà di scene, e da quantità di machine. fù, e sarà sempre chi hà scritto, e scriverà per il medesimo in simile occorrenze costretto à passar la misura dell' ore limitate all' altre drammatiche compositioni. Due cose in questo drama hò studiate. Inventione parte necessaria ad ogni poeta, e disposizione delle cose inventate. Nella prima hò procurato con la varietà dell' apparenze di recar diletto, e non tedio alla grandezza, e nobiltà de' spettatori nel corso di sett' ore, che può forse durare la recita dell' opera, in cui mi dichiaro d' essermi scapricciato à mia voglia mercè alla generosità senza pari di S. L'onere (di cui me ne dichiaro incapace) del pregiato comando di S. A., che m'obligò in breve tempo à due sì gloriose fatiche, l'una per il Giardino, l'altra per il Gran Teatro, animò e invigeri la mia debolezza à una pronta obediienza. Se avrò in qualche parte mancato à quanto si richiederebbe ad un pondo sì grave; Spero che l'armonia della musica del virtuosissimo Sig. D. Bernardo Sabadini mastro di capella di S. A. Three acts. Argument by the author, Hirsch (not mentioned), and "avertissement" signed by the composer, Reinhard Keiser, in which he says in part:

"Soweit erstreckt sich der inhalt, so der herr autor zum vorbericht gesetzt: wobey ich dieses hinzu zu fuegen, dass mein wunsch dahin ziele, dieser opera mit so lustigem humeur zuzusehen, als mein gemeuet bisher verdruss bey meinem zustande empfunden. Da nun dieses meine drey und dreissigste composition der schauspielere, so moechten vielleicht die inventiones zu vielen 100. arien einem connoisseur einiges nachsinnen erwecken. Jedoch kan ich nicht in abrede seyn, dass zu deren verfertigung mich nichts als die liebe zu diesem theatro, fuernehmlich aber die hoefflichkeit eines vornehmen hauses encouragirt . . . Und da die meisten widrige raisonnements von denen gefaellert worden, welche etwass ihre passionen verleitet, oder sich flattiren, dass sie unter die zahl der musickenner gehoeren, wenn sie etwan ein menuet auff der hautbois oder violine spielen, so kann ich gegentheils versichern, dass ich niemals auff dergleichen jugements reflectirt, noch um den mauvais gout du par-terre mich bekuemmert, weil ich weiss, wie weit der menschen urtheil, so oeffters so unzeitig als irraisonnabel zu aestimiren. Einige arien aus meiner Amira habe desswegen hinein geruecket, weil dieselbe vereits vor 2. jahren. ehe allhier Almira auffgefuehrt, componirt, und damit sie nicht eben gar versteckt blieben, so habe darinnen einigen liebhabern leicht favorisiren koennen, obgleich dieselbe meistens gedruckt, und mit nachsten zusamt der Octavia zum vorschein kommen werden. Le feste d'Apollo, celebrate sul Teatro di Corte nell' agosto del MDCCLXIX. Per le auguste seguite nozze tra il reale infante Don Ferdinando e la R. arciduchessa infanta Maria Amalia.

Parma, Nella Stamperia reale, n. d. 15, 20, 27, 28 p., and 5 pl. (incl. front.). 24½^{cm}.

The plates are by P. A. Martini, and the first (dated "Parigiis 1769") and the fifth were also engraved by him. The others were engraved by Helman and C. Bagnoy. The artist of the exquisite vignettes, etc., is not mentioned.

Prologue and three acts, respectively entitled "Bauci e Filemone," "Aristeo," and "Orfeo." Each is preceded by the argument and cast, Avvertimento, scenario, and name of Gluck as the composer ("Tutta la musica"). The avvertimento reads, in part:

"Al prologo succedono pertanto tre atti diversi, due de' quali nuovamente composti. Altri ne erano già in pronto, che, alternati coi primi, potevano contribuire alla desiderata varietà. Si seppe appena che l'atto d'Orfeo, applaudito, anni sono sul Teatro Imperiale di Vienna, avrebbe incontrato sul nostro l'aggradimento dell' Augusta Persona, a cui queste feste sono sacre in gran parte, che si determinò di preferirlo."

"Orfeo" was Ranieri de' Calsabigi's complete text compressed into one act of seven scenes; the two others, and probably the prologue, by Carlo Innocente Frugoni, though neither of them is mentioned.

Performed, as indicated, August 24, 1769.

n. i., n. d. front., p. [99]-176. 16½^{cm}.

Evidently a detached copy. In his esthetic preface, "Ai leggitori," Carlo Innocente Frugoni says:

"Questo spettacolo teatrale è composto di tre soggetti disgiunti, ciascun de' quali si rinchiede in un' atto; ed è preceduto da un prologo."

The prologue is entitled "Il trionfo d'amore," the single acts "Atto d'Iride," "Atto di Saffo," and "Atto di Egle." Each act is preceded by the characters (not the cast) and by the argument. The opera is followed by "Aci e Galatea, balletto pantomimo," with argument and description of the twelve scenes. Tommaso Traetta is not mentioned in the libretto either as composer of the ballet or of the opera. The ballet, according to the preface, was already "conosciuto sulle nostre scene, ma universalmente desiderato" and the act "Egle" was "espressamente addottato" for its introduction.

Les festes de l'Hymen. A. T. of La roze.

Les festes de Paphos. Ballet héroïque mis en musique par Monsieur Mondonville . . . Représenté pour l'Académie royale de musique le 9^e may 1758.

This is the title of the full score published "chez l'auteur," etc. It consists of an overture and three acts, called: "Venus et Adonis," "Bacchus et Erigone" and "L'Amour et Psyché."

This work, of which the L. of C. does not possess the libretto, was but the combination of three one act ballets of the above titles into one. "Venus et Adonis," text by Collé, had first been performed at Versailles, Théâtre des Petit-Cabinets, April 27, 1752, and "Bacchus et Erigone" was first performed—Schatz claims under the title of "Erigone"—as after-piece to Dancourt's comedy, "Les trois cousines" at Versailles, March 13, 1747. As to "L'Amour et Psyche," Hellouin does not know the circumstances under which it was written and performed, but "Je sais seulement"—he says—"que le sempiternel abbé de Voisenon en avait fait les paroles, que son collaborateur prétendit toujours être de lui . . . En 1769, il servit de rentrée à Sophie Arnould qui fut reçue avec transport."

Chouquet and Schatz date this performance December 1, 1769, and enter it under "Psyché," under which title this ballet had already figured separately in 1762 and 1766, it would seem. Lajarte says: "Mondonville et Voisenon reprirent le sujet de la 3^e entrée [exactly this "L'Amour et Psyché"], pour en faire un acte séparé" and Chouquet says under "Psyché" (1769): "C'est le sujet du 3^e acte des Fêtes de Paphos remanié." The impression seems to be that the text and incidentally the music of "L'Amour et Psyché" were changed after 1758. I doubt this, since the text of the score and the text in the following publication agree absolutely.

— Bacchus et Erigone, ballet-héroïque en un acte. Le poème est de la Bruere. La musique est de M. de Mondonville.

n. i., n. d. 14 p. 22½^{cm}.

This is followed on p. [15-33] by:

— L'Amour et Psyché, ballet-héroïque en un acte. Le poème & la musique sont de M. de Mondonville.

Casts. On p. 33 the Approbation of date: Paris, September 26, 1769! In the cast of "L'Amour et Psyché" M^{lle} Arnould appears as "Psyché." Hence, if Chouquet's date of December 1, 1769, for the reappearance of Sophie Arnould in a revival of Mondonville's act is correct, the actual publication of the two librettos in this edition probably occurred about that time. As was stated above, the text of "L'Amour et Psyché" agrees absolutely with that of the third act in the score of "Les festes de Paphos" (1758). That of "Bacchus et Erigone" is only slightly different, Comus' air "Cher Bacchus, c'est assez" (I, 3) and Bacchus' air "Mon sort rendoit" (I, 5) not being in the libretto of 1769.

Cast and names of Favart as author and of Philidor as composer. Many of his ariettes printed in the text. ML 49.A2F1

Les festes de Thalie, ballet représenté pour la première fois, par l'Académie royale de musique, le dimanche 19 août 1714. Les paroles de M. de la Font & la musique de M. Mouret. LXXXV. opera.

n. i., n. d. pl., p. [177]-232. (Recueil général des opéra, t. xi, Paris, 1720.) 14^{cm}.

Detached copy. Three acts, with prologue. The single acts are called "La fille," "La veuve," "La femme." This was followed by a kind of epilogue, called "La critique des Festes de Thalie," by the same author and composer. The "Avertissement" is so interesting as to deserve a quotation in full:

"Voilà je croi, le premier opera où l'on ait vû des femmes habillées à la françoise, & des confidentes du ton des soubrettes de la comédie; c'est aussi la première fois que l'on a hazardé de certaines expressions convenables au comique, mais nouvelles jusqu'alors & même inconnûes sur la scène lyrique; le public en fut d'abord allarmé, cependant le théâtre qui règne du commencement jusqu'à la fin de ce Ballet se trouva si amusant & si enjôûé, qu'on y venoit en foule presque à contre-cœur. Je me fis conscience de divertir ainsi le public malgré lui, & pour rendre son plaisir pur & tranquile je me dépêchai de faire moi-même la Critique de mon ouvrage où je donnai tout le merite du succès à la musique & à la danse. Le public me scût si bon gré d'avoir eu cette attention pour lui, & devint si fort de mes amis que pendant quatre-vingt représentations il ne pouvoit se resoudre à me quitter, & même encore aujourd' hui il parle de ce Ballet avec plaisir."

The score of 1714 has the title, "Les festes ou Le triomphe de Thalie." "La critique des Festes de Thalie" was first performed on October 9, 1714, and the score was published in the same year. The entrée, "La veuve," was replaced on March 12., 1715, by "La veuve coquette," and the entrée, "La Provençale," was added on September 17, 1722. This was parodied by Duni at the Théâtre-Italien on March 4, 1758, as "La fille mal gardée;" "La veuve coquette," at the Opéra-comique à la Foire Saint-Laurent, on September 22, 1759, as "La veuve indécise;" and Laujon and Parvi gave a parody of "Les festes de Thalie" at the Théâtre-Italien on August 21, 1745, as "La fille, la femme et la veuve."

Detached copy. Prologue and three entrées called "Les jeux olympiques," "Les bacchanales," "Les saturnales." The long preface (p. 265-270) reads in part:

"Les Festes grecques et romaines forment un ballet d'une espece toute nouvelle. La Muse lyrique n'avoit jusqu'à présent tiré ses poèmes que de la chroniques des Amadis, de l'Ariosto, des Métamorphoses d'Ovide, du Tasse & d'autres semblables auteurs. La France n'a encore soumis que la fable à la musique; l'Italie plus hardieuse a placé dans ses opera les événemens de l'histoire. Les Scarlatti & les Buononcini ont fait chanter des Heros que Corneille & Racine auroient fait parler. Enhardy par ces exemples, on s'est dispensé de glaner dans les champs trop souvent moissonnez de la mythologie & du romain: Heureux si on est approuvé en ouvrant aux poètes du théâtre chantant, une carrière digne d'occuper les Génies amateurs du vray-semblable.

"On a rassemblé dans ce ballet, les fêtes de l'antiquité les plus connues, & qui ont semblé les plus favorables au théâtre & à la musique. On les confond toutes sous le nom de Festes grecques & romaines, parce qu'effectivement Rome adopta tous les Dieux d'Athenes. On a pris soin d'assortir à ces Fêtes célèbres des aventures & des noms illustres . . ."

One act. On p. 23-32 the "Airs de L'amour impromptu": "O Dieux! qu'elle est belle," "Quitte la plaine," "Répondez, Je respire," "Chantez, sautez, jeunes beautés," "Prenez au village une maîtresse." The "acte d'Eglé" is the same as the third entrée, "La danse," though none of the entrées of Rameau's "Les fêtes d'Hébé ou Les talens lyriques" are called "Eglé." ("Eglé, bergère" is one of the characters in "La danse.") The text of the parody was by Favart. According to Font it is the same as his unpublished parody, "Sansonnnet et Tonton" of 1739, which had been forbidden by the police. This, however, he mentions (p. 339) as a parody of the second entrée, "La musique"! Malherbe's preface to the reprint of Rameau's "Les fêtes d'Hébé" score does not face this contradiction and his remarks on the parody are not felicitous. SCHATZ 11479

Paris, Aux dépens de l'Académie, chés de Lormel, 1766. 56 p. 23^{cm}.

Cast. Written by different authors, the three entrées were also set to music by different composers. The libretto mentions "Francoeur neveu" (Louis Joseph) as composer of the first "Lindor et Ismene;" Jean Philippe Rameau as composer of the second "Anacréon;" de Moncrif as author and Pierre Berton as composer of the third "Erosine, pastorale-héroïque, en un acte, représentée, devant Leurs Majestés, à Fontainebleau, le 9 novembre 1765." (See also Erosine.) "Lindor et Ismene" was written by Michel de Bonneval and, according to Schatz, the text is the same as that of "Le Roman merveilleux," fourth entrée in his ballet "Les Romains" (1736). The text of "Anacréon" was by Louis de Cahusac, and this one-act opéra-ballet had first been performed on October 23, 1754. It is not to be confused with Rameau's Anacréon, text by Gentil-Bernard, first performed May 31, 1757, as third act in his "Les surprises de l'amour." ML 52.2.F46

Three acts. Scenario, cast, and names of Mattia Verazi as author, of Niccolò Jommelli as composer ("nuova composizione"). The text seems to follow the 1768 edition closely, though, for instance, the chorus "Della gran buccina," at end of I, 5 has been dropped.

La fida ninfa. Dramma per musica da rappresentarsi in Verona nella dedicazione del nuovo Teatro Filarmonico. [vignette]

n. i., n. d. [191]—256 p. 18^{cm}.

Evidently detached copy. Three acts. The text is preceded by Giulio Cesare Becelli's very interesting preface on p. [193]—202, in which he says that the text was written by the author [marchese Scipione Maffei] when eighteen years of age. Later on he altered and used the text for a special musical purpose and forgot all about it, until the refusal of "alcuni valenti poeti" to furnish a new drama for the opening festivities of the new Teatro Filarmonico in Verona, in 1730 induced him to use his own text instead. Becelli then tells us how Giuseppe Maria Orlandini, the composer, came from Bologna to Verona to confer with Maffei on further changes in the text and how he came as Maffei's guest "per levar arie, o aggiungere, e per adattarle al di lui piacere nel modo, e nel sito, e in altre circostanze della scena, secondando anche il genio dei cantanti: anzi in alcuni luoghi vi erano due arie invece di una, perchè il maestro prendesse la più geniale, di qualcuna ancora essendosi servito, che avea con applauso usata in cantate . . ." Hence Maffei's hostile views on this kind of cooperation between dramatist and composer. Finally, Becelli makes some noteworthy remarks on the same subject. Schatz records, but evidently incorrectly, Antonio Vivaldi as the composer. ML 50.2.F407

Venetia, Gio. Battista Surian, 1641. 96 p. 13½^{cm}.

Three acts with prologue. Author's dedication dated Venice, January 14, 1641, and his notice to the reader, which begins:

"Questa è l'ottava fatica rappresentativa, che mi trovo haver fatta; cinque delle quali hanno di già più volte passegiate le scene, e in questa m'e riuscito assai felicemente lo sciorre più d'un nodo di lei senza magia, e senza ricorrere a gli aiuti soprannaturali, e divini."

At the end he mentions Francesco Sacratì as the composer. Then follows "Sonetti del Sig. Francesco Melosi alla Signora Anna Renzi, celebre cantatrice di Roma, rappresentante in Venetia La finta pazza" and "Pianto di Deidamia nella Finta pazza. Espresso mirabilmente in musica dalla Sig. Anna Renzi Romana." At end this note by "Gio. Battista Surian libraio al frequente compratore":

"Sono stato sforzato dall' avidità de' lettori di quest' opera à metterla due volte in un mese sotto il torchio; tanto applauso hà ricevuto dalle lingue universali La finta pazza nel Teatro Novissimo della città di Venetia, ov' ella con regale apparato è stata in 17 giorni dodici volte rappresentata." La finta Savia. Drama di Giulio Strozzi. [vignette]

Venizia, Matteo Leni e Giovanni Vecellio, 1643. 190, 1 (errata) p. 14½^{cm}.

Three acts, with prologue and two "canzonetta cantata per intermezzo." Strozzi's dedication, dated Venice, January 1, 1643, "argomento historico," argument preceding each scene, and this note after the list of characters:

"Molti versi si tralascieranno per la lunghezza dell' opera fabricata dall' autore per poterla anco rappresentare senza canto."

Following the text of the opera: (p. 182-183) "breve ristretto dell' argomento;" (p. 186-190) "Osservazioni;" and this statement on p. 184-185:

"La musica di questo drama è per la maggior parte compositione esquisita del Signor Filiberto Laurenzi da Bertinoro, il quale con la sua virtù ha saputo dalla buona scuola di Roma, e dalla degna di Venetia far un misto ottimo, e molto adeguato così al recitativo, come all' arioso per questa opera.

"Il Signor [Arcangelo] Crivelli ha maestrevolmente favorite alcune delle mie scene, ed alcun' altre sono state honorate dal Signor [Tarquinio] Merula, ed altre finalmente nobilitate dal Signor Benedetto Ferrari: e perche l' operatione lodi i fattori, habbiamo ad ogni scena posto il nome dell' autor della musica.

“Le macchine, e le scene con numerose mutazioni sono state inventate dal vivacissimo Sig. Gio. Burnacini da Jesena, il quale fù gli anni adietro il primo, che ravvivò i teatri di Venetia con queste maestrose apparenze . . .

Napoli, Vincenzo Mazzola-Vocola, 1791. 34 p. 15cm.

One act, with running title "atto secondo"! Impresario's dedication dated Salerno, December 1791, with name of Pietro Guglielmi as the composer, and cast. Lorenzi's text has been noticeably altered. For instance, the second scene, "E ben? se astretti siamo," has become the third and "Dico avete finito di gracchiare?" has been added as the second. The differences become more numerous towards the end.

SCHATZ 4245

Le finte gemelle. Farsa per musica a quattro voci.

Firenze, Stecchi e Pagani, 1771. 1 p. l., 56 p. 16cm.

Two acts. At end: "Farsa in musica fatta rappresentare nell' estate del MDCCCLXXI nella villa Palmieri de Tre-Visi da S. E. Milord Co. di Cowper." Niccolò Piccinni is mentioned as the composer. Giuseppe Petrosellini, the author, is not mentioned.

First performed at Rome, Teatro alla Valle, January 2, 1771, but Cametti claims under the title of "Le due finte gemelle."

SCHATZ 8094

— Le finte gemelle. Dramma giocoso per musica da rappresentarsi in Lisbona nel Teatro della rua dos Condes nell' estate dell' anno 1773.

[Lisbona], Stamperia reale, n. d. 94 p. 17cm.

Three acts. Cast, scenario, and names of Giuseppe Petrosellini as author, of Niccolò Piccinni as composer. Obviously an expansion of the two-act version. The dialogue is otherwise fairly the same (with the customary changes of arias, of course) up to and including II, 12. Then the Florence two-act version ends with the "ultima: Dice bene il proverbio," which closes with the final tutti of the three-act version, "Deh scendi Amore dal carro adorno."

— Le due finte gemelle. Intermezzo in musica a quattro voci da rappresentarsi nel Nobil Teatro Tron di San Cassiano il carnovale dell' anno MDCCCLXXXIII . . .

Venezia, Modesto Fenzo, 1783. 51 p. 17½cm.

Two acts. Impresario's dedication, cast, scenario, and name of Niccolò Piccinni as the composer. Though the impresario, Giuseppe Pratini speaks of this as "questo nuovo intermezzo" and though we read "La musica sarà," the text (with the customary alterations) is that of Giuseppe Petrosellini's "Le finte gemelle." Milano, Gio. Batista Bianchi, n. d. 70, 22, 19 p. 16^{cm}.

Two acts. Dedication, cast, scenario, and name of Pietro Guglielmi as the composer. The text is that of "I finti amori," but with many alterations. For instance, I, 4, "Caro sposo, sposo amato," has become I, 5, and II, 1, has the aria, "Sa lei Signor marchese," instead of "Sta in quell' abito celata." The additional pages contain argument and description of Sebastiano Gallet's "Le rapt des Sabines, ballet heroique" in five acts and of his "Le maréchal." This is followed by the descriptions of his "Il disertore, ballo tragi-comico" and "Le pazzie amorose." The title of "Il disertore" has the date of performance of 1785, whereas the two French ballets have not. On p. 7 of the libretto the titles of the two ballets to be performed are "L'amor vincitore ossia Diana ed Endimione" and "Le pazzie amorose." Apparently there was either confusion in the plans of the management or confusion in binding.

First performed, as indicated, October 22, 1785.

Two acts. Cast added in pencil and name of Sarti as the composer. This ed. of Bertati's text shows differences from the St. Petersburg ed. For instance, "Se la bella per via troverò" of the latter (I, 4) has become "La mia cara, la mia bella" and "Staremo allegramente" (II, 10) has become "Nel mirar la bella dama." German title-page "Die erdichteten lehnserven," and text face Italian. SCHATZ 9434

"è parto della già nota penna del Signor Matteo Noris, che avrà la discretezza di soffrire la mutazione fattasi quivi nell' arie, le quali non si sono rinnovate per riprovare in conto alcuno quelle, che si gentilmente vi stavano, ma per recare qualche sorte di varietà ad un' opera, che viene in iscena dopo essere stata già veduta comparire su più famosi teatri."

The alterations are quite numerous. For instance in I, 14 the aria "Amor, tu reggimi" has replaced "Perch'io veggo se son tradito," "Su, miei spirti che s'aspetta" in I, 18 "Spirti fieri a la vendetta," "Parlar potesse il cuore" in I, 20 "Deggio credesti o gelosia." Flora: or, Hob in the well. An opera. Being Mr. Dogget's farce of the Country wake, alter'd after the manner of the Beggar's opera.

[77]-109 p. 18^{cm}. (Colley Cibber, Dramatic works, London, J. Rivington and sons [etc.], 1777.)

Two acts. 1768 cast! As will be seen from a comparison of this entry with the following, there is a contradiction of authorship, on which confused data will be found in the reference books. As a matter of fact, the text in all the following entries is identical! Consequently "Flora" (later on called Flora, or, Hob in the well) is either by Hippisley or by Cibber. If some authorities seek a way out of the difficulty by saying that Hipplesley altered a farce by Cibber, "Hob, or, The country wake" (1715) into a ballad opera (1729), Cibber's farce itself being an alteration of Thomas Dogget's farce "The country-wake" (1696), they forget that Cibber never wrote a farce of the title, "Hob, or, The country wake." The probabilities are that "Flora" has been attributed incorrectly to Hipplesley and that Cibber was indeed its author. PR 3347.A1

In this five-act play by Thomas Durfey there is a fair amount of singing, but, what is quite unusual, three of the airs (presumably by Durfey) are printed in the text, with their words. They are: "The age is refin'd," "I found my Caelia one night undrest," "To ramble from taverns."

The front., a scene from the play, shows, in upper left hand corner, what appears to be the portrait of the author, whose real name was Anthony Aston, for the title of the biographical sketch (p. 15-22) is: "A sketch of the life, etc. of Mr. Anthony Aston, commonly call'd Tony Aston. Written by himself:—Now all alive." (The importance of this autobiographical sketch for the history of the American theatre was pointed out by me in the New Music Review, June, 1907.) The sketch is preceded, on p. 12-14, by "A ballad, call'd A dissertation on the Beggar's opera." The 17 airs used are indicated by title. Text preceded by cast (Aston, sen., playing the poet) and prefatory note to the reader. The [2] p. at end contain book advertisements by J. Applebee and T. Payne. LONGE 291

[London] Printed for Jos. Knight and Fra. Saunders, 1688. 4 p. l. 85, [3 p.], 16 p. (music). 21½^{cm}.

Five acts, prologue, and epilogue. Durfey's dedication, cast. After the epilogue, a list of "plays printed for Henry Herringman." The songs, voice and bass, have a special title page:

NEW SONGS sung in The fool's preferment, or, The three dukes of Dunstable.

In the Savoy. Printed by E. Jones, for Jos. Knight and Fran. Saunders, 1688.

Of the eight songs, all but two have the name of Henry Purcell as composer at end. The two are: "I'll sail upon the dog-star" and "A Scotch song . . . A dialogue by Jockey and Jenny." Mr. Squire has pointed out that neither the words of these nor of "Fled is my love; 'Tis Death alone" and "If thou wilt give me back" appear in the play, and that, on the other hand, the play contains two songs—"In yonder cowslip" and "I'll lay me down"—for which no music is given.

exige des connoissances approfondies de l'architecture, et de la perspective; et elles doivent être jointes à toutes les parties de la peinture qui sont communes aux autres genres. La mécanique doit aussi fournir au décorateur des moyens ingénieux de faire valoir, par des changemens et des oppositions, ses différents tableaux. Il seroit à souhaiter, sans doute, que le genre de spectacle auquel l'art des décorations théâtrales est particulièrement adapté dans toute l'Europe, et qui intéresse à ses jeux trois Muses qui gagnent à être bien unies, pût toujours rassembler tous les secours que chacune d'elles doit lui offrir; mais si cette réunion difficile se voit rarement, des beautés particulières suppléent au moins très-souvent à cette perfection générale. Un poème rempli d'action et d'intérêt semble en effet avoir moins besoin du charme de la musique et de l'illusion de la peinture. Une musique saillante et pleine de génie paroît aussi quelquefois distraire entièrement de l'attention qu'on croiroit nécessaire aux poèmes. Pourquoi la peinture ne s'efforceroit-elle pas d'avoir l'avantage d'occuper seule toute l'attention des spectateurs? Pourquoi n'aspireroit-elle pas à la gloire de faire oublier quelques instans ses sœurs, et de recueillir, sans les partager, les applaudissemens flatteurs d'une nation éclairée sur les arts qui contribuent tous à sa gloire et à ses plaisirs? C'est le but qu'ose se proposer le Sieur Servandoni." ML 52.2.F6G3

The unnumb. p. contains "errori." Five acts. Neither the composer, Carlo Francesco Pollaroli, nor the author, conte Girolamo Frigimelica Roberti is mentioned. The latter, as was his custom (on p. 2-8), gives a "Notizia poetica," with his views of what constitutes a tragicomedia. He says in part:

"Propone alla fantasia un' immagine di poema mescolato di tragedia e di comedia" but "da tutto questo si comprende quanto sia diversa la tragicomedia, dalla tragedia di lieto fine."

(Count Roberti may not have been a great poet, but his dramaturgic esthetic prefaces are well worth studying for a history of opera-libretto.) The "notizia poetica" is followed by a "notizia istorica" and a detailed description of "Le scene, ed i cori d'intermezzo." SCHATZ 8291

Sarti's opera was first performed at Milan, Teatro alla Scala, September 14, 1782, as "Fra i due litiganti il terzo gode," its best known title. SCHATZ 9453

— Fra i due litiganti il terzo gode. Dramma giocoso per musica in trè atti, da rappresentarsi nel Teatro Elettorale.

Dresda, n. publ., 1784. 117 p. 16^{cm}.

Sarti is mentioned as the composer. German title-page "Unter zwey streitenden siegt der dritte," and text face the Italian, which is the same as "I pretendenti delusi," but with some differences. For instance, the aria, "E destin troppo infelice," has been dropped at the beginning of I, 11, and of course the original two acts have become three. SCHATZ 9457

— Fra i due litiganti il terzo gode: Dramma giocoso per musica da rappresentarsi nel Reggio Teatro di S. Carlo, della Principessa l' autunno dell' anno 1793.

Lisbona, Simone Taddeo Ferreira, 1793. 151 p. 15^{cm}.

Two acts. Cast, scenario, and name of Giuseppe Sarti as the composer. Portuguese text faces Italian. With the opera was performed (composer of the music not mentioned) Gaetano Ghelardini's ballet, "Le vendemmie, o sia La villanella rapita." SCHATZ 9468

— Fra i due litiganti il terzo gode. Dramma giocoso per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro alla Scala l' autunno dell' anno 1795 . . .

Milano, Gio. Batista Bianchi, n. d. 60 p. 15½^{cm}.

Two acts. Impresario's dedication, cast, scenario, and name of Giuseppe Sarti as the composer. The text is the same as "I pretendenti delusi," but with many alterations. With the opera were performed Gaspare Ronzi's ballets, "Il rè pastore" and "La fanciulla mal custodita," the composer of the music not being mentioned. SCHATZ 9454

— I due litiganti. Dramma giocoso per musica da rappresentarsi nel nobilissimo Nuovo Teatro di Padova il carnevale dell' anno 1792 . . .

Padova, per li Conzatti, n. d. 52 p. 17^{cm}.

Two acts. Impresario's dedication, cast, scenario, and name of Giuseppe Sarti as the composer. The text is the same as "I pretendenti delusi," but with considerable alterations. On p. 29, argument, without name of the composer of the music of Giuseppe Bartolomei's ballet, "Bacco e Arianna." SCHATZ 9456

Fra i due litiganti il terzo gode—Continued.

— Le nozze di Dorina, a new comic opera, in two acts, as performed at the King's Theatre in the Haymarket. The music by the celebrated Signor Sarti, under the direction of Mr. Storace.

London, J. Hammond, n. d. 55 p. 20^{cm}.

Cast. English translation faces the Italian, which takes the usual unlimited liberties with Goldoni's text.

First performed at London, same theatre, January 6, 1784, as "I rivali delusi;" under the above title, it would seem, shortly after Storace's return to England, in 1787.

I fratelli nemici. Tragedia per musica da rappresentarsi nel Regio Teatro di Berlino . . . MDCCLVI.

Berlino, Haude e Spener, n. d. 115, [4] p. 16½^{cm}.

Three acts. By G. P. de Tagliazucchi, who begins his prefatory note:

"La traduzione italiana di una eccellente tragedia francese, che ò l'onore di presentare al publico m'obbliga a pregarlo del suo compatimento, s'ei troverà, che l'osservanza di un metro regolare, la rima deteminatamente obbligata, e la scelta delle parole alla musica confacenti m'anno forzato nelle arie a prendermi qualche libertà senza però gran torto al sentimento. Sia in una, sia in altra maniera decentemente vestita leggiadra giovane sarà sempre leggiadra. Ne' recitativi, dove il metro non mi legava, e la rima, servendo di solo ornamento alla poesia, s'è venuta naturalmente a intromettere dove luogo à trovato, mi lusingo, che il lettore m'incontrerà fedele, ed esatto; non senza aver avuto però tutto il riguardo di conformarmi al genio particolare di nostra favella da quello della Francese cosè diferente . . ."

Tagliazucchi herewith alludes to the fact that his text was merely the Italian version of an "excellent French tragedy," written by Frederick the Great and based on Racine's "Les frères ennemis." Scenario and name of Carl Heinrich Graun as composer. German text (by Francesco Grugnanelli, according to Mennicke) and title-page, "Die uneinigen brueder," face Italian.

First performed, as indicated, January 9, 1756.

In the "Vorrede," dated Leipzig, June 15, 1773, the author calls this the "erstling meiner Muse," hopes for a favorable reception of it, and says:

"Die operotten machen seit einigen jahren, wie in Italien und Frankreich, also auch in Deutschland, den hauptgegenstand des theaters aus, und der geschmack an komoedien und trauerspielen ist dadurch um ein merkliches gefallen. Das weiche gefuehl, welches die mit gesaengen untermischte musik der oper in uns hervorbringt, gab vermuthlich zu dieser veraenderung anlass . . . By Christian Gotthilf Weissflog, who also composed the music and who says, in his "Vorerrinerung:"

"Gegenwaertige kleine komische operette ist urspruenglich nur fuer schultheater bestimmt gewesen. Ich muss indessen gestehen, dass mir seit etlichen jahren zwar viele schauspiele bekannt geworden, die sich noch weit besser fuer schultheater schicken, als dieses; aber sehr wenig komische opern, die der Kleinen aehrenleserin und der Friedensfeier des herrn Weiss gleich kaeme. Aber auch in diesen fallen die gesaenge zu unvermutend ein; ein fehler, der fast in allen komischen opern bemerkt wird.

"Es laesst allerdings sehr sonderbar, und ist oft wider alle erwartung des zuschauers, wenn der akteur oder die aktrise ganz unvermuthet zu singen anfaengt, und noch dazu das singt, was eigentlich hactte sollen gesprochen werden. Ich habe diesen fast allgemeinen fehler in dieser operette zu vermeiden gesucht, und die gesaenge niemals so unvermuthet anheben, sondern gleichsam vorher erst ankuendigen lassen. So verlangt es die natur, und so haben es sachverstaendige auch sehr lange gewünscht . . . The fugitive; or, Happy recess. A dramatic pastoral, in two acts, as written for the Royalty Theatre: By Thomas Shapter . . .

London, Printed for the author, by John Abraham, n. d. 4, 30 p. 20^{cm}.

In his preface the author tells us that the piece was hastily written for the Royalty Theatre in the spring of 1790, accepted and turned over to “Mr. [John] Moulds, composer, to adapt to music,” but owing to illness the latter did not finish the music until about the close of the season. He then “repossessed” the music, by permission of the managers for private purposes. The score “fell into some other hands which rendered a fresh copy of the scores necessary to be taken.” The piece was to reopen the new season, but the copyist was exasperatingly slow: “the whole was finally delivered about the beginning of September, just before the theatre opened anew, and was getting forward for rehearsal, when, suddenly, the second season came to a close . . .”

Napoli, 1773, n. publ. 70 p. 15½^{cm}.

Three acts. Author not mentioned. Cast and name of Niccolò Piccinni as the composer. The text is but a revamped version of Pietro di Napoli's "La furba burlata," composed by Niccolò Piccinni, with exception of two pieces in the first act, by Nicola Logroscino, and several arias by Giacomo Insanguine, and first performed at Naples, Teatro de' Fiorentini, fall of 1760. According to Schatz, and at least the libretto with Piccinni's name as only composer would appear to corroborate his claim, the music of "I furbi burlati" was entirely by Piccinni, though perhaps Schatz goes too far if he says "vollständig neu bearbeitet." Cametti is of no assistance in this matter. SCHATZ 8127

Two acts. Cast and name of the composer, Valentino Fioravanti ("musica del tutta nuova"), to whom Schatz also attributes the text, though the libretto simply says: "La poesia del tutto nuova del Sig. N. N." Schatz based his information, probably, on a somewhat altered version of the libretto "Chi la fa, chi la disfa, e chi l'imbrogli," Trieste, 1802, in which Fioravanti figures both as author and composer. SCHATZ 3131

Three acts. German title-page, "Die rasereyen des Rolands," and text face Italian. "Touchemolin, primo violino e direttore de concerti di S^a A^{ss} S^{ma} il principe della Torre e Tassis," is mentioned as the composer. A long, pretentious, but noteworthy, "Avertissement aux amateurs du spectacle," by the author, Domenico Friggieri, precedes the text, which is a scathing arraignment of the average Italian opera libretto. He says:

"Je n'ignore point ce que les Gens d'Esprit et de bon sens pensent du mérite prétendu des Operas Comiques Italiens. Je conviens sincerement avec eux, qu'on n'y trouve ni conduite, ni intérêt, ni sens commun &c.

"Cependant on ne doit point supposer, comme a fait quel q'un, que ce genre de Composition soit l'ouvrage des Poëtes. L'Italie, qui a toujours produit des Hommes savants en toutes sciences, abonde encore aujourd'hui en grands Poëtes capables par leur génie de donner à cette partie de l'Art drammatique la perfection, dont elle seroit susceptible. Mais ceux ci n'oseroient employer leurs talents a composer des Operas Comiques, par des raisons assez solides, qu'on trouvera dans mon Histoire du Theatre de Musique Italien que je donnerai d'icia quelque tems au Public. Histoire, qui ne sera pas peu divertissante, ni peu instructive pour bien des Gens.

"Il est sur que ces Farces, qu'on represente en Musique, depuis un certain nombre d'années, et surtout après le depart de Mr. Goldoni pour la France, sont des productions de certains Rimailleurs mercenaires, qui n'ont presque aucune connoissance ni de la Poësie, ni du Theatre, ni du Monde. Il arrive cependant a quelques uns de ces pauvres Versificateurs a gages, d'enfanter quelque fois, ou de choisir un sujet assez bon et d'imaginer un Plan, sur le quel ils pourroient travailler de façon, a ne point mériter tout a fait le mépris des Gens de Esprit; Mais, malheureusement gênés dans leur travail, et contraints par des Entrepreneurs presque tous ignorants, avâres, et souvent paillards à contenter le gout des Acteurs, et des charmantes Actrices, qui doivent jouer pour la premiere fois leur piece, (gout, qui comme on peut aisement se le persuader n'est jamais des plus fins, et délicats) ils defigurent le sujet heureusement trouvé, et le Plan bien conçu, surchargeant l'un, et l'autre d'un amâs de plattes bouffonneries, de Scenes pastiches, de Dialogues impertinents, et mille autres sottises; de façon, qu'ils produisent un monstre, qui sortant ensuit improprement paré de tous les charmes possibles d'une exçellente Musique, n'en est que plus meprisable, et cents fois plus hideux, et extravagant, que celui, imaginé par Horace dans son Epitre sur l'Art Poétique.

"Une preuve de ce que je dis ici, c'est que ce même Dramme lyrique, que je presente au Public, sous le titre des Fureurs de Roland, a été donné il y a quelques années par un de ces Compositeurs, dont je viens de parler, fârci de mille défauts, comme on peut le voir dans un Exemplaire, que je conserve. On ne pouvoit pourtant pas appeller sa piece tout a fait mauvaise, ni même mediocre; et la parcourant plus d'une fois pour voir si on pourroit la produire sur ce Theatre, elle m'a fait naitre la resolution de la refaire, plus tot que de la rejeter, conservant les mêmes Personnages, une grande partie du Plan imaginé par son premier Auteur, beaucoup des ses idées, et de ses Vers tres bons, jusqu' au nombre de 235 a peu près.

"J'ai ajouté de mon invention tout le Spectacle, comme aussi tout le 3me Acte, et la Catastrophe, et plusieurs Scenes. J'ai corrigé, et refait les Caracteres des Personnages. J'ai rejeté avec dédain une mauvaise plaisanterie, qui devenoit une Satire peu honette contre la Musique Française: de telles sottises n'étant propres, qu'a fomentier, et maintenir cette haine déraisonnable, et ce mépris réciproque d'une Nation a une autre; Eifet détestable des prejûgés enfantés par la vanité, et la bêtise. Enfin j'ai tant refondu cette piece, qu'il seroit bien difficile a son ancien Compositeur d'y reconnoitre une partie de son Plan, et des ses idées. Je me flatte hardiment de la'voir rendue beaucoup meilleure. Du moins on y verra Rolland, pas seulement Fou, mais furieux: et l'on n'y rencontrera point mille bouffoneries indecentes, et outrées, qui ne peuvent que faire rire les sots. Il est vrai que, justement par cette raison ma piece sera trouvée mauvaise par les soidisants Acteurs Italiens; mais je me soucie fort peu de leurs suffrages, aussi bien que de la critique de quelques uns de leurs partisans."

Das gaertner-maedchen. Eine komische oper, in drey aufzuegen, herausgegeben von dem verfasser.

Three acts. Neither the composer, Ernst Wilhelm Wolf, is mentioned, nor the author, Johann Carl August Musaeus, whose long preface occupies the p. 1. and which reads, in part:

"Ein eigennütziger Akteur von der Kochischen Gesellschaft und ein vorlauter Kunstrichter, vertreten bey dieser kleinen thearalischen Arbeit die Stelle dringender Freunde und Gönner, denen man nichts abschlagen kann: sie nöthigen mir beyde, durch ihren Eifer dieses Stück der Vergessenheit zu entreissen, die öffentliche Bekanntmachung desselben ab, so wenig dieses jemals meine Absicht war. Der erste, der aller Vermuthung nach entweder dem Herrn Koch das Manuskript des Gärtnermädchens unter irgend einem Vorwand abzuschwatzen gemusst, oder aus den ausgeschriebenen Roleu das Stück zusammen gestoppelt haben mag, wie dieses einige abgeschmackte Zusätze und Abänderungen wahrscheinlich machen, ist so unverschämt, um einen kleinen Gewinnst zu erhaschen, diese Operette an einen Buchdrucker in Berlin zu vertrödeln, der sie ohne mein Vorwissen, mit allen Fehlern der unkorrekten Abschrift abgedruckt hat. Der andere versucht seit drey Jahren an mir bey aller Gelegenheit seine kritischen Kräfte, ohne dass er mich bisher aus meinem Ruhepunkte hätte bewegen können, und ohne den unbefugten Herausgeber dieser Operette, hätte er noch drey Jahr schwatzen mögen, ich hätte kein Wort darüber verlohren. Ich war versichert, dass das Publikum bey der Menge partheischer Richter in ein unbescheidenes Urtheil eines einzigen zu viel Misstrauen setzt, als dass es sich, ehe es selbst meine Arbeit mit der Kritik darüber vergleichen konnte, von ihm sollte übertäuben lassen. Aber nun da durch die Gewinnsucht eines Niederträchtigen, den ich in der Kochischen Gesellschaft nicht vermuthet hätte, diese Operette in der nachtheiligsten Gestalt öffentlich erscheint, dürfen die Fehler des Berliner Drucks leicht auf meine Rechnung kommen, und dadurch würde das Urtheil des Kunstrichters allerdings einiges Gericht erhalten. Es bleibt mir daher kein andrer Weg übrig, als solche selbst abdrucken zu lassen, und sie dem Publico vorzulegen. Ich habe nichts hauptsächliches daran verändert, und nur dem Dialog an einigen Stellen wo er mir zu weitschichtig und geschwätzig schien, etwas abgenommen. Eigentlich hatte ich diese Stellen schon nach der ersten Aufführung weggestrichen, sie sind aber, wie ich sehe all beybehalten worden, vermuthlich um den Druck mehr anzuschwellen. Andere Veränderungen habe ich um deswillen nicht unternommen, weil das Ganze dadurch leicht eine neue Gestalt würde bekommen haben, und die Leser ausser Stande seyn würden, das Stück mit den darüber gefällten Kritiken zusammen zuhalten, und über beydes selbst zu urtheilen. In Ansehung dieser leztern ist für die Leser eine Erläuterung nöthig. Es scheint, als wenn ganz verschiedene Kunstrichter ihr Urtheil wider mich vereinigt hätten, in der That ist es aber nur der einzige Christian Heinrich Schmid, der sein hölzernes Schwerdt gegen mich gezückt hat. Alles was er in der Nachricht von den theatralischen Vorstellungen auf der Leipziger Bühne, in der Klotzischen Bibliothek wider das Gärtnermädchen deklamirte, das hat er in den Zusätzen zur Theorie der Poesie, in seinem Almanach der deutschen Musen und in dem Parterre wiedergekäuert.

"Ueber eine solche theatralische Kleinigkeit als eine Operette ist, würde es unschicklich seyn, sich weitläufig vertheidigen zu wollen; indessen glaube ich, dass einige Anmerkung über die voreiligen Urtheile des Herrn Schmid hier nicht ganz überflüssig sind. Was er eigentlich bisher gegen das Gärtnermädchen erinnert hat, ist dieses, dass das Stüjet aus einem schlechten französischen Roman genommen, dass das ganze Stück Weissische Nachahmung sey, dass dem Herrn Weisse viele Verse abgestohlen wärem, und dass ich keine Situation zu nutzen verstünde. Alles übrige ist Petulanz in dem Modeton der Klotzischen Schule.

“Es ist wahr, die Idee zum Gärtnermädchen ist aus dem Französischen Roman La Jardiniere de Vincennes, aber mag doch dieser gut oder schlecht seyn, was liegt daran?”

“Worinne übrigens die Weissische Nachahmung liegen soll, das weiss ich nicht, so viel weiss ich, dass ich bey der Ausarbeitung des Gärtnermädchens kein besonderes Muster vor Augen gehabt habe, und nur der Idee überhaupt gefolgt bin, zwischen dem Grottesken der Opera Buffa und dem leeren der französischen Operette das Mittel zu halten, welches dem deutschen Geschmack angemessen scheint. Dass mich aber die komischen Opern des Herrn Weise auf diese Idee gebracht haben, das räume ich ganz gerne ein . . .

“Weil ich aber doch überhaupt Herr Weisen soll geplündert haben, so versteht sich, dass ihm auch viele Verse im Gärtnermädchen ganz zugehören, dieser Vorwurf ist in der That für mich ein Kompliment. Herr Schmid hält also viel von meinen Versen für Weisische? Sie müssen doch so schlecht nicht seyn als er sie ausschreyet.”

Venetia, Zamaria Rossi, 1689. 5 p. l., 48 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts. By Paolo Emilio Badi, who is not mentioned. Scenario, argument, impresario's dedication, and notice to the reader, which evidently refers to some local event involving the Teatro di S. Moisè and the reputation of Venice's fair treatment of strangers. He says that it fell to his lot to sustain this theatre "sbattuto non dalla disgratia, ma dalla malignità," and that he selected this "operina," "composta in due giri di sole e posta in musica in tre notti," by Teofilo Orgiani, who has united "la maestria romana con le bizzarrie teatrali di Venetia."

versuch zu machen, ob ich nicht eine operette verfertigen koennte, die, ohne fade zu seyn, scherzhaft unterhielte, einen moralischen zweck ausfuehrte, und, wenn gleich keine meisterstuecke von poesien, (die in der operette in der regel zu wenig geschaezt werden) doch verse enthielte, die sich musikalisch gut bearbeiten liessen.

Hirschberg, Wolfgang Pittschiller und Komp., 1799. 6 p. l., 135 p. 17^{cm}.

In his intelligent preface, dated Hirschberg, January, 1799, Hensel gives his reasons for having made an effort to improve on Gotter's "Geisterinsel." After characterizing Gotter's talents, characteristics, and methods, he makes this remark:

“Ueberhaupt scheint Gotter so wenig als die meisten singdichter gehoeriger kenntniss der musik und komposition gehabt zu haben; wenn er auch vielleicht ein guter musikus geheissen haben mag. Es fehlt auch noch ein eignes werk ueber die harmonische dichtkunst, welches aber niemand als ein dichter und komponist zugleich schreiben koennte, in welchem dann unsere dichter so manches paradoxon finden moechten.”

After a few more remarks on this subject and on his version of the Geisterinsel in particular, he says:

Replica first performed at Venice, Teatro di S. Cassiano, February 23, 1666.

— Il Giasone. Drama per musica di D. Hiacinto Andrea Cicognini . . . da rappresentarsi nel Teatro di San Cassano l'anno 1666 . . .

Venetia, Camillo Bortoli, 1666. 90 p. 14 cm.

Prologue and three acts. Publisher's dedication, dated Venice, February 23, 1666, argument, scenario, and notice to the reader, from which it appears that "Il Giasone" was revised and substituted in a hurry for an opera called "La Semiramide," text by Moniglia, and which was actually in preparation. Cavalli is not mentioned. II, 4 begins, "Per qual nuovo vigore," and the third act has only nineteen scenes. "Sotto il tremulo ciel" is III, 1, as in the "Novello Giasone," instead of III, 2, and, as in that version, the character of "Rosmira giardiniera" is absent. ML 50.2.G36 C1

— Il Giasone. Drama musicale di D. Giacinto Andrea Cicognini Academico Instancabile. Di nuovo riveduto, e con aggiunte ristampato . . .

Milano, Gioseffo Marelli, n. d. 96 p. 14 cm.

Prologue and three acts. Text preceded by the Argument; a sonnet, "In lode del Sig. dottor Giacinto Andrea Cicognini. Nuovo auttore del bellissimo Giasone l'anno 1650," by Giulio Strozzi; and dedication, by Emanuel di Meschita, in which he says:

"Se mai alcuna dramma ha havuto credito, ed applauso pel suo utilizzante costume, uno n'è il Giasone del Sig. Cicognini, il quale, dovendo di nuovo, uscir dalle stampe, e scena fare di se stesso . . ."

The composer, Cavalli, is not mentioned. II, 4 begins, "Effetti singolari," and there are other striking differences between this ed. and that of 1649. For instance, the last act now has twenty scenes instead of twenty-two. "Sotto il tremulo ciel," as in the "Novello Giasone," is III, 1 instead of III, 2, and, as there, the character of "Rosmira giardiniera" has been dropped. I conjecture that this Milan edition is even later than the Rome "Il novello Giasone." ML 50.2.G36 C2

— Il novello Giasone. Dramma per musica recitato nel Teatro Novo di Roma in Tordinona l'anno 1671 . . .

Roma, il success. al Mascardi, 1671. 6 p. l., 80 p. 13½ cm.

According to Schatz, the opera was actually revived at Rome during the carnival of 1671; but Wotquenne, in the Brussels catalogue, says that, according to Ademollo, the revival did not take place. A later issue (in three acts, with prologue and argument) of Cicognini's "Giasone," published by Bartolomeo Lupardi, who says in his dedication, dated January 17, 1671, of this libretto:

"Esce presentemente da miei torchi, e ch'havrà à recitarsi ne' giorni correnti nel nuovo theatro."

The Rome version is considerably altered from the original. For purposes of identification, it may be noted that the character of "Rosmina giardiniera" does not appear in the "Novello Giasone." Its third act has nineteen instead of twenty-two scenes, the first of which beginning, "Sotto'l tremulo ciel," which had been III, 2, II, 4 begins, "Qual 'ardir, qual valore." On p. 53-54 of the Rome version there is an "Intermedio. SATIRO & AMORE." SCHATZ 1750

Three acts. Publisher’s dedication dated Venice, December 16, 1676, argument, scenario, and notice to the effect that after Moniglia’s death the text “pervenne in mano ad amico suo parzialissimo, che lo destinò à far pompa di se medesimo in loco più riguardevole, col fine di non renderlo disuguale agl’ altri parti di sua felicissima penna, che in più tèpi, & in molto numero hanno saputo acquistarsi gl’applausi e l’ammirazione de’ theatri più cospicui d’Europa. La congiuntura non lo permise . . . Sappi che per addattarlo al genio & all’ uso di questo cielo, non meno che alla ristrettezza del loco, è stato necessario abbreviarlo in modo, che si sono tralasciati non solo molti versi, e forse de più belli, mà le scene intiere, & le parti istesse, col riguardo però dovuto fatto osservare à tutto potere dall’ amico suo sudetto di sempre valersi di versi dello stesso autore, oltre alcuni poche per la necessità d’unirne il sentimento aggiustato ne luochi concisi. Il giorno di salute ovvero Demetrio in Athene. Dramma per musica da rappresentarsi nei giorni del carnevale dell' anno 1697. Per comando del serenissimo elettore Palatino.

Dusseldorf, Gio. Christiano Schleuter, n. d. Unpaged. 18½^{cm}.

Three acts. German title-page, "Der tag des heyls oder Demetrius in Athen," and text face Italian. Argument, scenario, and notice to the reader, which reads:

"Fu questo componimento poetico destinato dalla Regia Magnificenza del serenissimo elettore Palatino mio signore per solennizzare il giorno natale della serenissima elettice consorte . . . Ma perchè cade questo felicissimo giorno nei giorni più caldi d'Agosto, tempo mal a proposito per i chiusi teatri, fù perciò stimato molto più proprio di aprirne, ò per dir meglio, farne nascere uno in campagna sù le rive del Reno, e nel Reno medesimo, con tanta prestezza fù fabbricato; dove comparve a meraviglia bene la grandezza del animo di chi l'ordinò, e l'arte meravigliosa di chi l'esegù, riuscendo sopra d'ogni credenza la festa vaga, e magnifica. Fù egli per ciò riserbato a comparir sù la scena in questo tempo del carnevale. Dove se fà pompa di qualche vaghezza, sappi o lettore, che tutta la gloria si deve all' indefessa applicazione, e buon gusto dell' illustriss. Signore baron di Demanstein, cameriere e gran falconiere de S. A. E. P. . . . Parte ancor, se ne deve al Sign. Gio. Hugo Wilderer organista di questo Serenissimo Elettore, il quale se ben di lingua e di nazione tedescha possiede non di meno tutta l'arte di far comparir sù le scene con tutta la loro forza, e gentilezza le nostre muse toscane. L'ariette per i balli furono invenzione del Signore Giorgio Craffit [Krafft]: e fù studio di Mons. Rodier l'intreccio, e la vaghezza di essi; che anno tanto di parte nell' adornamento dell' opera. E la bella, e capricciosa disposizione delle scene è tutta gloria del pennello del Sign. Antonio Bernardi . . ."

It follows from this preface that Schatz is entirely mistaken if he attributes the text to baron Demanstein, who was merely the manager.

Giove in Argo. Melodrama pastorale . . . da rappresentarsi in musica nella Sala del Ridotto in Dresda, l'autunno del 1717.

Dresda, Giovan Riedel, n. d. Unpaged. 19^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication signed by the author, Antonio Maria Luchini, and dated Dresda, novembre, 1717, argument, cast (with changes after libretto had been printed on slip pasted over the original cast), and name of Antonio Lotti as composer. French title page, "Jupiter en Argos," and text face Italian. The text of the opera is followed, also in Italian and French, by the text of "VESPETTA E MILO," the three "Intermedi cantati . . . Dresde, che'z Jean Riedel, 1717," and this notice to the reader: "La musica del primo e del secondo intermezzo e composizione del Signore cavaliere Alessandro Scarlatti. La musica del terzo intermezzo e composizione del Signore Francesco Conti o Contino, maestro di capella di Sua Maestà Cesarea.

"Li versi del primo e secondo intermezzo sono fatti intieramente dall' illustre penna del Signore Silvio Stampiglia, poeta di Sua Maestà Cesarea, tutte le opere di questo celebre poeta sono come li quadri di Tiziano, e di Vandec [!] . . . Il terzo intermezzo e composizione del Signore baron Francesco Ballerini . . . Le arie che sono tradote in francese, di Vespetta e di Milo, si possono cantare come le italiane. Adio."

These intermezzi do not seem to be mentioned in Dent's Scarlatti biography. For a separate ed. of the libretto, see under title (Schatz 9522). The date of first performance is given by Schatz for these intermezzi and the opera as October 25, 1717. This would seem to contradict the inference from the date of the dedication.

Three acts. Scenario and notice to the reader:

"Eccoti il Giulio Cesare Trionfante, che duoi lustri, e più fù rapresentato in Venetia con quel applauso che sino al giorno d'oggi di lui risuona. Non ti spiaccia vederlo cangiato in molti luoghi dal suo primiero intreccio, poiche fù necessario l'uniformarsi al costume di dove ora si rapresenta, come ancora la diversità delle voci de' virtuosi cantanti obligò chi lo diregge à variarne molte ariette per vietarne gl' incomodi, che nella musica sariano insorti, e maggiormente fù fatto ciò col pensiero di renderlo più dilettevole con la novità di quelle . . ."

Author and composer unknown to Schatz, but the note quoted above furnished a clue. Comparison showed that this is merely a somewhat altered version of Luigi Orlandi's text. For instance, 1, 6 is now "Che d'impudica fiamma—Nobil fiamma del mio Sole" instead of "Sicuro di mia fede—E gran pena amar" and to 1, 9 an aria "Sveglia in sen" has been added. Presumably in 1694 Freschi's music was largely used. ML 50.2 C 37

Heiden first comments on the success of Sarti's "Meisterwerk," then on the typically Italian make-up of the original text showing "wenig aufmerksamkeit fuer die poesie, sondern ganz allein fuer composition," on the impossibility of remedying certain defects without altering the music, adds an argument, and then makes these interesting remarks:

"nach einem Neumann, Eschenburg und Cramer die produkte der auslaendischen dichtkunst und musik fuer unsere landsleute, durch zweckmaesige bearbeitung geniessbar zu machen, heisst in der that nicht wenig gewagt. Wem die hartnaeckigen schwierigkeiten, die sich einem uebersetzer italienischer opern; die nicht im geschmacke eines Pleissners oder anderer aehlicher uebersetzer arbeiten will, laufenweise entgegen stellen, nur einigermassen bekannt sind, der wird mir sehr gerne zugestehen, dass es nicht leicht ein muehsameres und nicht selten undankbares geschaeft giebt, als die unterlegung des deutschen textes unter fremde, besonders italienische musik." Il giuoco di picchetto. Divertimento per musica da rappresentarsi alla Corte Elettorale palatina.

Mannheim, Stamperia elettorale ed accademica, n. d. 23 p. 15½^{cm}.

Our copy is interleaved, contains ms. corrections and other indications that it was used for preparation of a performance. The pagination is faulty, as 13-14 are repeated. The real p. 13 begins with a repetition of the first four lines of the aria "Heureuse paix, tranquille indifference" (from Destouches' "Issé" of 1708, I, 3) and p. 14 contains the aria "Del destin non vi lagnate" (from Metastasio's "Olimpiade" text). The second p. 13, which should have been p. 15, begins with the aria "Lorsque l'amour dans ses noeuds," and the second p. 14 contains the aria "D'un infelice amante." Other arias are: "No; non dicsti il vero." "Ah Teseo! Ah del mio cor." "Già fucina è questo petto," "Io sono stata in Ascoli." A German lied, "Ich bin ein musikant," is not in this libretto. The characters are, "Gioconda," "Placido," "Severino." Neither the author is mentioned, nor the composer.

As "Il gioco del picchetto, scherzo giocoso per musica," this one-act opera was performed at Coblenz. Hoftheater, 1772, and an Italian-French libretto, without composer's or author's name, was published at Confluenza, 1772. In May, 1773, the opera was then performed at Schwetzingen, Hoftheater. It is apparently for this performance that our libretto was printed. Pichler attributed, without stating his reasons, the music to Pietro Guglielmi but Schatz, and later Piovano, ascribe the music to Jommelli on the ground that the text is the same as that of Jommelli's "La conversazione," Lisbona 1775. Furthermore, Schatz refers to a score of the opera (advertised by Bertling in his catalogue no. 28), in which there is a note to the effect that Jommelli composed the music.

In his Jommelli biography (p. 426-428) Abert deals with a score by Jommelli called "La critica," which, he says, was performed at Stuttgart in 1766 and which has been preserved at the Conservatory, Naples, as a "Cantata." In his analysis of the plot Abert mentions as characters: Placido, Severino, Lesbia, Gioconda, Siface, Acamante, Palmira. In his ms., "Chronologische Folge der . . . Jommelli . . . Werke," Schatz has an entry, while referring to the score at Naples, under "La critica. Anfang des Jahres 1767" (first he had the date 1766), with this cast:

Placido	Arcangelo Cortoni.
Severino	Francesco Guerrieri.
Lesbia	Maria Masi-Giura detta la Morsarina.
Gioconda	Monaca Buonani.
Siface	Giuseppe Aprile.
Acamante	Giovanni Maria Rubinelli.
Palmira	Anna Cesari-Seemann.

In other words, Schatz adds a sixth character, yet he plainly gives the cast of the Stuttgart production of "La critica," since the artists mentioned (comp. Sittard) belonged to the Stuttgart opera "Etat" of 1767.

The text of "La critica" Abert is inclined to ascribe to Gaetano Martinelli, who supplied Jommelli at Stuttgart with other texts. It is plainly to a large extent the same as that of Jommelli's "La conversazione" and of "Il giuoco di picchetto." Under all these circumstances it is fairly safe to assume that "Il giuoco di picchetto," as performed at Coblenz and Schwetzingen, was Jommelli's "La critica" reduced to three characters.

The guardian out-witted. A comic opera. As it is performed at the Theatre Royal in Covent Garden. The musick composed by Tho. Aug. Arne . . .

London, J. and R. Touseon and T. Lownds, 1764. vii, [1], 66 p. 19½^{cm}.

Three acts. Cast and preface, in which Arne, who is also known as the author, though he, "with all possible caution, endeavoured to conceal" his name, calls this, "the fifth dramatic piece I have written," but "the first I ever presumed to offer as a candidate for public approbation," and continues by saying:

"Should I have failed in the execution, let no unjust imputation fall on the system, which (if properly treated) is, by a mutual display of the sister arts, more various and entertaining than mere speech, unrelieved and unassisted by the power of harmony; for, in this species of drama, the dilettanti in music are drawn to coincide with the lovers of plays, having every charm of an opera, except the recitative, which (though it raises the dignity of the tragic Muse) is not so proper in common conversation . . ."

He then gives his ideas on "recitative in serious operas."

First performed, as indicated, December 12, 1764.

The portrait is that of Günther von Schwarzburg.

Three acts. Cast, names of Anton Klein as the author, of Ignaz Holzbauer as the composer of the opera, of Canabich as composer of Lauchery's ballet and biographical sketch of the hero of the opera, which begins with these remarks, revealing the tendency of the author and composer:

"Deutsche helden, die verdienen, dass ihr bild mitten unter dem menschlichen geschlechte aufgestellt würde, sollten die in ihrem vaterlande vergessen werden? Ist nur die asche Roms und Athens allein kostbar und verehrungswürdig? Und sind dies auch noch Römer und Griechen, die auf unseren schaubühnen erscheinen, oder hören wir nur ihre namen nennen? Wir werfen unsere augen auf fremde tugendmuster, die vielleicht niemals gewesen sind, und sehen nicht, was in unserm schosse ist. Ist vielleicht liebe zum fremden der hang unserer nation? Nein; ich bemerke, dass es vielmehr eine unrühmliche, ich könnte sagen, eine sklavische gewohnheit vieler deutschen schriftsteller ist, die, indem sie alle zeiten und alle völker kennen, ihre eigenen schätze zu übersehen scheinen. Wie fruchtbar ist unser boden! wie reich ist das gebiet unserer geschichte! Ich habe mir aus derselben einen der vornehmsten helden gewählt."

First performed at Mannheim Churfuerstl. Hoftheater, January 5, 1777.

Happiness at last. A. T. of The rover.

The happy captive, an English opera. With an interlude, in two comick scenes, betwixt Signor Capoccio, a director from the Canary Islands; and Signora Dorinna, a virtuosa.

London, printed for the author and sold by J. Brindley, 1741. vi, [2], 40 p. 19^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication by the author, Lewis Theobald, and Advertisement stating that the subject of the opera is "shadow'd out from a novel in Cervantes's Don Quixote, (book IV, of the first part) call'd, The history of the slave . . . The interlude, which is added in two comick scenes, is entirely new to our climate: and the success of it is submitted to experiment, and the taste of an audience."

The interlude (intermezzo), "CAPOCCHIO AND DORINNA," is ascribed by Clarence to Colley Cibber, who is said to have abridged it from "The temple of dulness." (See this.) The composer is not mentioned, and no performance is recorded.

Happy recess. A. T. of The fugitive.

Die harfe. Operette von Wilhelm Schreiber.

Offenbach, Weiss und Brede, 1793. 62 p. 16½^{cm}.

Two acts. Prefatory poem and "Vorrede" dated "Baaden, im Dezember 1792," in which Aloys Wilhelm Schreiber mentions Ignatz Walter as the composer, and says: "Ich entwarf die gegenwaertige operette, weil mir das sujet gefiel, und weil wir so wenige ertraegliche deutsche singspiele besitzen, ohngeachtet diese gattung immer mehr einheimisch auf unsern buehnen wird. Man deute mir diese aeußerung nicht als eigenliebig, denn es gehoert in der that wenig dazu, etwas besseres in diesem fache zu liefern, als die herren Eberl und konsorten."

Schatz records no performance.

— Die zauberharfe. Ein singspiel nach August La Fontaine bearbeitet, vom verfasser des Waldbruders im Eichthale.

Harlequin animated. A. T. of The fairy Favour.

Harlequin everywhere. A. T. of Dibdin's The mirror.

Harlequin forrester. A. T. of Reeve's Merry Sherwood.

Harlequin-Hydaspes: or, The Greshamite. A mock-opera. As it is perform'd at the Theatre in Lincoln's-Inn-Fields.

London, J. Roberts, 1719. vii, [1], 55 p. 18^{cm}.

Three acts. Cast and preface in which the reader is informed that the piece is "principally intended as a burlesque upon the famous opera of Hydaspes: and whoever shall think it worth his while to compare 'em, will find it work'd up accordingly. But the inventor being a foreigner, and not having English enough to put his plan in execution himself, he was forc'd to call in another gentleman to his assistance; who having in his eye the present humorous dispute between some members of the faculty, could not but think it an excellent incident to enliven and diversify the design. And hence it is that the performance is of such a mixt nature, as 'tis hard to give it a name, being half opera and half comedy . . ."

Most of the arias are simply parodies of such in Francesco Mancini's "L'Idaspe fedele" (London, Hay-market, May 23, 1710) and in every such case the Italian text, mostly by Giovanni Pietro Candi, is added in a footnote. The parody is ascribed to a Mrs. Aubert, whose musical assistant (perhaps Pepusch?) is not recorded.

First performed May 22, 1719, as indicated.

Three acts and prologue. By Aurelio Aureli, who is not mentioned. Publisher’s dedication, argument, scenario and notice to the reader with name of Domenico Freschi as composer. This original edition has in act I nineteen scenes, in act II twenty-six and in act III seventeen, whereas the second ed. of 1677 (see below) has twenty, twenty-eight and twenty. In this I, 14 has aria “Voglio, che mora,” whereas the first ed. has “Con la scorta de la vendetta.” In this the prologue begins “Da le rotanti sfere,” in the second ed. “Nubi mie tempestose.” I, 20 of this second ed. begins “Ho vinto Amori” and has aria “Arcieri alati / Sù brillate.” ML 50.2.H3F7

— Elena rapita da Paride. Drama per musica nel Teatro Zane à S. Moisè di Aurelio Aureli. Seconda impressione . . .

Venetia, Francesco Nicolini, 1687. 71 p. 14^{cm}.

Three acts. Author's dedication, dated Venice, January 18, 1687, argument, scenario, notice to the reader, who is informed that Francesco Navarra not only composed several additional arias for this revival of Freschi's opera, but also changed some of the latter's arias "per aggiustarsi all' abilità de musici che le cantano." This is putting it very mildly, as the new version differs considerably from the old. For instance, the prologue has been dropped entirely, and not many scenes have been left intact. Thus in I, 4 (in the original ed. incorrectly numbered as fifth scene), Enone sang, 1677, "Gelosia, non tormentarmi / Non ti voglio nel mio core," but, 1687, "Gelosia, non posso più. / Tu mi laceri quest' alma." Firenze, Stamperia di S. A. S., 1658. 9 p. l. (incl. front.), 78 p. 21^{cm}. 13 fold. pl. (50 to 58 by 38^{cm}).

The plates are unsigned in our copy. Wotquenne says "gravées par Silvio degli Alli." Twelve represent scenes from the opera, the thirteenth represents an interior view of the Teatro de la Pergola, seen from the stage.

Three acts and prologue, preceded by the Antefatto and the author Moniglia's dedication of date Florence, June 12, 1658. The text is followed by: DESCRIZIONE DELLA PRESA D'ARGO E DE GLI AMORI DI LINCEO CON HIPERMESTRA; festa teatrale . . . per celebrare il natale del Sereniss. principe di Spagna. In Firenze, Nella stamperia di S. A. S. MDCLVIII" (32 p. 21^{cm}). According to Moniglia's preface to his "Poesie drammatiche" this description of "Ipiermestra" was written by Orazio Ricasoli Rucellai. He gives a minute synopsis of the action, mentions the noblemen who participated in the ballets and in the Abbattimento, narrates the preparations for performance, the beginning of which he dates June 18, 1658 "verso le 24 ore" [!], with a display of extraordinary hospitality towards his guests by the cardinal, gives a brief description of the new "Teatro dell' Accademia de gl' Immobili" (Teatro de la Pergola) and says:

"Terminata che fu la composizione di questo dramma, speditamente si trasmise al Sig. Francesco Cavallo (Cavalli) a Venezia, acciò che con l'artificio di suo armonioso contrappunto traesse altrui di mezo al cuore i più teneri, e compassionevoli affetti, che all' espressione delle parole, e de gli avvenimenti poetici fussero più confacevoli, ed egli che viene oggi reputato il primo compositore d'Italia, particolarmente sopra lo stile drammatico, con prestezza incredibile ne rimandò il componimento di tanta dolcezza, e soavità di stile, che avendo a detta d'ognuno nell' altre sue opere acquistata la palma sopra i maestri più esimij, in questa può dirsi che abbia superato sè stesso. Il pensiero poi di fare la scelta de' musici, e delle voci più adattate alle parti degl' interlocutori, & assister loro con ogni maggiore studio, e diligenza, fu dato da S. "This frontispiece was the same which belong'd to the late representation; and it was convenient to continue it, our argument being in the same country."

While the scenery of the first to sixth "entry" is lovingly described and while there are such remarks as "the curtain rises [in the first entry] by degrees to an ascending ayre," the libretto is silent on the question of who composed the music, but presumably one or more of Davenant's previous collaborators were responsible for it: Dr. Charles Coleman, Captain Henry Cook, Henry Lawes, and George Hudson.

On May 5, 1659, Evelyn wrote in his diary with rather unfavorable (and also unfair) comment of "a new opera after the Italian way in recitative, music and scenes." For chronological reasons it stands to argue that he had "the history of Sr Francis Drake" in mind rather than (as is usually claimed) "The cruelty of the Spaniards in Peru." It is also noteworthy that Davenant incorporated "The History, etc." as the third and "The cruelty, etc." as the fourth act of his medley, "The playhouse to be let," 1673. ML 50.2.H5

Based on the libretto by de Guichard and Castet for Philidor's opera, "Le bûcheron, ou Les trois souhaits," Paris, 1763. This, in turn, was based on Perrault's tale, "Les souhaits ridicules." As the lyrics in this translation are practically identical with those in the "Gesaeunge" of the next entry, with exception of the "Schlusschor," it stands to reason that the librettist of the "Gesaeunge" was also responsible for the "free translation" of 1772. This he then merely modified for Benda's singspiel purposes.

The honest Yorkshire-man. A ballad farce. Refus'd to be acted at Drury-lane playhouse: but now perform'd at the New theatre in Goodman's Fields, with great applause. Written by Mr. Carey . . .

London, L. Gulliver, 1736. 6 p. l., 3-32 p. 20½^{cm}.

Title-page mutilated. One act with prologue and two epilogues, one spoken by Mrs. Cantrell the three first nights, the other "spoken after the third night, in the summer season, at the Haymarket." Haymarket and Goodman's Fields casts and preface.

The 20 numbered airs are not printed in the text, but their tunes are indicated by title except air 1., which is simply marked as by Porpora, air 17 as by Haendel, and airs 7 ("Come hither my country 'Squire"), 8 ("In vain you mention pleasure") 9 ("Love's a gentle generous passion"), 11 ("I am in truth"), 12 ("That man who best"), 15 ("Thou only darling"), 19 ("Now Fortune is past"), and 20 ("Come learn by this ye batchelors") as "set by the author," consequently composed by Carey himself. In the Musical Antiquary, Mr. Tufts, under 1736, says, "Ten airs by Carey, two by Dr. Green, one by Handel, one by Signor Porpora, six named." In our edition ten numbered airs are named and Dr. Greene is not mentioned. Our edition furthermore has an unnumbered song, "Tune, When the bright God of Day—Whoe'er to a wife," which was interpolated from the ballad opera, "Cure for a scold." The airs in our copy not mentioned so far are: Air 2 "In vain, dear Cloe," 3 "Hark! away, 'tis the merry ton'd horn," 4 "The charms of Florimel," 5 "To the same tune" (meaning the unnumbered "When the bright God of Day"), 6 "London is a fine town," 10 "Gilly-flow'r, gentle Rosemary," 13 "I had a pretty lass a tenant of my own," 14 "Bartholomew-Fair," 16 "The nymph that undoes me," 18 "A beggar got a beadle." (Note the differences in the next entry!).

The preface reads, in part:

"The very generous Reception this FARCE has met with from the Publick during its Representation in the Haymarket last Summer, and Goodman's Fields this Winter, is a Manifestation of the bad Taste and monstrous Partiality of the Great Mogul of the Hundreds of Drury, who, after having had the Copy Nine Months in his Hands, continually feeding me with fresh Promises of bringing it on the Stage, return'd it at last in a very ungenerous Manner, at the End of the Season, when it was too late to carry it to any other House; but the Young Actors having, as usual, formed themselves into a Summer Company, Mr. Cibber, Jun. sent to me in a very respectful Manner, requesting the Farce, which accordingly was put in Rehearsal; but to our great Disappointment and Surprize, the Company, after one Night's Acting, was suddenly interdicted, and the House shut up . . .

"My next and last Complaint is against Pyrate Printers . . .

"The Produce of a Man's Brain is as much his Property as the Grain or Produce of his Field, or any other Part of his real or Personal Estate, and it is equally criminal to rob him of one as of the other. . .

"We have Laws in Force against Street-Robbers, House-breakers, &c. and yet at the same Time Pyrate-Printers daringly and openly rob Authors and Proprietors of Copies of their just Rights; and though the Labour of the Brain supports so many and such great Branches of Trade, such as Paper-makers, Stationers, Letter-founders, Printers, Booksellers, Bookbinders, &c. &c. &c. to the Maintenance of above 100,000 Families, and tho' Books pay so many and such large Duties, to wit, on Paper, Paste-board, Leather, Stamps, Advertisements and Entries, to very near, if not more than One Fourth of the Net Produce, yet Authors and their Assigns are the only Persons unshelter'd by the Government from the Robberies and Pyracies of Printers, who to the Shame and Scandal of our most excellent Constitution, commit such Ravages as are tolerated in no other Country.

"I hope to be excus'd in speaking thus warmly, having, for my own Part, suffer'd very largely in this Particular; nor do I live a Week, but I see myself injur'd of more than would support me a Month in a handsome Affluence. But of all Pyracies, that of this FARCE was the most flagrant and impudent, for impatient to stay till I had publish'd my own Copy, they villainously and surreptitiously anticipated me, thereby robbing me of a considerable Sum, and imposing on the Publick, not only a false and spurious Edition, but at double the Price I ever intended it."

First performed at Lincoln Inn's Fields (not at Covent Garden) July 11, 1735, as "The Wonder! An honest Yorkshireman;" at The Haymarket August 1, 1735 ("last time" Genest); at Goodman's Fields November 12, 1735. (Genest v. 3 contradicts the data in his index in v. 1). ML 50.5.H65

In the latter the arrangement is as follows. Airs: 1 by Porpora; 2 and 3 by Carey; 4 by Dr. Green, but with same text "My charming Arabell"; 5 is the same (the unnumb. song of 1736 having disappeared); 6—there is no air numbered 6; 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 are the same; 14 is "O London is a fine town" with the same text as the former 6 "O London is a dainty place"; 15 is "London-Bridge is broken down"; 16 is the same as the former 15; 17 is by Dr. Green but with same text "Let prudes and coquets" as of former 16; 18, 19, 20, 21 are the same as the former 17, 18, 19, 20.

No music. Cast. In his avertissement the author says:

"Cette petite pièce, ou plutôt cette farce a été représentée pour la première fois à la Foire Saint-Laurent de l'année 1760 [! comp. title]; proposée, faite, mise en musique, apprise & représentée en moins de dix-sept jours. Elle avoit tous les défauts d'un ouvrage indigeste & précipité; cependant le reproche le plus unanime fut son peu de durée. C'est ce qui m'a excité à l'étendre en y joignant des couplets, des scènes & des morceaux de musique qui couvrirent du moins l'irrégularité de l'ouvrage. Et de fait, un opera-comique qui n'est point composé de scènes à tiroirs, & qui n'a ni amour, ni intrigue, ni mariage, ne peut guères tenir son succès que des charmes de la musique & du mérite de l'exécution."

First performed, as indicated, (but without music?), September 17, 1759.

L'umanità nelle fere, ovvero H Lucullo. Drama per musica da rappresentarsi nel famoso Teatro di S. Bartolomeo in quest' anno 1708 . . .

Napoli, Salvatore Votto, n. d. 5 p. l., 62 p. 14^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication by the impresario, Andrea del Pò, argument, cast, scenario, and printer's notice, which reads, in part:

"Se nelle commedie già rappresentate, per cagione della lunghezza, e del nuovo costume c'hoggi corre, più volte ti supplicai di compitare il Sign. Carlo de Petris, che fù soverchiamente ardito in togliere, ed aggiungere qualche cosa di più alle scene degli altri; questa volta te ne priego d'avvantaggio, e se in luogo di Prezia Dama, dalla quale par che nasca la mossa di Lucullo contro Mitridate in questa commedia vi troverai Tilla, Prezia stimela in tutto supposta, e Tilla un semplice personaggio introdotto per ornamento della commedia, e non necessario, non usandosi più simile personaggio.

Dent says, "Probably produced before elsewhere, since the libretto mentions additions by Vignola," whereas Schatz calls this the original ed. of the libretto.

The humours of Covent-Garden. A. T. of The rival milliners.

The humours of John Bull: an operatical farce, in two acts.

n. i., n. d. [75]-130 p. 17^{cm}.

Detached copy. A short prefatory note tells us that

"several political allusions to events of the period at which it was written, would have effectually prevented the appearance of this performance on our chaste stage, even if the author's stomach had not been too squeamish to digest the various disgusts of theatric solicitation."

By Sylvester Otway (pseud. of James Oswald), and first printed 1789 in his volume of poems.

The humours of Punch's resignation. A. T. of Politicks in miniature.

The humours of the court: or, Modern gallantry. A new ballad opera. As it was intended to have been perform'd at one of the theatres.

London, W. James, 1732. vii, [1], 9-72 p. 20½^{cm}.

Three acts and introduction. Neither author nor performance recorded by Clarence. The 24 airs used are indicated by title. The text is preceded by a short preface, in which the author trusts that his piece will meet with as much success as many others not any better than his.

The humours of the times; or, What news now? A comic opera, in two acts, written by Archibald M'Laren . . . To which is annexed a copy of a letter from the manager of the Dublin Theatre to the author, containing his approbation of the piece.

London, Printed for the author, 1799. 24 p. 17^{cm}.

The "letter" is not in this copy. List of subscribers, and note that, owing to "Mr. Daly's resignation of the theatre, and the insurrection that followed," the play was not brought out. Of the eight songs, two were to be sung to the tunes, "This is no me" and "Duncan Davison." "God save the King" evidently furnished the melody for the finale. The other songs have no indication of air.

Venezia, Marino Rossotti, 1719. front., 80 p. 18½^{cm}.

Five acts. By Benedetto Pasqualigo. Dedicatory poem by the author under his Arcadian name, notice to the reader by way of argument, Italian translation of Ovide's third elegy, cast, scenario, and name of Giuseppe Maria Orlandini as the composer. Pasqualigo says in the notice to the reader:

"L'argomento in Tauride fù ridotto con novità di ritmo nel di lui teatro, dal Sig. Pier Jacopo Martelli, & io per la prima volta, ho osato di maneggiarlo in poche giornate degli ozj autunnali, in gratia del canto, sulle Venete scene, con invenzione di doppia peripezia, e riconoscimento per discorso, e per segni, e con qualche disperata difficoltà avvenutami nel framischiare la dignità della mitologia, la puntualità della poetica, e l'eccellenza dell' esemplare, con la delicatezza dell' armonia, con le ripugnanze del teatro, dell' uso, e del carnevale senza una mostruosa deformità."

Vienna, Stamperia di Ghelen, n. d. Unpaged. 16^{cm}.

Three acts. Argument, cast, scenario, and name of Tommaso Traetta as composer, but not of librettist, Marco Coltellini.

According to Schatz, this opera was performed at Schönbrunn on October 4, 1763, but previously at Vienna, Burgtheater, carnival of 1758. This conflicts with the note on the last page of the libretto:

"Sebbene il presente dramma sia stato composto espressamente dall' autore per questa occasione; pure è convenuto farvi alcuni cambiamenti, che potranno vedersi dalla nuova ristampa che se ne farà in appresso."

Livorno, Marco Coltellini, 1763. 69 p. 18^{cm}.

Three acts. Traetta, the composer, is not mentioned. From the dedication to the English consul at Livorno, Giovanni (John) Dick, it appears that this gentleman practically started Coltellini on his public career as a poet and incidentally, that this Livorno edition was published after the performances at Vienna. As it is decidedly different, not only verbally but in the number of scenes, etc., beginning, for instance, with a chorus not in the Vienna edition, presumably we have in this Livorno edition the corrected one, promised by Coltellini in the footnote at the end of the Vienna edition.

Kjøbenhavn, H. J. Graae, 1775. 128 p. 17^{cm}.

Three acts. Cast and name of Anfossi as composer.

First performed, as indicated, on November 1, 1775. SCHATZ 240

— L'inconnue persécutée. Comédie en deux actes et en prose, mêlée d'ariettes, imitées de l'italien, sur la musique du Sieur Anfossi. Par M. Moline. Représenté devant Sa Majesté, à Fontainebleau, le 25 octobre 1776.

Paris, Pierre Robert Christophe Ballard, 1776. 2 p. l., 63 p. 20½^{cm}.

Cast. Jean Baptiste Rochefort, who arranged the score and inserted music of his own, is not mentioned.

First performed as above at Paris, Comédie italienne, November 12, 1776. Not to be confused with de Rosoy's version of Petrosellini's text, first performed, with Anfossi's music, at Paris, Académie royale de musique, September 21, 1781.

Gl'incontri stravaganti. Commedia per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro Nuovo sopra Toledo nel carnevale di questo corrente anno 1790.

Napoli, n. publ., 1790. 52 p. 15^{cm}.

Two acts. Cast and name of Bernardini (Marcello di Capua) as composer. Librettist not mentioned, and unknown to Schatz. SCHATZ 840

L'incoronazione di Dario. Drama per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro di S. Angelo, l'anno MDCLXXXIV . . .

Venetia, Francesco Nicolini, 1684. front., 60 p. 14^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication, argument, and scenario. Neither the author, Adriano Morselli, nor the composer, Giovanni Domenico Freschi, is mentioned. Act first has sixteen scenes only, though the libretto counts seventeen. SCHATZ 3350

— Dario. Drama per musica da recitarsi nel Teatro di Sant' Angelo l'anno MDCLXXXV . . .

Venetia, Francesco Nicolini, 1685. 56 p. 14^{cm}.

Three acts. Publisher's dedication, argument, and scenario. Nicolini calls this a reprint in his dedication, but it really is not, being a considerably-altered version.

For instance, the character of "Niceno" has been dropped, whereas that of "Dalisa" has been added. Accordingly, for instance, Niceno's aria (I, 13), "Torbida notte, e fosca," does not appear in the 1685 version and all the arias for Dalisa in this do not appear in the original version. SCHATZ 3357

L'incoronazione di Poppea di Gio. Francesco Busenello. Opera musicale rappresentata nel Teatro Grimano l'anno 1642.

Venetia, Andrea Giuliani, 1656. 61 p. 15^{cm}.

The title page (verso blank) is followed immediately in this copy by the "argomento" on p. 5, the first of the signature A 3, the signatures being in twos. Monteverdi, the composer, is not mentioned. Three acts and prologue. SCHATZ 6593

L'incoronazione di Dario. Drama per musica, da rappresentarsi nel Teatro di S. Angelo per opera terzo nel carnevale dell' anno 1716 . . .

Venezia, Marino Rossetti, 1717. 57 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication, argument, cast, scenario, name of Antonio Vivaldi as the composer, and note:

"Eccoti l'Incoronazione di Dario, opera del Sig. Adriano Morselli già da molti anni defonto. Se la ritrovi in qualche parte mutata, e per le arie, e per gli caratteri de rappresentanti, non si è fatto ad altro fine, che per accomodarla all' uso moderno del teatro, & alla compagnia che deve rappresentarla . . ." Venezia, Marino Rossetti, 1727. 48 p. 14½^{cm}.

Three acts. Author's dedication, argument, notice to the reader, cast, scenario, and name of Tommaso Albinoni as composer.

First performed at Venice in 1727, as indicated above.

SCHATZ 95

— Filandro. Dramma comico-pastorale da rappresentarsi nel Teatro Giustiniano di San Moisè l'anno MDCCXXIX. Di Vincenzo Cassani. Edizione seconda.

Venezia, Marino Rossetti, n. d. 42 p. 14½^{cm}.

Three acts. Arguments, name of Albinoni as composer, and cast. "Filandro" is merely a slightly modified version of "L'incostanza schernita," as a comparison proves. Hence, "Edizione seconda." In the later version the part of "Ergasto" has been added, of which the author says "è aggiunto solo per accomodarsi al numero de' personaggi di già obbligati, conoscendo benissimo essere una parte inutile, e superflua, senza però, che guasti l'ordine, e l'orditura del dramma." L'incostanza trionfante ovvero Il Theseo. Drama per musica nel Teatro di San Cassano . . .

Venetia, Andrea Giuliani, 1658. 14 p. l. (incl. front.), 66 p. 14^{cm}.

Prologue and three acts. Publisher's dedication dated Venice, January 16, 1658, argument, quotations from Plutarch, cast [!], scenario, and notice to the reader:

"Trionfa in questo drama l'Incostanza di Theseo, e molto più l'incostanza dell' autore di essa, mentre che altri l'hà inventato, altri l'hà regolato, uno l'hà disposto, e molti l'hanno ordinato; che dirò poi di coloro, che l'hanno illustrato & abbellito con la poesia? L'inventore, che allo splendor della nascita hà sposato la vivacità dell' ingegno, pensò di confidare questo suo eruditissimo parto, per esser ben vestito, alla penna doviziosa del Signor Francesco Piccoli . . . Ma su'l meglio del lavoro gli convenne da Venetia far passaggio a' paesi lontani; onde non potendo egli assistere alla perfezione dell' opera, nè alle alterationi, anzi diversificationi necessitate dalla pratica della scena, acciòche questo drappo facesse un vago vedere, come sotto la virtù singolare del M. R. P. Ziani farà un bel sentire; si è fatto ricorso à penna sublime, che hoggi per suo solo diporto vola per questo nostro cielo italiano."

Piccoli, he continues, to distinguish his own verses from those of the other collaborators, adopted the expedient of putting his own in quotation marks, but in the hurry of publication many were not so printed, and so Piccoli's caution was largely in vain.

Three acts. Dedication, with the initials of the author, Apostolo Zeno, argument, and scenario. The composer, Carlo Francesco Pollaroli, is not mentioned Schatz claims that the opera was first performed as above during fall of 1695.

SCHATZ 8297

Gl'inganni fortunati. Pastorale per musica da recitarsi in Venezia nel Teatro Giustiniano a S. Moisè nel mese di Maggio dell' anno 1720 . . .

Venezia, Marin [!] Rossetti, 1720. 42 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts. By Belisario Valeriani. Impresario's dedication, argument, scenario. Neither the author (whose "La caccia in Etolia" this is) is mentioned, nor the composer, Giuseppe Maria Buini.

SCHATZ 1393

Gl'inganni fortunati. Commedia per musica da rappresentarsi nel Real Teatro del Fondo di Separazione per quart' opera di quest' anno 1788 . . .

Napoli, n. publ., 1788. 45 p. 15½^{cm}.

Two acts. Author not mentioned, and unknown to Schatz. Dedication signed "Giuseppe Lucchesi," cast, and name of the composer, Valentino Fioravanti. On p. 42-45, cast, and argument of "Orbecch, ballo eroico favoloso composto, e diretto del Sig. Giambattista Giannini," music ("tutta nuova") by Pietro Dutilleu. The second ballet, also by Giannini (composer not mentioned), was merely a "mascherata pantomima."

SCHATZ 1652

L'inganno amoroso. Commedia per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro Nuovo sopra Toledo per prima opera del corrente anno 1786.

Napoli, n. publ., 1786. 64 p. 15^{cm}.

Two acts. By Giuseppe Palomba, who is not mentioned. Cast and name of Pietro Guglielmi as the composer.

First performed, as indicated, June 12, 1786.

SCHATZ 4248

— Le due gemelle. Dramma giocoso per musica da rappresentarsi nel Pubblico Teatro di Lucca nell' estate dell' anno MDCCXC.

Lucca, Francesco Bonsignori, 1790. 67 p. 15^{cm}.

Two acts. Cast and name of Pietro Guglielmi as the composer. This is his "L'inganno amoroso" (text by Palomba), but with many alterations. For instance, the aria, "Non dubiti, signora" has been dropped from I, 1; I, 2 begins, "Sei un ridicolo, sei un villano," instead of "Costei, per quanto scorgo," which now opens I, 3. With the opera were performed (composers of the music not mentioned) Pietro Giudice's "La caccia d' Enrico IV.," Carlo Taglioni's "Li due sindaci, ossia La vendemmia," and Gaetano Ghelardini's "L'inverno ossia La pianella perduta."

First performed, as indicated, July 17, 1790; at Monza, Teatro Arciduciale, fall of 1788.

SCHATZ 4249

— L'equivoco amoroso ossia Le due gemelle. Dramma giocoso per musica da rappresentarsi in Parma nel R. D. Teatro di Corte il carnevale dell' anno MDCCXCII . . .

Parma, Carmignani, n. d. 4 p. l., 52, [2], 13 p. 17^{cm}.

Two acts. Impresario's dedication, with remark that this drama "è oramai conosciuto in tutta l'Italia," cast, scenario, and name of Pietro Guglielmi as the composer. The text is Giuseppe Palomba's "L'inganno amoroso," but with many differences. For instance, I, 8 has become "Voi qui, bella tiranna," instead of "Cari ochietti vezzosetti."

First performed, as indicated, December 24, 1791.

SCHATZ 4311

L'inganno d'amore. Drama di Benedetto Ferrari dedicato alla S. C. M. dell' imperatore Ferdinando III. Rappresentato in musica nell' anno dell' imperiale dieta 1653 in Ratispona.

n. i., n. d. 42 unnumb. p., 7 folded pl. 31^{cm}.

The t.-p. and plates were designed by "Joan^s Burnacinius" and engraved by "Jacobus Sandrart." The t.-p. is followed by a dedication, signed and dated by the author, "Ratispona, 20 febraro 1653," by the argument, the description of the theatre, etc., Antonio Bertali's name as composer of the music, prologue, and three acts. The Italian libretto is followed by: "Innhalt und verfassung der comoedi von Liebs betrug, ersinnet von Benedicto Ferrari . . . auff den Kays: Reichs Tag zu Regenspur in music vorzuhalten in dem jahre 1653. Von hochstgedachter roem. Kays. may. capelmaister Antonio Bertali in die music gesetzt. Gezieret mit denen scenen und verstellungen des theatri durch Johan Burnaccini Roem. Kays. Inganno ed amor van sempre insieme, ballet. See Ruggi's La guerra aperta.

Venezia, Carlo Buonarrigo, 1730. 40 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts. Argument, scenario, and notice to the reader:

"Ecco un famosissimo parto di celebre penna [Francesco de Lemene's "La Ninfa Apollo" (Schatz)] mà non già lo stesso, quale uscì dalle mani del suo proprio autore. 'I cangiamento del titolo, l'aggiunta d'un personaggio, la mutazione delle ariette, e la variazione, e trasposizione di qualche scena lo rendono in buona parte da quello diverso. Sappia però chi legge, che un tale cambiamento non è già effetto di poca stima verso un così illustre poeta, ne presunzione di migliorar la poesia, mà pura necessità di accomodarla al numero, ed alla abilità di chi deve rappresentarla, ed all' uso, e gusto della musica del moderno teatro."

Composer not mentioned and unknown to Schatz, who lists Logroscino's "L'inganno felice," text by Tommaso Mariani (originally "Fingere per godere") as first performed at Naples, Teatro Nuovo sopra Toledo, winter of 1739. SCHATZ 11341

L'inganno fortunato. Drama da rappresentarsi in musica nel Teatro Giustiniano di S. Moisè—nell' autunno dell' anno 1721.

Venezia, Marino Rossetti, 1721. 45 p. 14½^{cm}.

Three acts. Author's dedication, argument, cast, and scenario. According to the dedication signed by Bortolamio Pavieri, the libretto was originally by Sig. Gio. Battista Sara, "who then consigned it to Pavieri's pen "per ridurlo nello stato presente." The composer, Giuseppe Boniventi, is not mentioned. SCHATZ 1192 L'inganno innocente. Drama per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro di Sant' Angelo l'anno 1701. Poesia di Francesco Silvani, servitore di S. A. Sereniss. di Mantoua . . .

Venezia, Per il Nicolini, 1701. 60 p. 14½^{cm}.

Three acts. Author's dedication dated Venice, January 16, 1701, argument, scenario, and notice to the reader to the effect that this text, now performed for the first time, was written six years previously. The composer, Tommaso Albinoni, is not mentioned. SCHATZ 121

L'inganno poco dura. Commedia per musica di Saverio Zini da rappresentarsi nel Teatro de' Fiorentini per second' opera del corrente anno 1796.

Napoli, n. publ., 1796. 46 p. 15^{cm}.

Two acts. Cast and name of Marco Portugal as composer.

SCHATZ 8426

L'inganno regnante ovvero L'Atanagilda regina di Gottia, drama per musica da rappresentarsi nel famosissimo Teatro Grimano di SS. Gio. e Paulo l'anno 1688. Di Giulio Cesare Corradi . . .

Venetia, Francesco Nicolini, 1688. 72 p. 14^{cm}.

Three acts. Argument, scenario, notice to the reader with the name of Marc' Antonio Ziani as composer, and dedication, in which Corradi says:

"La maggior fortuna, che possano havere quest' anno le drammatiche mie rime, si è l'acquisto del Signor Nicola Paris, cigno famoso di V. A. S. [Ernst August, duke of Brunswick] per bocca di cui devono esser pubblicate sulle scene dell' Adria."

First performed, as indicated, carnival, 1688.

SCHATZ 11205

L'inganno scoperto per vendetta. Drama per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro Vendramino di S. Salvatore l'anno 1691. Di Francesco Silvani . . .

Venetia, Nicolini, 1691. 60 p. 14^{cm}.

Three acts. Author's dedication, argument, scenario, notice to the reader with name of Giacomo Antonio Pertti as the composer, and remark, "eccoti il primo parto dramático della mia penna smascherato."

Consequently, this can not have been the original version of Silvani's text, the less so as in 1683 he called "Martio Coriolano" his second drama. SCHATZ 7956

L'inganno tradito dall' amore. Drama per musica, da rappresentarsi nel Teatro di corte . . . di Salisburgo . . . Poesia del Sig. Antonio Maria Luchini. Musica del Sig. Antonio Caldara . . .

Salisburgo, Giovanni Giosepe Mayr, n. d. 68 p. 15½^{cm}.

Three acts and licenza. Argument and scenario. Pages 26-29, 54-57 contain the intermezzo in two parts "Atamo huomo vecchio e Palancha giovine" by an unknown author.

First performed at Vienna, Hoftheater, October 1, 1721.

SCHATZ 1485

L'inganno trionfante in amore. Drama per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro di S. Angelo l'autunno dell' anno MDCCXXV . . .

Venezia, Marino Rossetti, 1725. 60 p. 15½^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication, argument, cast, scenario, and note to the effect that this is the modernized version of a text heard many years ago. Neither the original author, Matteo Noris, nor Giovanni Maria Ruggieri, who modernized the text, nor Antonio Vivaldi, the composer, is mentioned.

SCHATZ 10772

L'inganno trionfato, ovvero La disperata speranza ravvivata ne' successi di Giacopo Quinto di Scozia, e Maddalena di Francia. Drama del dottor Oratio Francesco Ruberti parmiggiano . . . recitato nella rocca del Signor conte di Sissa in un suo teatrino per le nozze del Sig. Mario Terzi, suo figlio, e Signora contessa Lucretia Scoffona l'anno M.DC.LXXIII e posto in musica dal Sig. Franc. Maria Bazzani.

Parma, Pietro del Frate e Galeazzo Rosati, n. d. 5 p. l., 131, [1] p. 15^{un}.

Three acts with prologue and licenza. Cast, argument, dedication, and scenario. On p. 116-131 a description of the theatre. The author calls this his "primo scenico intreccio."

— Il nemico delle donne. Dramma giocoso per musica. Da rappresentarsi ne' Teatri privilegiati di Vienna l'anno 1775.

[Vienna], Giuseppe Kurzbök, n. d. 69 p. 16^{cm}.

Three acts. Scenario and names of Giovanni Bertati as author and of Galuppi as composer. While the first act follows closely the original ed. of "L'inimico delle donne," beginning with the second act the two librettos become somewhat different. That of Vienna drops several scenes and, for instance, substitutes the aria (II, 3) "Qui non si dice: cara" for "Se fossi in Italia." Also, the second act now begins "Quanto siete sollecita" instead of "Cugina mia, vitrovo."

First performed, as indicated, January 17, 1775.

SCHATZ 3456

L'intrigue portugaise. A. T. of Gaveaux' Sophie et Moncaers

The intriguing chambermaid. A comedy of two acts. As it is acted at the Theatre-Royal in Drury-Lane, by His Majesty's servants. Taken from the French of Regnard, by Henry Fielding, Esq. . . .

London, J. Watts, 1750. 6 p. l., 40 p. 20^{cm}.

Ballad opera. Cast, poem "sent to the author by an unknown hand," prologue, epilogue and a very complimentary "Epistle to Mrs. Clive," who played "Lettice" in this ballad farce. Fielding says, among other things:

"It is your misfortune to bring the greatest genius for acting on the stage, at a time when the factions and divisions among the players have conspired with the folly, injustice, and barbarity of the town, to finish the ruin of the stage, and sacrifice our native entertainments to a wanton affected fondness for foreign music; and when our nobility seem eagerly to rival each other, in distinguishing themselves in favour of Italian theatres, and in neglect of our own . . ."

On last p. l. a "table of the songs" (12), the airs of which are printed in the text.

First performed at London, Drury Lane, January 15, 1734.

Venetia, Nicolini, 1695. front., 69 p. 15^{cm}.

Five acts. Dedication by the author, conte Girolamo Frigimelica Roberti, and one of his lengthy esthetic-dramaturgic prefaces, argument, scenario, and on p. 11 the substitute arias, "De la gloria, e de l'amor" (III, 1), "Ne l'amante son gran nimici" (III, 8) and "A morire, a morir" (IV, 9). Music attributed by Allacci and Schatz to Carlo Francesco Pollaroli, who is not mentioned. Schatz records, but incorrectly, fall 1694 as the date of first performance. Allacci has 1695, as above.

L'Irene. Drama per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro di S. Bartolomeo di Napoli . . .

Napoli, Parrino & Mutio, 1704. 4 p. l., 51 p. 14^{cm}.

Three acts. By conte Girolamo Frigimelica Roberti (who is not mentioned), but condensed to permit the insertion of buffo scenes, supposedly by Nicola Barbapiccola, who signs the dedication. Argument, scenario, cast, and notice to the reader:

"Questo drama dovendosi rappresentare in questo teatro di Napoli, per ridurlo in sì breve tempo a luce, hà ricevuto qualche alteratione dalla sua prima forma . . . Sappi in tanto, che per non defraudare alla lode (che degnamente è dovuta al Sig. Gio. Battista Pollaroli [Carlo Francesco Pollaroli?] primo compositore della musica) si segneranno l'arie del medesimo col segno §. Tutte l'altre sono del Sig. Domenico Scarlati."

L'Irene—Continued.

The marked arias are "Sento una forza in petto" (I, 2), "Guerra, guerra, voglio guerra" (I, 4), "Non hà pena l'amor più crudele" (I, 5), "Belle catene" (I, 6), "La speranza d'un core ardente" (I, 6) etc., etc., in fact, at least one half of the arias in the opera.

The iron chest: a play; in three acts. Written by George Colman, the younger. With a preface. First represented at the Theatre-Royal, in Drury-Lane, on Saturday, 12th March, 1796 . . .

London, Cadell and Davies, 1796. 1 p. l., xxiii, [1], 127 p. 21^{cm}.

Cast, notice to the reader dated Picadilly, July 20, 1796, and preface. The latter, in which Stephen Storace is appreciatively mentioned as the composer, gives a narrative of the incidents and accidents leading up to the first performance, at which the piece was saved from a fiasco by Storace's music (his last work), but principally the preface assails Kemble, the acting manager and principal performer, whom Colman held responsible for the near fiasco. (The piece became eminently popular afterwards and by 1798 three editions had appeared.) In the notice to the reader, Colman states his indebtedness for the ground work of the play to William Godwin's novel, "Things as they are," and that "the songs, duets, and chorusses, are intended merely as vehicles for musical effect."

London, Printed by John Darby for Mary Poulson, 1724. 72 p. 16^{cm}.

Five acts, with prologue and epilogue. Cast, Peter [Anthony] Motteux's dedication and preface, in which he says that this piece is based on Fletcher's Island princess:

"As I found it not unfit to be made what we here call an opera, I undertook to revise it, but not as I wou'd have done, had I design'd a correct play . . . The success has answer'd my intent, far beyond expectation. However, I am not willing to attribute it to myself, but chiefly to the excellency of the musical part. What Mr. Daniel Purcell has set is so fine, that as he seems inspir'd with his brother's wonderful genius, it cannot but be equally admir'd. The notes of the interlude set by Mr. [Jeremiah] Clarke have air and humour that crown them with applause: and the dialogue and Enthusiastic song, which Mr. Leveridge set, are too particularly lik'd not to engage me to thank him for gracing my words with his composition, as much as for his celebrated singing . . ."

The piece is not an opera in our sense—merely a play with some incidental music. The composers are again mentioned in the text, Daniel Purcell being the chief contributor. The text of Clarke's interlude is printed on p. 63–70, under the title: "The "Riconoscerà il lettore in questo dramma, sotto altro titolo, la Cuccagna del celebre Sig. Goldoni . . . Il gusto de' finali introdottosi nelle opere buffe posteriormente alla rappresentazione del dramma suddetto, ha fatto, che per necessità si dovesse cambiar l'ordine del libretto, riducendolo a due soli atti, per essersi trasportata nel primo finale una parte dell' argomento dell' atto secondo, e nel finale secondo la catastrofe del dramma. Qualche altro cambiamento, che vi s'incontra si nella introduzione, che nelle arie, non è stato eseguito che per adattarsi in parte al gusto corrente de' signori compositori di musica, ed in parte ai personaggi, che le devono cantare, non intendendo mai con simili cambiamenti di volersi correggere l'opera d'un autore troppo cognito e rispettato."

Der jahrmarkt. Eine komische oper in zwei aufzuegen.

Leipzig, Verlag der Dyckischen buchhandlung, 1778. 102 p. 16½^{cm}.

By Friedrich Wilhelm Gotter, who says in his "Nachricht" (p. [3]), dated Gotha, February, 1778:

"Das gegenwaertige stueck wird schon, seit eingien jahren, auf verschiedenen theatern in manuskript aufgefuehrt. Auch ist der klavierauszug von der dazu gehoerigen [Georg] Benda ischen musik, unter der benennung von Dorfjahrmarkt, im naemlichen verlag erschienen. Diese verschiedenheit des titels wird hoffentlich niemanden irre machen, und so wenig, als eine oder die andere abweichung im text, einer besonderer eroerterung beduerfen."

The "Vorbericht" of the vocal score as published by Dyk at Leipzig in 1776 helps to give precision to Gotter's rather vague "Nachricht." The Vorbericht reads in translation:

"This comic opera by herr Gotter originally had but one act. Afterwards the opera was divided into two acts and herr [Joh. Adam] Hiller, at the request of his friend, herr Benda, composed the song at the end of the first act and the introductory chorus of the second. Some time afterwards a new actor in Seyler's Theater, for which the piece originally had been written, took the part of the colonel, and in order to recommend him also as a vocalist to the public, the herren Engel and Hiller wrote the arias p. 22 and p. 68 [of the vocal score], Engel the text and Hiller the music. With permission of the herren Benda and Gotter, these additional numbers are included in the vocal score, made by Hiller out of friendship for me and the author of the opera . . ."

The text of the 1778 publication is practically identical with that of the vocal score of 1776 (including Engel's contributions), and therefore does not represent the opera as it was first performed at Gotha, Schlosstheater, February 10, 1775, in one act. The first performance at Leipzig took place at the Koch'sches Theater am Rannstaedter Thor, April 25, 1775, and at Hamburg, Theater auf dem Gänsemarkt, May 8, 1776. The opera also became known under the title of "Lukas (Lucas) und Bärbchen."

Paris, Claude Herissant, 1768. 34 p. 19^{cm}.

In the avertissement the anonymous editor of the piece says that the "véritable auteur" is de Fontenelle, that the piece is now performed thirteen years after his death, and that a comparison with de Fontenelle's "Abdolonime" will show just how he, the editor, modified his model in deference to the exigencies of theatrical action.

Schatz attributes the text to R. T. Regnard de Pleinçhène. The composer, François André Danican Philidor, is not mentioned.

Both Parfaict and Font (also Schatz) attribute the text, not to Parmentier, but to Favart, and claim that it was first performed at the Foire St. Laurent August, 1740 (Font), July 1, 1740 (Parfaict). Font says that the next entry is a "reprise avec remaniements" of the 1740 play. At any rate, the differences between the 1755 version and that of 1751 are so slight as to be hardly noticeable. London, J. Watts, 1731. 4 p. l., 68 p. 20^{cm}.

Three acts. Author unknown. The p. l. contain a 2 p. list of "Books printed for J. Watts." Cast, table of the fifty-three songs, and "advertisement," which reads in part:

"It may be perhaps necessary to inform the world, that the groundwork of this piece is an old comedy of Richard Brome's; the prose part of it consisting chiefly of fragments, collected from the Merry beggars, and so disposed as to introduce the songs with propriety. The songs, (except about half a dozen) were written about three years ago, by a gentleman who is since dead. This circumstance is mentioned here only to obviate some idle rumours which have been spread about relating to the author . . ."

The "idle rumours" perhaps refer to the statement, recorded also by Baker and Schatz, that the interpolations were written by Edward Roome, Matthew Concanen, and Sir William Yonge.

London, J. and R. Tonson, 1767.

Three acts. Cast. This edition has only 43 "airs," without music and without even the titles of the airs. Schatz enters under "The jovial crew or The merry beggars" an opera by William Bates, London, Covent Garden, February 14, 1760. The present libretto may be a later edition of this (according to Schatz) revised text of "The jovial crew." Grove records under Bates: "The ladies' frolic, an alteration of The jovial crew (jointly with Dr. Arne) 1770." Cummings lists under Arne both "The jovial crew" (1769) and "The ladies' frolic" (1770). The vocal score mentions as composers Bates and Arne. LONGE 27

In a prefatory note dated Mannheim, July 22, 1771, C. F. Schwan, who was also the author of the piece, says:

"Das lustspiel, 'der Kaufmann von Smyrna,' so wie ich es vor einem jahre aus dem franzoesischen des hn. von Champfort uebersetzt, hat zwar gefallen; allein man setzte mit recht daran aus, dass es zu kurz sey. Ich habe diesem fehler dadurch abzuhelfen geglaubt, wenn ich es in eine operette verwandelte . . . Wegen den veraenderungen, die ich hie und da gemacht, werde ich mich wohl nicht entschuldigen duerfen. Es waere unschicklich gewesen, wenn Dornal und Amalie keine arien bekommen haetten, und wenn dieses seyn sollte, so musste ich sie allein auf das theater bringen und also eine scene einschalten. Den rechts-gelehrten habe ich mit vielen vorbedacht weggelassen. Ich finde es sehr unnatuerlich, wenn jemand sich selbst veraechtlich macht . . ."

London, J. Tonson, 1691. 6 p. l., 51, [1] p. 22½^{cm}.

Five acts, prologue and epilogue. Cast and dedication to the marquis of Halifax, largely an eulogy of Charles II. It reads, in part:

"This Poem was the last Piece of Service, which I had the Honour to do, for my Gracious Master, King Charles the Second: And though he liv'd not to see the Performance of it, on the Stage; yet the Prologue to it, which was the Opera of Albion and Albanus, was often practis'd before Him at Whitehal, and encourag'd by His Royal Approbation . . ."

"In the mean time, while the Nation is secur'd from Foreign Attempts, by so powerful a Fleet, and we enjoy not only the Happiness, but even the Ornaments of Peace, in the Divertisement of the Town, I humbly offer you this Trifle, which if it succeed upon the Stage, is like to be the chiefest Entertainment of our Ladies and

Gentlemen this Summer. When I wrote it, seven Years ago, I employ'd some reading about it, to inform my self out of Beda, Bochartus, and other Authors, concerning the Rites and Customs of the Heathen Saxons; as I also us'd the little Skill I have in Poetry to adorn it. But not to offend the present Times, nor a Government which has hitherto protected me, I have been oblig'd so much to alter the first Design, and take away so many Beauties from the Writing, that it is now no more what it was formerly, than the present Ship of the Royal Sovereign, after so often taking down, and altering, to the Vessel it was at the first Building. There is nothing better, than what I intended, but the Musick; which has since arriv'd to a greater Perfection in England, than ever formerly; especially passing through the Artful Hands of Mr. [Henry] Purcell, who has Compos'd it with so great a Genius, that he has nothing to fear but an ignorant, ill-judging Audience. But the Numbers of Poetry and Vocal Musick, are sometimes so contrary, that in many places I have been oblig'd to cramp my Verses, and make them rugged to the Reader, that they may be harmonious to the Hearer: Of which I have no Reason to repent me, because these sorts of Entertainment are principally design'd for the Ear and Eye; and therefore in Reason my Art on this occasion, ought to be subservient to his. And besides, I flatter my self with an Imagination, that a Judicious Audience will easily distinguish betwixt the Songs, wherein I have comply'd with him, and those in which I have followed the Rules of Poetry, in the Sound and Cadence of the Words. Notwithstanding all these Disadvantages, there is somewhat still remaining of the first Spirit with which I wrote it: . . .

— King Arthur: or, The British worthy. A masque. Altered from Dryden, by David Garrick, Esq. And now performed at the Theatre-Royal in Drury-Lane. The music by Purcell and Dr. Arne. The scenes by French and Carver.

London, W. Strahan, T. Lowndes, [etc.], 1781. 55 p. 21^{cm}.

Cast of 1781 and prefatory note:

“The names of Dryden and Purcell have made the following performance hitherto regarded as one of the best calculated to shew the effects of poetry, action and music . . . The success of this, as well as of all other theatrical exhibitions, will wholly depend upon the present taste; but it is hoped, and believed, that two of our greatest geniuses in poetry and music, if they have justice done them upon the stage, bid fair for public approbation.—There are some slight alterations made, for the greater convenience of representation; and some few songs added, where it was thought such additions would be of service to the whole.”

Five acts. Lengthy historical "vorbericht," which reads, in part:

"Die fehler, so in den italiaenischen arien moechten angemercket werden, sind niemanden als dem verfasser dieser opera beyzumessen [Barthold Feind], denn er hat dem zuschauer lieber seine eigne gedanken in dieser sprache verkauffen, als die arbeit mit fremden federn schmuecken wollen, so viel wie moeglich hat er sich nach dem deutschen metro gerichtet, weil die caesur der ital. verse insgemein etwas hart klinget. Hamburg, Friedrich Hermann Nestler, n. d. 15½^{cm}.

Schatz enters this under Georg Benda's "Der holzhauer," but "Der kluge mann" and "Der holzhauer" have nothing in common except a few of the characters, the sub-title, and the idea of the piece. In Benda's opera the main characters are called, "Valentin, der holzhauer; Brigitte, Valentins frau; Wilhelmine, Valentins tochter; Konrad, Wilhelminens liebhaber; Wenzel, ein alter Pächter; Der amtmann;" etc. In "Der kluge mann" the characters are: "Hanns, ein armer holzhauer; Grete, seine frau; Lieschen, seine tochter erster ehe; Conrad, ein junger bauer; Wenzel, ein reicher pächter; Der amtmann." It is now easy to see how Schatz was led to his entry, though the texts are absolutely different.

London, Jonas Browne, 1718. 2 p. l., 27 p. 19^{cm}.

In the acts one to four the "entertainments, set to musick" in this play were few and far between, the first, at least according to Browne's publication, occurring in the second act in form of a scene, with song; the second in the third act, as a "ballad sung by Mr. Pack." In the fifth act there occurred "The masque of Decius and Paulina," and the full text of this appears, with cast, on p. [12]-27 of this publication.

The piece evidently belongs to "The curious admixtures of masque and harlequinade" (Grove) which Rich produced, with music by Galliard, from about 1717 on as pantomimes.

Lenardo und Blandine. Ein melodram von J. F. von Goetz. In Musik gesetzt von Herrn Winter . . . Aufgeführt von einer Gesellschaft adelicher Kunstfreunde auf dem Stadttheater in Augsburg.

[Augsburg, Andreas Brinhausser, 1785.] front., unpag. 15½^{cm}.

Two acts. Argument and long "Vorbericht" (8 p.) dated January, 1785, which reads, in part:

"Vor acht Jahren, da der Geschmack an Melodramen in Teutschland sich auszeichnete, dachte ich dieser Art Schauspiele öfters nach, und konnte mich nicht enthalten zuweilen meine Anmerkungen über den Zweck und die innere Einrichtungen des Spiels, nebst den erforderlichen Masregeln der begleitenden Musik, öffentlich kund zu thun.

"Ich war weit entfernt, die Wahrscheinlichkeit eines Monologes von solcher Ausdehnung zu behaupten. Allein, so wie eine philosophische Streitfrage, wobei der Gegensatz schon erwiesen angenommen ist, eh man sich darüber streitet, dem Verstande zu einer angenehmen Beschäftigung wird: eben so dürfe ein leidenschaftlicher, idealisirter Monolog, welcher Sätze enthält, die bei wirklichen Handlungen und Dialogen einzeln vorkommen können, in einer gedrängteren Reihe nicht ganz unangenehm sein. Ueberdies könnte man ein Melodram als ein künstliches Solo ansehen, worin der Künstler seine Fertigkeit, reichhaltige Verbindung der Ideen und das Crescendo seiner Kunst zu zeigen Gelegenheit nimmt. In den gewöhnlichen dramatischen Stücken dient dem Schauspieler zum Vorteil: dass sein Spiel durch Zwischenszenen oft vorteilhaft unterbrochen wird, und dem vom Sinne der Handlung erfüllten Zuschauer manche Bewegung nicht besonders auffällt, die der Spielende häufig bis zum Ekel wiederholt. Ich habe diese Unvollkommenheit in den Vorstellungen verschiedener beliebten Melodramen zuweilen wargenommen, worin die spielenden Personen, theils bei dem Texte gegen den gehörigen Ausdruck gestikulirten, theils die hie und da mit Musik ausgedenteten unwahrscheinlichen Intervallen, wie abgerissene Perioden, begleiteten.

"In dieser Absicht stimmte mich einst ein einsamer Spaziergang durch romantische Gegenden zu Lieblingsbildern dichterischer Auftritte, ein Zufal hielt mich bei Bürgers Lenardo und Blandine fest; und der Sinn dieses innigst durchgedachten Stoffes erbizte meine Einbildungskraft so nachdrücklich, dass ich eine ganze Reihe von Handlungen, die bei dieser Begebenheit sich vor oder nach ereignen konten, mir gleichsam im Geiste vorschweben sah. Im Schwunge dieser Ideen drängte mich zum Deklamiren, zum Gestikuliren, und endlich sas ich auf meinem Stule fest, und versuchte einige der vorgeschwebten Bilder mit Feder und Kreide zu entwerfen. Dabei ereignete sich der äusserst seltn Fal, dass mir die Arbeit den folgenden Morgen nicht ganz misfiel. Kunstfreunde ermunterten mich fortzufahren: und so ward nach und nach Lenardo und Blandine in dramatische Szenen eingeleitet, und von Punkt zu Punkt so niedergezeichnet, dass man die Folge von Zeichnungen, welche sich auf 160 Blat beläuft, als eine fortdauernde Handlung ansehen konte, die so oft zu erneuern war, als man Belieben trug, die Zeichnungen nach ihrer Reihe und Verbindung vor Augen zu legen.

"Ich war dabei bemühet den Grundursachen der menschlichen Bewegungen nachzuforschen, wornach sich die Stellung und Gesichtsausdrücke des menschlichen Körpers durch verschiedene Lagen drängen und verändern konten. Die Resultate dieser mühsamen Beobachtungen hab' ich bereits dem Publikum unter dem Titel: Versuch leidenschaftlicher Entwürfe für empfindsame Kunst- und Schauspielfreunde vorgelegt, und ich gestehe gerne dass die gütige Aufnahme dieses Versuches in verschiednen öffentlichen Blättern meiner Erwartung desto überraschender kommen musste, je mer ich von der Beschränktheit meiner geringen Verdienste überzeugt bin.

"Meine Absicht dabei war vorzüglich den öffentlichen Redner und Schauspieler auf die feineren Reize des Geberdenspiels und der Deklamazion aufmerksam, und dadurch das Gebiet des Seelenvermögens und seines unbegreiflichen Einwirkungskreises bekannter und gemeinnützlicher zu machen. Diess war eigentlich die Hauptabsicht des Melodrams, welches ich bey seiner Entstehung keineswegs für eine öffentliche Vorstellung auf der Bühne, sondern blos zu einem Grundplan zur Zergliederung der Symtome und Auswüchse einer der bekantesten und allgemeinsten Leidenschaften (ich meine die Liebe) bestimmte. Es war demnach Zufall, und keineswegs meine Hauptabsicht, wenn dieses Stück auf verschiedenen Bühnen Teutschlands aufgeführt ward, und die Talente verschiedner Musiker beschäftigt hatte, die Ruhepunkte der Affekte mit Melodien zu begleiten. Die Einrichtung jener Musik, welche unter meiner Aufsicht und nach meinen geringen Musikbegriffen ausgeführt worden, ist, (wie auf den Titel angemerkt ward) von Herrn Winter, einem Mann, welchen Teutschland noch zu wenig kennt, um ihm so viel Gerechtigkeit widerfahren zu lassen, als seine besonderen musikalischen Vorzüge verdienen, welche er in verschiedenen

„Vileicht dürfte es einigen Kunstfreunden nicht unangenehm seyn, wenn ich hier einige Ideen anmerke, wornach ich dem Tonkünstler bei diesem Melodram fortzuschreiten bat. Ich fand bei einigen Dramen und Rezitativen, welche mit Musik begleitet werden, den Fehler: dass der begleitende Gesang der Instrumente entweder zu ser an einzelnen Bildern haiftete, und allenfalls die Bewegungen eines Stromes schilderte, welcher unter der ganzen Vorstellung der Natur warscheinlich auf seinem unveränderlichen Plaz fortrauschte, sich aber dennoch in der Musik in dem Augenblick nur hören liess, da der Schauspieler von Strome sprach. Ausser dieser Kleinmeisterei pflegen die Entwiklungen und Ausweichungen öfters so gedent zu werden, dass der Zuschauer und Schauspieler in Verlegenheit gesetzt werden muss, was sie in diesen langen Zwischenräumen handlen oder denken sollen. Dadurch wird das vilfältige hin und her Traben, und manche absichtslose Händebewegung bei einigen Monologen unvermeidlich. Meiner unmasgeblichen Meinung nach sollte gerade so viel und nicht mer Musik zwischen den Redeintervallen angenommen und gehört werden, als warscheinliche Zeit die Seele in ihrer einmal angenommenen Lage nötig hat, um Begriffe aus Begriffen zu folgern oder dadurch zu neuen Ideen überzugehen. Der Tonsezer sol sich lebhaft in die Lage der handlenden Person versetzen und den sprachlosen Zustand mit sanften Akorden ausfüllen, worinnen das innere Gefühl sich sammelt und ordnet. Er sol die Wirkung iener Momente studiren, worinn die Leidenschaft entweder noch nicht zu iener Höhe gestiegen ist, dass sie den Mund unwillkürlich öfnet, und zu sprechen drängt, oder wenn durch Uebergewicht des Gefüls die Sprache stoket.

„. . . Diese wenigen Bemerkungen fand ich nötig bei Verfertigung der Musik zu meinem Drama vorauszusetzen. Und einsichtsvolle Kenner der Tonkunst haben die von dem geschikten Tonsezer dadurch erreichten Wirkungen mit Beifal beglückt. Sie werden auch in den meisten Stellen der Musik finden, dass die Instrumente in dem nämlichen Grundtone beginnen, oder aufhören, in welchem die Stime der deklamirenden entweder einfällt, oder vorhergegangen ist. Dadurch schmilzt Musik und Deklamazion harmonischer ineinander, und drängt den Sinn der Handlung ungezwungener fort. Aus diesem läst sich ohngefähr schliesen, wie genau Dichter, Tonsezer und Agirende auf einen Punkt zusammen wirken müssen, um einer Vorstellung Warheit und Ungezwungenheit zu geben . . .”

— The school for fathers; or, Lionel & Clarissa. A comic opera. By Isaac Bickerstaff. Adapted for theatrical representation, as performed at the Theatre-Royal Drury-Lane and Covent-Garden. Regulated from the prompt-book, by permission of the managers . . .

The engraved front. represents Mr. Parsons as Col. Oldboy and is dated January 27, 1791. The 1 p. l. is an engraved added title page with a scene from the opera and is dated January 6, 1791.

Three acts. Biographical note, editorial comment, Drury-Lane and Covent-Garden casts, and author's Advertisement. In this he says:

"it was the general opinion of all my friends, some of whom rank among the best judges, that of all my trifles, Lionel and Clarissa was the most pardonable (an estimate with which neither the public nor the editor does not agree) . . .

"When Mr. Garrick thought of performing this piece at Drury-Lane theatre [1770], he had a new singer to bring out, and every thing possible for her advantage was to be done; this necessarily occasioned some new songs and airs to be introduced; and other singers, with voices of a different compass from those who originally acted the parts, occasioned still more; by which means the greatest part of the music unavoidably became new. This is the chief, and indeed the only alteration made in the opera; and even to that, I should, in many places, have been forced, much against my will, had it not given a fresh opportunity to Mr. Dibdin to display his admirable talents as a musical composer . . .

"The School for fathers is added to the title, because the plot is evidently double; and that of Lionel and Clarissa alluded to but one part of it . . ."

Following the text: "A table of the songs. With the names of the several composers. N. B. Those marked thus  are new, both words and music; but those marked thus *, are only new set." According to this, the overture was a "new overture" by Dibdin and with exception of one number, "Ah! pry'thee spare me," with music by Galuppi, the entire first act was by Dibdin, "To rob them of strength" and "To tell you the truth" having one asterisk, "Ye gloomy thoughts" two. In the second act two numbers, "Talk not to me," and "Go, and, on my truth," were by Vento, one each by Scolari ("Indeed, forsooth"), Arne ("How cursedly vext"), and Ciampi ("Come then, pining, peevish lover"); all the others by Dibdin, "To fear a stranger" having one asterisk, "Ladies, pray admire," "Poor panting heart," and "We all say the man," two. The third act, with exception of one number ("Why with sighs"), by Ciampi, was by Dibdin, and was new with exception of the final chorus, "I wonder, I'm sure" and "O, bliss unexpected" having one asterisk, "How can you inhuman," "Hist, soft: let's hear," and "A rascal, a hussy" having two. However, the table of songs is not complete, half a dozen of the songs not being listed at all!

These are "Ah, how delightful the morning" (I, 1), "Immortal pow'rs protect me" (I, 6), "Indulgent pow'rs, if ever" (I, 11), "Hence with caution" (II, 6), "When love gets into a youthful brain" (III, 8), "O dry those tears" (III, 9).

"To fear a stranger," while listed under Dibdin (one asterisk) as in act II, in the text appears in act III, 2! In Johnston's vocal score of "A school for fathers . . . as performed at . . . Drury-Lane" this air also appears as in act II, but as composed by Galuppi!

Further comparison discloses some rather startling discrepancies. In the vocal score "Ah how delightful the morning" is attributed to Scolari, while the other anonymous airs are not printed. In the vocal score on p. 40 "Come then pining peevish lover" is attributed as in the libretto to Ciampi, but in the "table of the songs" of the vocal score it is attributed to Vinci! Finally, "Why with sighs" is attributed both in the text and the table of the vocal score to Potenza and not to Ciampi.

Livietta e Tracollo o La contadina astuta.

Two intermezzi by Pergolesi, text by Mariani. The Naples, 1734, ed. is not in the L. of C., nor any other ed. with the original title. The work became known also under the alternative title, as "Tracollo," "La finta Polacca," "Tracollo, medico ignorante" (as in the Paris libretto of 1753).

First performed as intermezzi to Pergolesi's "Adriano in Siria" at Naples, Teatro di S. Bartolomeo, October 25, 1734; at Paris at the Académie royale de musique in May 1753.

In his Pergolesi biography Radiciotti has analyzed (not the original libretto, but) the score preserved at the Naples conservatory. Accordingly, this score (which is not Pergolesi's own original score) would seem to contain two singing parts "Livietta" and "Tracollo" besides the mute "Fulvia" and the following arias:

(Int. I) Vi stò ben? Vi comparisco? (Livietta); A una povera Polacca (Tracollo); Ecco il povero Tracollo (Tracollo); Vado, vado, ed avrai core (duet);

(Int. II) Vedo l'aria che s'imbruna (Tracollo); Caro perdona mi, placa (Livietta); Non si muove, non rifiata (Tracollo); Sempre attorno qual palomba (duet, in place of which other scores, according to Radiciotti, have "Per te ho io nel core" from Pergolesi's "Flaminio." For other final duets see below).

It should be noted that the arias "Vi stò ben? Vi comparisco?" and "Non si muove, non rifiata" appear also in Goldoni's "Amor fà l'uomo cieco" text dated 1731 by Wotquenne. As intermezzi of that title were composed by Pergolesi and performed with his "La Salustia" at the Teatro di S. Bartolomeo, Naples, winter 1731, it may be that those two arias made part of these intermezzi and that in 1734 they were again used for "Livietta e Tracollo." (See Amor fà l'uomo cieco.)

It appears from Radiciotti's analysis, that the Naples score of "Livietta e Tracollo" and presumably the Naples libretto do not agree with the score of "Tracollo, intermède" as published at Paris in 1753 nor with our score of "La contadina astuta, as transcribed from a score preserved at the Brussels Conservatory. The distinguishing feature between these two scores (which coincide completely) and the Naples score is that they contain a third singing part "Sulpizio" besides "Livia" and "Tracollo" resp. "Tracollo medico ignorante." The two scores contain (arias in italics):

(Int. II) Vedo l'aria che s'imbruna (Tracollo) Affè che il far; Questo—foglio, questa carta (Livia) Questa è passata ben; Caro, perdonami, placa (Livia) Gli credo o non gli credo; Non si muove, non rifiata (Tracollo) Affè, ch'ella è già morta! Io non posso resistere (Livia) Comincia à intenerirsi; A quella che l'adora (duet).

Two parts. By Tommaso Mariani. Cast and name of Giov. Battista Pergolesi as the composer.

The characters are Livietta, Tracollo and "Fulvia e Facenda, che non parlano" and the libretto contains the following (arias in italics):

(Int. I) Vi stò ben? vi comparisco? (Liv.) Ma lasciamo li scherzi; Ad un povero Polacco (Tracollo) Dormono a sonno pieno; Senti . . . non sarà mai (Liv.) Dunque, Livietta mia; Bella mia, se son tuo sposo (Tracollo. From Pergolesi's Il maestro di musica) Via, risolva una volta; Vado a morte, ed avrai (duet).

(Int. II) Vedo l'aria, che s'imbruna (Tracollo) Par che ci pigli gusto; Caro perdonami, placa (Livietta) Gli credo, o non gli credo; Non si muove, non rifiata (Tracollo) Ah Livietta mia; Dimmi a me, Tu mi vuoi bene? (duet).

First performed, as indicated, 1749; at Dresden Hoftheater, August 5, 1747.

Two parts. Cast. Author not mentioned and unknown to Schatz, but the characters are "Livietta" and "Tracollo" and "Fulvia che non parla." Consequently, this pointed to a later title of Pergolesi's "Livietta e Tracollo," text by Mariani and a comparison of this and "Il finto pazzo" established the fact.

The characters are Livietta, Tracollo and the mute Fulvia. The libretto contains the following (arias in italics):

(Int. I) Vi stò ben? Vi comparisca? (Livietta) Ma lasciamo gli scherzi; Ad un povero Polacco (Tracollo) Dormono a sonno pien; Perche ridi, mustaccio; Senti, non sarà mai (Livietta) Via risolva una volta; Dch non lasciarmi, ingrata (Tracollo) Invano ti lusinghi; Vado a morte, ed avrai (duet).

(Int. II) Vedo l'aria, che s'imbruna (Tracollo) Par. che ci pigli gusto; Caro perdonami, placa (Livietta) Gli credo o non gli credo? Non si muove, non rifiata (Tracollo) Ah! Livietta mia; Contento tu sarai (duet, from Pergolesi's La serva padrone).

Milano, Gio. Batista Bianchi, n. d. 70 p. 60¹/₂^{cm}.

Two acts. Impresario's dedication, cast, scenario, and name of Joh. Simon Mayr as the composer. Sometimes attributed to Gaetano Rossi, but comparison with Schatz 6158 proves that it is but F. Gouella di Ferrara's text in two acts, with numerous alterations. For instance, the first scene of act first is entirely different in the two versions, but to scene second has been added everything preceding the words, “Principessa, se vuoi.” The second act shows comparatively few changes in the dialogue, but in this act, too, most of the arias do not appear in the original version, and, for instance, in II, 5 the aria, “Quel nobil core,” has been added, where originally there was none at all. On p. 35–42, prefatory note, argument, description, and cast of Gaspare Ronzi's “Ginevra di Scozia, ballo eroico pantomimo.” The second ballet had the title, “Ergasto, ed Eurilla vinti dall' amore.” The composers of the music are not mentioned.

The lord of the manor, a comic opera, as it is performed at the Theatre Royal Drury-Lane, with a preface by the author.

London, T. Evans, 1781. xxvi, 96 p. 21^{cm}.

Three acts. Cast. By John Burgoyne, who is not mentioned. His lengthy but important preface after apologizing "to every man who has been charged with this foundling"—the anonymous piece had even been attributed to Sheridan—states that the piece "was written last summer in the country for mere amusement" without any satirical design on the recruiting service, and he then indulges in "a few thoughts upon opera, and particularly that species of it attempted in the ensuing pages." A few quotations will show that Burgoyne's ideas are worthy of notice by the historians of English opera:

"I have no hesitation in pronouncing an opinion, that the adopting what is called recitative into a language, to which it is totally incongruous, is the cause of failure in an English serious opera much oftener than the want of musical powers in the performers . . .

"I will not contend (though I have my doubts) that it is impossible for genius to invent, and for voice to deliver, a sort of recitative that the English language will bear. But it must be widely different from the Italian. If any specimens can yet be produced of it's having been effected, they will be found to consist only of a few lines introductive of the air which is to follow, and as such received by the ear just as symphony would be. Very few serious pieces, except Artaxerxes, can be recollected upon our Theatre where it has not entirely failed, even when assisted by action: in oratorios it is, with a few exceptions, and those sustained by accompaniment, a soporific that even the thunder of Handel's chorusses are hardly loud enough to overcome . . .

"I trust that in contending against musical dialogue in English, I shall not be understood to think that all music is inapplicable to the higher compositions of our stage. On the contrary I am convinced that under judicious management music is capable of giving them effect beyond what our best authors can attain without it—music can add energy to Shakespeare himself. Indignant as an English audience would be to hear King Lear deliver himself in recitative, I believe no person, who had a heart or taste, ever contemplated the mute groupe of Cordelia with the aged parent asleep in her lap, and the physician watching by, without an encrease of sensibility from the soft music which Mr. Garrick introduced into that scene . . .

“One branch of comic opera which meets with success on our stage is evidently a graft from the Burletta of the Italians; and little as I may admire it in general, I will venture to say, respectively to the writing, it is improved in our soil. Midas, the Golden Pippin, and some others, considered as pieces of parody and burlesque, are much better than any Italian burletta I know . . .

“I cannot easily bring myself to allow the higher branch of our Comic Opera, to be of foreign extraction. From the time the Beggar’s Opera appeared, we find pieces in prose, with songs interspersed, so approaching to regular comedy in plot, incident, and preservation of character, as to make them a distinct species from any thing we find abroad—and is it too much to add that the sense, wit, and humour to be found in some of them are sterling English marks by which we may claim the species as our own? . . .

“They who are unacquainted with the Paris theatre, are referred for judgement upon this subject to the Deserter, Zemira and Azor, and other direct translations; and to Daphne and Amintor, and Thomas and Sally, and other after-pieces, very good in their kind, but written after the French manner. The Padlock is above this class in display of characters; and the French have nothing upon their musical comic stage to compare as resembling comedy, with Love in a Village, or the Maid of the Mill, or to take still greater credit to our theatre, the Duenna.

“In a representation which is to hold “a mirror up to nature,” and which ought to draw its chief applause from reason, vocal music should be confined to express the feelings of the passions, but never to express the exercise of them. Song, in any action in which reason tells us it would be unnatural to sing, must be preposterous. To fight a duel, to cudgel a poltroon in cadence, may be borne in a burletta, upon the same principle that in the serious opera we see heroes fight lions and monsters, and sometimes utter their last struggles for life in song and die in strict time and tune: but these liberties would be totally inadmissable in the kind of drama which I am recommending . . .

“Music, therefore, if employed to express action, must be confined to dumb shew. It is the very essence of pantomime; and we have lately seen upon the opera stage how well a whole story may be told in dance; . . . It should always be the accessory and not the principal subject of the drama; but at the same time spring out of it in such a manner that the difference can hardly be discerned, and that it should seem neither the one nor the other could be spared . . . It would be affectation in me, as well as ingratitude to the public, to deny the pleasure I have had in the very favourable reception of this piece. At the same time I trust that I am duly sensible how much of the success is to be attributed to the exertions of the performers, the merits of the orchestra, and the excellence of Mr. [William] Jackson’s composition . . .”

London, Printed by W. Griffin for J. Newbery and W. Nicoll [etc.], 1763. 3 p. l., 78 p. 19^{cm}.

Three acts. Cast. By Isaac Bickerstaffe, who is not mentioned and who says in his dedication to Mr. Beard:

"If this opera is considered merely as a piece of dramatic writing, it will certainly be found to have very little merit: in that light no one can think more indifferently of it than I do myself; but I believe I may venture to assert, on your opinion, that some of the songs are tollerable; that the music is more pleasing than has hitherto appeared in any composition of this kind; and the words better adapted, considering the nature of the airs, which are not common ballads, than could be expected, supposing any degree of poetry to be preserved in the versification . . ."

The text was based on "The village opera" and other old plays. Thomas Aug. Arne, who partly composed, partly compiled the music, is not mentioned, nor are other composers mentioned in this edition.

First performed on December 8, 1762, as indicated.

From this table it appears that Abel's overture was "new," that Howard's "Oh had I been by fate decreed" and "How much superior beauty awes," Arne's "Still in hopes to get the better," "Believe me dear aunt," "Go, naughty man, I can't abide you," and "Well come let us hear" "were composed on purpose for this opera" and that the ballad tunes "Larry Gorgan" and "St. Patrick's day" were introduced. It is curious to note that Walsh's vocal score does not mention Bernard, Abel, Carey, Weldon on title page and that Longman & Broderip's vocal score does not mention Abos and Bernard, but adds Oswald. The [3] p. at end contain a book list by the publisher.

Three acts. Cast, dedication, and preface in which Isaac Bickerstaffe says:

"To those who find fault with an opera, merely for being such, it will be in vain to say any thing in defence of this; indeed the absurdity attach'd to the musical drama is so glaring, that there seems no great penetration necessary to discover it; and consequently any one who will cry out sing-song or tweedle-dee, is capable of turning it into ridicule. Yet it should be considered, that its absurdity, gross as it is, constitutes, in a great measure, its power of pleasing . . ."

"The music of this piece is almost totally comic, and generally characteristic; I would therefore advise those of my auditors, who do not taste it at the first hearing, to give it a second, nay a third or a fourth; and after that, should they never desire to hear it again, I can only tell them they happen to dislike what has been repeatedly approved, by all the polite nations of Europe . . ."

Charles Dibdin (not mentioned) assisted Bickerstaffe in the musical make-up of this pasticcio, which became better known in an altered version as "The romp." The vocal score mentions in the headings (besides Dibdin): Vento, Cocchi, Galuppi, Piccinni, Barthelemon, Pergolesi and Jommelli

Love's mistress: or The Queens masque. As it was three times presented before both Their Majesties, within the space of eight dayes: In the presence of sundry forraigne ambassadors. Publikey acted by the Queenes comedians, at the Phoenix in Drury-Lane. The second impression, corrected by the author, Thomas Heywood . . .

London, Printed by John Raworth, for John Crouch, 1640. [72] p. 17^{cm}.

Five acts. The masque is here entered without further comment, as it contains so few opportunities for music (dances and a few songs) as to be negligible for the present purpose. It is more a drama than a masque. LONGE 61

Love's paradise. A. T. of The grove.

The loves of Mars and Venus; a play set to musick: written by Mr. Motteux . . .

London, A. Bettersworth and F. Clay, 1722. [51]-84 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts and prologue. "An explanation of the fable" (p. 83-84), cast, dedication and preface in which Motteux says:

"This musical play or masque was written to be inserted into a very short farce, written by Mr. Ravenscroft, called The Anatomist, or the Sham doctor . . . I chose a subject never manag'd in a dramattick way before . . . Whatever the critics may think of the lines . . . there has not been more agreeable, nor more masterly music perform'd upon our stage . . ."

The prologue and third act are headed as composed by Godfrey Finger, acts 1-2 as by John Eccles.

First performed 1696 at Lincoln's-Inn-Fields.

Lucinda. Scherzo pastorale per musca . . .

Parma, Paolo Monti, 1713. vi, 7–48 p. 21 p.

Three acts. Imprimatur dated July 14, 1713. In a prefatory note the publisher mentions Vincenzo Nieri as the author and prints a letter by him, dated Lucca, April 19, 1713, in which he says:

"nel passato carnevale alcuni amici, ed io risolvemmo di rappresentare per proprio divertimento questo piccolo dramma, il di cui motivo lo trassi . . . dall' opere del già famoso Moniglia; ma dopo alcune recite, fù sparsa voce, contenersi in esso qualche sentimento immodesto, e perciò indegno d'esser udito, benchè del continuo fosse il concorso degli uditori assai folto. Fra gli altri si pose in testa, che così fosse, un certo Satrapone Zelante, il quale unito con altro soggetto suo pari, e senza averlo nè pur veduto, gli diede taccia di disonesto, e lascivo; e fece, per quanto fù in sua mano, ogni possibile sforza, acciò ne restasse sospesa la recita . . ."

He then states that these unwarranted attacks failed and that the opera continued to be performed with success. The composer is unknown to Schatz. ML 50.2.L83

London, Printed by John Haviland for Thomas Walkley, 1637. 1 p. l., 21 p. 18cm.

Text of the songs, minute description of the masque and of “Night,” the anti-masque, and at end “the names of the masquers.” The prefatory remarks read, in part:

“The kings Majesties masque being performed, the queene commanded Inigo Jones, surveyor of her Majesties works, to make a new subject of a masque for her selfe, that with high and hearty invention, might give occasion for variety of scenes, strange apparitions, songs, musick and dancing of severall kinds; from whence doth result the true pleasure peculiar to our English masques, which by strangers and travellers of judgement, are held to be as noble and ingenious, as those of any other nations: This being suddainly done and shewed her Majestie, and shee approving it, the worke was set in hand, and with all celerity performed in shorter time, than any thing here hath beene done in this kind.”

The masque has been attributed to T. Lodge and Robert Greene and the music is credited to Nicholas Lanier.

On p. 106 the note: "Nach dem Merry cobler oder the Second part of the Devil to pay des herrn Coffey."

Neither Johann Standfuss, who originally composed the music, nor Johann Adam Hiller, who revised it and partly composed the text anew, is mentioned.

First performed at Leipzig, Theater am Raunstädter Thore, 1766. With Standfuss' music first performed at Lübeck, January 18, 1759.

Three acts. By Antonio Palomba (not mentioned). Dedication, scenario, cast, and name of the composer, Gioacchino Cocchi.

First performed at Bologna, Teatro Formagliari, summer 1747. SCHATZ 2033

NB. Cocchi's "La scaltra governatrice," which was first performed at Paris, Académie royale de musique, January 25 (Schatz), March 23 (de La Laurencie) 1753, was but a refacimento of his "La maestra," both containing, for instance, the arias "Scelerata a me rispondi," "Cara Drusilla, Non goda quell' infida" etc. As the L. of C. does not possess the original Bologna, 1747 text, I cannot point out, just what surgical operations the opera suffered at the hands of the Bambini company at Paris. The Venice, 1754 ed. contains in the first act the following arias and it is clear from a comparison with de La Laurencie's remarks on "La scaltra governatrice" in S. I. M., June 15, 1912, p. 32, that the Paris and Venice versions must have been strikingly different:

Io sono una ragazza.

I, 2 Mia Drusilla, all' or che.

I, 5 Più non chiamo ingiusto amore.

I, 9 Poverina! ha freddo il naso.

I, 10 Fiume, ch' alterno abbonda.

I, 12 No, non mi muove a sdegno.

I, 13 Se mai vi vedi andar vicino.

I, 14 Bella mano, or che ti stringo.

The following arias cited by de La Laurencie are not in the Venice ed. of La maestra: Vedovella poverella; Drusillina; O quanti maestri; Gli sbirri (from Cocchi's La mascherata), Non son piccina, Fra noi scende Imeneo.

Berlino, Haude e Spener, 1763. 101, [3] p. 17½^{cm}.

Three acts, with name of Cocchi as composer. German title-page "Die schulmeisterin," and text face Italian, which differs somewhat from that of "La maestra." The first act now has only ten scenes, the two last arias mentioned above occurring in I, 9 and I, 10. Furthermore I, 8 has the aria "Mentisca pure," I, 7 "Poverina! ha freddo," I, 5 "Se alla mia fè," I, 2 "Mia Drusilla" and in I, 1 the second aria was dropped.

First performed at Berlin, Schlosstheater, December 1763, and previously there in 1754 (Schatz). SCHATZ 2034

— La scuola moderna, ossia La maestra di buon gusto. Dramma giocoso per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro Giustiniano di S. Moisè l'autunno dell' anno 1748.

Venezia, Modesto Fenzo, 1748. front., 58, [1] p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts. Antonio Palomba's "La maestra," rewritten by Carlo Goldoni, according to Schatz, who records Cocchi as the composer, whereas Wiel leaves that point open. This notice is addressed to the reader on p. 3:

"Non avendo servito il tempo per mutar tutta l'opera, come erasi divisato, si è mutata tutta la materia buffa, la quale, se non parerà bene intrecciata colla seria, ciò è provenuto per la necessaria brevità . . ."

The differences will appear from the list of characters. Originally they were: Drusilla, Fazio, Leonora, Ottavio, Flaminio, Checca, Pistone. In the revised version they are: Doralba, Rosmira, Ergasto, Drusilla, Belfiore, Leonora, Lindoro. For purposes of identification it may be further noticed that act I, sc. 2, now begins "Cara Drusilla mia" instead of "Ma che buona ragazza?" and that the opera now ends with "Io mi sento dal diletto" instead of "Grazia ad amore. Eh al nostro core." The additional page contains the substituted arias "Destrier che all' armi usato" (II, 7) and "Giovani cari amanti" (II, 9). SCHATZ 2048

Il maestro di musica.

Two acts. Author and exact date of performance unknown. Music by Giovanni Battista Pergolesi, composed, according to Radiciotti, probably during the winter 1733/34. Neither a copy of the original libretto has come to light, nor the original score or a copy of it. Consequently it is not known just what the score and the libretto contained. Not even the plot is perfectly clear, since the nearest known approach to Pergolesi's score does not contain any dialogue. It is the score of "Le MAITRE DE MUSIQUE opéra bouffon italien . . . Avec la belle ariette Cou-cou. Chantée dans la Fausse survivante del Sig: Atilia [1]," Paris, Boivin, with the note below the imprint:

"Pour se conformer au goût du public, ou a cru devoir retrancher le récitatif. Gravé d'après la partition de l'auteur."

If this last sentence is to be taken literally, it would mean that the Boivin ed. was based on Pergolesi's own score. At any rate, it was evidently inserted in order to establish the authenticity of the Boivin ed., which contains the Italian text (and a French prose translation) of twelve arias, duets, etc., from Pergolesi's "Il maestro di musica," first performed at Paris, September 19 (de La Laurencie), October 3 (Schatz), October 19 (Cl. & L.) 1752, with an overture by Sammartini, which was not included in the score, and, as a supplement, the indicated cou-cou aria, "Colà sul praticello," from Latilla's "La finta cameriera." The twelve arias, etc., from "Il maestro di musica" are:

First act: (1) "Oh che sproposito (by Pietro Auletta, according to de La Laurencie);" (2) "A un gusto da stordire;" (3) "Vò dir lo basso;" (4) Bella mia, se son tuo sposo; (5) "Vedo quel bel l'occhietto;" (6) "Come chi gioca alle palle." Second act: (7) "Le virtuoee che son famose;" (8) "Quando sciolto avrò il contratto;" (9) "Se giammai da speco;" (10) "Splenda fra noi, seren" (chorus); (11) "Qual doppio insano" (duet); (12) "Caro signor maestro" (trio).

It may be added that the ms. score at Berlin (of which the L. of C. has a transcript) is identical with the Boivin ed., i. e., it, too, lacks the dialogue.

The opera, "Orazio," given 1743 at Venice, with the names of Latilla and Pergolesi as composers in the libretto (entered in this catalogue under "Orazio"), is clearly a very much expanded three-act version, with six characters instead of three, of the "Il maestro di musica" text. The author of the "Orazio" text is not mentioned in the libretto, but is said by Schatz to have been Antonio Palomba. As to the music of "Orazio," Radiciotti and others enter this opera under Pergolesi and Latilla, but, as a matter of fact, the libretto has Latilla first and Pergolesi second. The reason for this order becomes quite obvious from a comparison between the "Orazio" libretto and the Paris, Boivin ed. of the score of "Il maestro di musica:" Of the twelve arias, etc., enumerated above, only the following four appear in the "Orazio" libretto: (no. 1) in I, 1; (2) as "Ha un gusto da morire," in I, 1; (6) in I, 13; (10) as "Splenda fra noi seren," in II, 17. In other words, Pergolesi's share in "Orazio" would seem to have been very small, and the opera should henceforth be entered mainly under Gaetano Latilla.

In 1749, at Parma, "Il maestro di musica" had become "Orazio o La scolara alla moda," and at Florence, of course with further interpolations, alterations, etc., the opera was given (1760) as "La scolara alla moda."

— Il maestro di cappella, intermezzi per musica, da rappresentarsi nel Regio Teatro di Potsdam per ordine di Sua Maestà.

Berlino, Haude e Spener, 1756. 53 p. 17½ cm.

Three acts. German title page, "Der kapell-meister," and text face Italian. Schatz enters this under "Orazio," by Pergolesi and Latilla, but I fail to see the reason, since both texts, while having a few scenes and arias in common, differ widely, and much more than was customary, even in cases of replicas. For instance, the differences begin in the very first scene, when, instead of the aria, "Ha un gusto da morire," the Potsdam version has "Quanto comanda, si ubbidirò." Scene 2, "Costei troppo è vezzosa," has grown from half a page without aria to three with aria, "Finche suona il ritornello." Scenes 4 to 7 in "Orazio" are not in the Potsdam ed., so that I, 8, "Mi par mill'anni," has become I, 4, and then the two texts part company after a few lines, etc., etc. The composer, resp. author, responsible for this three-act version of Pergolesi's two-act "Il maestro di musica," if it may be called such, is not known. SCHATZ 5468

— Le maître de musique, comédie en deux actes, mêlée d'ariettes. Parodié de l'italien. Représentée pour la première fois par les Comédiens italiens ordinaires du roi le 28 may 1758 [1]. Avec les changemens qui ont été faits depuis peu par l'auteur dans le second acte.

Bruxelles, J. J. Boucherie, 1758. 36 p. 21 cm.

Two acts. Neither Baurans, the author, is mentioned, nor Pergolesi. Cast. The arias in the libretto are as follows:

(1) Ah quel martire (I, 1=Oh che sproposito in "Il maestro di musica"); (2) Un pilote battu de l'orage (I, 1 not traced by Wotquenue); (3) Quel délice ne trouve point (I, 1=A un gusto da stordire in M. di M.); (4) Suis-je bien pour une actrice (I, 3=Vi stò bene? Vi comparisco? in Pergolesi's Tracollo); (5) Oui, nos chanteuses (I, 3=Le virtuose in M. di M.); (6) Je veux tout bas (I, 3=Vuò dir lo basso in M. di M.); (7) La pudeur qui me guide (I, 5=Io sono una donzella, in Sellitti's "Cinese rimpatriato"); (8) Si d'une ame propice (I, 5=Bella mia, se son tuo sposo, in M. di M.); (9) Le feu me monte au visage (I, 6=Come chi giuocha alle palle in M. di M.); (10) Oh la puissante querelle (II, 1 not traced by Wotquenue); (11) Le badinage, l'humeur volage (II, 1 not traced by Wotquenue); (12) Que c'est un plaisir extrême (II, 1 not traced by Wotquenue); (13) Non, je suis trop en colère (II, 2=Quando sciolto avrò il contratto in M. di M.); (14) Désormais, Je sçaurai mieux (II, 2 not traced by Wotquenue); (15) Qu'espère un amant (II, 2 not traced by Wotquenue); (16) Ingrat, je romps ma chaîne (II, 2 not traced by Wotquenue); (17) Ah! mon coeur soupire (II, 3 not traced by Wotquenue); (18) Grace, sois plus traitable (II, 4=Ad un povero Tracollo, in Pergolesi's Tracollo); (19) Que mille plaisirs. (Not traced by Wotquenue).

Of these nineteen arias, nos. 1-9, 13, 16, 18 are in the score, as printed by Baillieux, resp. De la Chevardiere, and nos. 10-12, 14, 15, 17, 19 are not. It should also be noted that "A telle qui t'entage," the last aria in the score, is not in the revised libretto. In other words, the aria belonged, as did the entire printed score, to the first version of Bauran's parody, and does not embody any of the alterations in the second act, which, as a footnote (on p. 20) informs us, had been found to be "trop sérieux & trop uniforme."

The Brussels 1758 ed. establishes still another important fact. The Conservatory at Brussels possesses, besides the printed score, one (no. 2028) that is in manuscript, with "sept morceaux de plus que le n° précédent, tous au second act." Beyond this remark, Wotquenne ventured no conjectures. It turns out, from comparison, that six of these nos. in the manuscript score are identical with nos. 10-12, 14, 15, 17 in the libretto of the revised version, and only one aria ("Mais il faut enfin prendre un parti") does not appear therein. This manuscript score therefore represents the revised version of the opera, and Brussels possesses, therefore, the score of both versions.

The first version was first performed at Paris May 28, 1755; the second version on March 7, 1757; and at Bruxelles, Théâtre de la Monnaie in 1757. ML 50.2.M3P3

— Le maître de musique, comédie, mêlée d'ariettes, parodiées de l'italien par Baurans.

Paris, Au bureau de la petite bibliothèque des théâtres, 1784. 1 p. l., iv, 50 p., 15 p. (music) 13^{cm}.

Two acts. Argument, date of first performance as May 28, 1755 (Paris, Comédie italienne), and "Jugemens et anecdotes sur le Maître de musique" which read, in part:

"Cette pièce n'est encore qu'une parodie d'un intermède italien, en deux actes, donné à l'Opéra, sous ce titre: Il maestro di musica, le 3 octobre 1752. Le public accueillit très-bien, à la Comédie italienne, cette seconde traduction de Baurans, et lui sut gré d'avoir puisé deux fois dans la même source, pour lui procurer de nouveaux plaisirs, inconnus jusqu'alors en France. Le maître de musique n'eût cependant, pas le même succès qu'avoit eu la Servante maîtresse . . .

"Le sujet du Maître de musique a été traité en ballet-pantomime, par Sabadini . . . Ce ballet, composé sur la musique italienne, fut donné, après la seconde représentation de la Servante maîtresse, le 17 août 1754, et il réussit beaucoup."

The text is followed by these "Airs du Maître de musique": "Quel délice, ne trouve point" (= "A un gusto da stordire," in "Il maestro di musica"), "La pudeur qui me guide" (= "Io sono una donzella" in Sellitti's "Cinese rimpatriato"), "Si d'une ame propice" (= "Bella mia, se son tuo sposo" in "Il maestro di musica"). The text is the same as in the Brussels (1758) edition, belonging, therefore, to the revised version of 1757. SCHATZ 5467

Cast. In the "Avertissement" Sedaine says that he wrote his libretto without ever having seen Houdart de la Mothe's piece of the same title (1731). At the end of the avertissement, these esthetic or dramaturgic remarks are of interest:

"Il faut quelque réflexion pour s'appercevoir des soin avec l'auteur du drame écarte les moyens de paroître aux dépens de son associé, comme il se replie, comme il s'efface, combien enfin il a fait de sacrifices pour n'être que le piédestal de la statue qu'il lui élève. Il est besoin, il est vrai, que le piédestal soit solide, & je n'ose m'en flatter . . . J'ai mis avec une sorte d'affectation le jeu du théâtre, & la pantomime qui occupe la scene pendant les ritournelles (toujours trop longues pour tout auditeur qui n'est pas musicien . . .")

On p. 53-56, the "Ariette, Jour heureux, douce espérance" (III, 8). SCHATZ 4167

The maid of the mill. A comic opera. As it is performed at the Theatre Royal in Covent Garden. The music compiled, and the words written by the author of Love in a village.

London, J. Newberry, R. Baldwin [etc.], 1765. 1 p. l., iv, vi, [2], 75, [1] p. 19^{cm}.

On last page, publishers' advertisement of tenth [!] ed. of "Love in a village."

Three acts. By Isaac Bickerstaffe. Cast, preface, with statement that the text is based on Richardson's "Pamela," and dedication, in which Bickerstaffe says:

"... How far the Comic Opera, under proper regulations, has a right to be acknowledged for a junior offspring of the Drama, and as such become candidate for a share of public encouragement, I shall not pretend to determine; but if it can be rendered an agreeable amusement, the English Theatre has never scrupled to adopt, what was capable of pleasing there; and though as a work of genius, it is by no means to be set in competition with good tragedies and comedies, it may, I apprehend, be permitted as an occasional relief to them, without bringing either our taste or understanding into question.

"I need not inform your Royal Highness, that in France, where the stage has been cultivated with more care, and success, than in any other country, this species of entertainment is receiving very great applause; nor is it thought any injury to Corneille, and Moliere, that the pieces of Anseaume and Favart, meet with success. It is true, among the French, comic operas have very often the advantage of being extremely well written, of which, On ne S'avise jamais de tout, Le Roy et le Fermier, and some others are an instance; nor would the best composition of the greatest master, make a very contemptible poem pass on an audience: I wish I could assert with truth, that in this respect, we fall nothing behind our neighbours, and that what I here present to your Royal Highness, might lay claim to some degree of merit, even in the writing; but though I cannot do this, permit me to say, I have attempted to render it a little interesting, and not wholly undiverting, as far as the music, my principal care, would give me leave . . ."

Neither Samuel Arnold, who assisted Bickenstaffe in the selection and arrangement of the music, is mentioned, nor any other composer on whose works they drew for this pasticcio. "The table of the songs" in Preston and Son's vocal score mentions besides Arnold the following composers: Earl of Kelly (Overture), Abos, Bach, Ciampi, Cocchi, Duni, Galuppi, Giardini, Hasse, Jommelli, Laschi, Monsigny, Pergolesi, Philidor, Piccinni, Rinaldo di Capua, Scarlatti, Vinci and "the late elector of Saxony."

First performed, January 31, 1765, as indicated.

— La lavandara. Dramma giocoso per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro di S. A. Serenissima il Signor principe di Carignano l'autunno dell' anno MDCCLXX.

Torino, Onorato Derossi, n. d. 50, [2] p. 16^{cm}.

Three acts. Cast. Neither the author, Pietro Chiari, nor the composer, Galuppi, is mentioned. The dialogue follows that of "Il marchese villano" closely, but many arias are different. For instance, "Il marchese villano" has (I, 4), in the Vienna version, "Nina cara, Nina bella," whereas "La lavandara" has "Chi v' a prender la consorte."
SCHATZ 3515

— La lavandara astuta. Dramma giocoso da rappresentarsi in musica nel Regio-Ducal Teatro Nuovo di Mantova l'autunno dell' anno 1771. In occasione del felicissimo passaggio di Sua Altezza Reale il serenissimo Ferdinando Carlo arciduca d' Austria . . .

Mantova, Alberto Pazzoni, n. d. 56 p. 20^{cm}.

Two acts. By Pietro Chiari, who is not mentioned. Cast, scenario, and name of Galuppi as composer. A condensation of "Il marchese villano," the third act having been practically suppressed. The two versions show also noticeable differences in the lyrical parts, and "La lavandara astuta" begins "Benedetta primavera."

Venezia, Giambattista Casali, 1771. 60 p. 15½^{cm}.

Three acts. By Pietro Chiari, who is not mentioned. Impresario's dedication, cast, scenario, and name of Galuppi as composer. Another version of "Il marchese villano." It begins, like "La lavandara astuta," with "Benedetta primavera." The fourth scene of act first opens, like the Vienna version of "Il marchese villano," with "Nina cara, Nina bella," but ends with "Sai che abbiamo un marchesato," instead of "Guardami in volto, e poi."

M. Curzio. Dramma per musica nella solenne celebrazione de' Comizj della serenissima Repubblica di Lucca l'anno MDCCXCI.

Lucca, Francesco Bonsignori, n. d. lxii p. 20½ cm.

On p. lxi–lxii substitute arias “Al zelo, che m'accende” and “Alme amanti, a voi ritorno.” Argument. Divided into “Giornata” I–III, each having two parts. Not recorded by Nericì, who, however, mentions Pasquale Antonio Soffi, Antonio Puccini, and Marco Santucci as composers on p. 335 of his “Storia della musica in Lucca” (1879).

Since 1431 the election of the city government was accompanied in Lucca by the national festivities of the “Comizj,” popularly known as “le feste delle Tasche,” in December, first biennial, then tri-ennial, and since 1750 every thirty months. The festivities lasted three days and took place at the government palazzo.

According to Nericì, the first definite news of the vocal and instrumental music used at the “feste delle Tasche” date from the year 1636, when Valerio Guami would seem to have been the composer of at least part of the music. With the fall of the republic of Lucca in 1799, the “feste delle tasche” died a natural death.

In the case of this “M. Curzio” there would seem to be little room for doubt that it was a bona-fide opera, yet the L. of C. possesses quite a few “Tasche” libretti of a similar character but which are designated as “concerto in musica,” “applausi musicali,” etc. They would lead to the impression that the works were not performed as operas with scenery and action, but as dramatic cantatas, with scenery perhaps, but without action, even though occasionally called “Dramma per musica” or “Componimento drammatico.” A characteristic feature of these works was that practically without exception, text and music were the productions of native authors and composers. As a rule, each “giornata” was allotted to different authors and composers, if the subjects for each day were different and to different composers, even if the text of the whole formed a trilogy by one author.

The librettos were practically always printed without names of authors, composers and performers. Since these rare and curious texts sometimes figure as operas in reference books and since Nericì does not make it at all clear whether these festival works were operas or dramatic cantatas—my impression being that they were of the latter kind—it is perhaps best to give here a brief list of those in the L. of C. (those so far found all in ML 54.2.L9, chronologically arranged). The set is not quite complete, but it contains some texts unknown to Nericì.

- 1645 I–III Applausi musicali. Neither author nor composers known to me. Different in subject from Francesco Sbarra's text “Gli ossequi della fortuna” mentioned by Nericì under 1645.
- 1651 II La visione, poesia per musica. Text by Silvestro Torcigliani. Composer not mentioned by Nericì.

The text of "The Dragoness" is noticeably different from that of Margery. For instance, the airs "The tongue is a dangerous weapon" and "No place shall conceal 'em" are not in II, 2, of "Margery," where instead we have "Wretched is a wife's condition." Also the dialogue of I, 3 was shortened and the air I, 2 "The swain I adore" is now preceded by "Enter shepherd" with dialogue and air "Hark! I hear the midnight owl," etc., etc.

The play was first presented in honor of duc de Richelieu by Mme. de Mauconseil at Bagatelle, which explains Favart's dedication to her ("C'est par vos ordres que j'ai composé ce petit opéra-comique"). The dedication is preceded by an Avertissement, in which the author insists that he is under no contract to write exclusively for the Comédie italienne, and says:

"Cette petite piece n'a été composée que pour une fête particulière que l'on présenteroit pour le retour de M. le maréchal de Richelieu. Mais l'accueil favorable que le public a fait à tous les ouvrages qui ont paru sur la prise de Mahon, a donné lieu de penser qu'il auroit la même indulgence pour cette bagatelle.

"Quelques critiques ont trouvé que l'on ne menageoit pas assez les Anglois, que nous ne devons point rendre injure pour injure, ni imiter l'indécence des spectacles de Londres à notre égard; ce sentiment fait honneur à notre nation; mais une délicatesse trop scrupuleuse auroit empêché de faire parler les personnages selon leur caractère . . ."

Under no. 2372 of the Brussels Conservatory catalogue Mr. Wotquenne lists the score of "Serpilla e Baiocco o vero Il marito giogatore e la moglie bacchettona, intermezzi comici musicali da rappresentarsi in Bruselle nell' opera di Lucio Papirio il 1728 dalla Sig. Rosa Ungarelli di Bologna e dal Sig. Antonio Ristorini di Firenze." Mr. Wotquenne adds that this is not really the title of this score, of which the L. of C. has a transcript with title "Il Giocatore," but that it is a "titre copié d'après le livret." He means the libretto published at Brussels for the performances (first: November 4) 1728 of "Lucio Papirio," music by Orlandini [!] and of the intermezzi under discussion. The text of the Brussels libretto, I know from a private communication to me by Mr. Wotquenne, is the same as in the original Venice libretto of 1719 "Il marito giogatore e la moglie bacchettona." This means that it does not contain in the second intermezzo the aria, etc. "Con tanto stranutare," which is the distinguishing feature of the Brussels score no. 2372, the text of which is otherwise the same as in the librettos mentioned. As Georgy Calmus pointed out, a manuscript note (not in our transcript of the Brussels score) says that this aria, etc., was taken from "Il vecchio pazzo in amore." The statement is correct, since the aria (and part of the connecting dialogue) appears in the libretto of this title (See Schatz 11376) in the first of the three intermezzi first performed with "La cadu'a di Leone Imperator d'Oriente" (music by Paganelli) at Venice, Teatro Giustiniano di S. Moisè, carnival 1731. Neither author or composer are mentioned in the libretto and both are unknown to Schatz.

Possibly this was not the first performance of "Il vecchio pazzo in amore," but until an earlier performance is discovered, this Venice performance of 1731 must be considered the first known. Therewith the date of the anonymous Brussels score with the interpolated aria from "Il vecchio pazzo in amore" is approximately fixed as not earlier than 1731. It follows that the anonymous score was not used at Brussels in 1728, though Mr. Wotquenne has given it the title of the Brussels, 1728 libretto, the text of which does not contain the interpolated aria "Con tanto stranutare" but coincides fully with the original Venice, 1719 libretto.

Below, there is listed under "The gamester," London, 1736, another edition of the text which coincides fully with the original text. This London version of "Il marito giogatore" is positively attributed in the libretto to Orlandini. It would follow, it seems to me, that we do not have the right to attribute any score exclusively to Orlandini, the text of which does not coincide fully with the text of the London libretto. Scores like the Brussels score with its interpolated matter, therefore, represent, if at all, Orlandini's setting, not in its original form, but in a later, adulterated form. This means that as yet Orlandini's score in its original form has not come to light again and that no historical arguments can be based on interpolations for which he was not responsible!

In his catalogue of "Handschriften nebst den älteren Druckwerken der Musik-Abtheilung der Herzogl. Bibliothek zu Wolfenbüttel," 1890, Emil Vogel has, under no. 257, this entry:

"Erste Hälfte des 18. Jahrh. VINCI, Leonardo. Intermezzo: Bacocco e Serpillo [!] . . . Partitur. Der Componist dieses Intermezzo war bisher nicht bekannt . . ." and under no. 258 another copy with title "Serpilla e Bacocco" and remark "Partitur, dieselbe wie No. 257, doch mit veränderter Schlüsselvorzeichnung in den Singstimmen."

Our transcript of one of these scores includes a note—presumably in Vogel's hand: "Die hier vorliegende Partitur ist—wenn nicht überhaupt die einrige erhaltene—sicher die einzige, welche den Namen des Componisten angeht."

The text of this score, too, coincides fully with the text of the original "Il marito giogatore" libretto, Venice, 1719. For this reason and because these scores bear the name of Vinci one might feel inclined to conclude that the intermezzos were originally composed by Vinci. This conclusion would be hasty, first, because the Wolfenbüttel scores bear, not the original title, but two later titles of the work; secondly, because the text of the original libretto as stated above, coincides also fully with the text of the London (1736) libretto "The gamester" (Il giogatore) described below, and the title page of this explicitly calls Orlandini the composer. Under the circumstances we must assume, until proof to the contrary is adduced, that at London a setting by Orlandini was actually used. Consequently we must further assume that both Vinci and Orlandini composed the same (original and unadulterated) text at a very early date, but we can not as yet definitely attribute the earliest setting, that for Venice, season of 1718–19, to either one or the other.

The commentary above and below in part supersedes the author's article on "Il giogatore" in the "Musical Antiquary," April 1913, p. 160–174 and also his remarks in controversy with Georgy Calmus in "Sammelbände der I. M. G. 1912/13, y. 14, p. 170–173. I wish to add here that in my opinion it is dangerous to deduct the comparative age of fairly contemporary scores from a fuller or thinner orchestration of such copies as have been preserved but are not the autograph scores of the composers. Many of the scores of that period have come down to us not in their original form, but with the "Partitur-Bild" simplified for purposes similar to those for which later on "Klavirauszüge," Vocal scores, "Partitions, chant et piano," etc., became the customary substitutes. How dangerous such arguments of appearance or even style are, if in this given case the priority of Vinci is to be deducted from a comparison of the appearance of his scores with "Giogatore" scores attributed to Orlandini, may be illustrated by the fact that of the two composers Orlandini is the earlier and that his first known opera antedates by several years the first known opera by Vinci!

One act. A note on p. 185 says:

"Cette petite parodie de l'Opera du Joueur faisoit cidevant la scene xviii de la Comédie des Debuts, jouée avec les Paysans de qualité."

The characters were (as in all the "Il giogatore" librettos) Bacocco and Serpilla, and much of the text was in Italian, even text sung to the French airs. (They are printed at end of the volume, in the "Table des airs," 92 p., of which p. 49–72 are wanting. To this intermezzo was added, as an afterpiece, on August 17, 1729, "Don Micco e Lesbina. Intermede.") As comparison proves, some, but not many, of the Italian lines are the same, or nearly the same, as in the Venice (1719) edition of "Il marito giogatore." It is therefore quite possible that where French airs are not indicated in the text the parodists used corresponding music in "Il marito giogatore," performed at Paris, Académie royale de musique, June 7, 1729, by Rosa Ongarelli (Ungarelli) and Antonio Maria Ristorini. However, the abundance of French airs, including those to Italian text, that imitate text in "Il marito giogatore" excludes the possibility that much of the original music was used for the parody. Indeed, even the possibility of the use of some of it becomes doubtful, in view of the report in the "Mercure du mois de Juillet 1729" (quoted by Parfaict):

"Toute la musique qu' on trouve très convenable, est de la composition du Sieur Mouret . . ."

— Il giogatore. Intermezzo per musica. In tre atti. Da rappresentarsi in Parigi, n'ell Theatro, Opera, il 1752.—Le joueur. Intermede en musique en trois actes. Représenté [!] à Paris, sur le Théâtre de l'Opéra en 1752.

Paris, la veuve Delormel & fils, 1752. 27, [1] p. 16½^{cm}.

On last page, the Approbation, dated Versailles, August 20, 1752. Cast. (Serpilla: Anna Tonelli; Baccocco: Pietro Manelli.) French prose text faces Italian. The arias are not distinguished typographically from the recitatives in this libretto, and I can not guarantee that the following outlines of the text (arias in italics) are complete:

(Atto I) Si, si maledetta.
Ah sei qui bona lana?
(?) Si ravniva nel mio core.
La buona moglie Fa' buono il marito.
Serpilla diletta (duet).

(Atto II) Serpilla indiatvolata.
Oh che risa, oh che piacere.
(?) Di potermi vendicar.
Speri fors' anche un di.
Uh! che alcun non c'ascolti.
Quest' è quel uomo (duet).

(Atto III) Jo son fuor di me stesso.
A questa pellegrina.
La vergogna, il rispetto.
(?) Ecco disciolti i lacci.
Ahi finito.

This text differs strikingly from the original "Il marito giogatore" text. True, "Si, si maledetta," the first aria, and the duet, "Serpilla diletta," are the same in both texts. Also, the second intermezzo in both begins with "Serpilla indaviolata," and ends with the duet, "Questo è quell' uomo." Furthermore, the aria, "A questa pellegrina," is in the third intermezzo in both texts, but the aria, "Un consorte sciagurato," is not in the first intermezzo of the Paris (1752) ed., nor "Signor giudice giustizia" in the second, nor the final duet, "Io già sento," in the third. The dialogue, while for lines at a time is the same in both, very much more often is not the same; and Baccocco's monologue, at the beginning of the third intermezzo ("Io son fuor di me stesso"), is only in the Paris (1752) edition. If the text in the latter (which unquestionably is Salvi's "Il marito giogatore," though considerably altered) was actually used in the performances of 1752 at Paris, then the entry in Clément et de Laporte's "Anecdotes dramatiques," Paris, 1775 (Supplement):

"JOUEUR, (le) Opéra bouffon italien, dont la musique est d'Orlandini, jouée à l'Opéra en 1752" [first on Tuesday, August 22, not on August 12, preceding Campra's Aréthuse] needs to be modified, because it would have been impossible to use Orlandini's score without quite a few interpolations and alterations.

As a matter of fact, the Paris version used was a pasticcio. According to the Mercur, quoted by De La Laurencie (S. I. M. 1912, no. 6, p. 27):

"La musique de cet intermède, tel qu'il a été joué, est de différents auteurs," and the Mercur attributes the recitatives, the duets in the first two acts ("Serpilla diletta" and "Quest' è quel' uomo"), and the arias, "Si, si maledetta" and "A questa pellegrina," specifically to Orlandini. Contant d'Orville (I, 10, not 11) mentions Pergolesi as one of the composers of this pasticcio, and since the text of the final duet in the printed Paris (1752) libretto, "Contento tu sarai," is indeed from his "La serva padrona," there is no reason for disputing the accuracy of Contant d'Orville's remark. We know, however, from the Mercur that this duet was replaced at the third performance by another piece (the duet, "Pace con un laccio," of the Doletti score?). At least one more composer figured in the pasticcio, namely, Giuseppe Maria Buini, since De La Laurencie has traced the "Oh che risa" in the second act to him. He adds Pietro Auletta, but without any proof whatsoever of his identity with Doletti. (See below.)

If at the third performance "Contento tu sarai" was dropped, "Signor giudice" added to the second act, and if, as reported, other changes took place, then the text in the Paris (1752) ed. can not have been used as printed. These doubts become stronger still in view of the score of:

"LES ARIETTES DU JOUEUR, opera bouffon italien. Del Sgr Doletti. Représenté à l'Opéra de Paris en 1752" Paris, M^o Boivin, Mr. Le Clerc, M^o Castagnarie. (Undated! 1 p. l., 32 p., fol.) Below the privilege: "Gravé d'après la partition de l'auteur."

The text of the eight arias and duets in this score is identical with that of the 1719 libretto, except that of the two last numbers, "Pace con un laccio" and "Spera fors' anch' un di." These are not in the "Il marito giogatore" libretto. On the other hand, the last aria in the 1719 libretto, "Io già sento," is not in the Doletti score. At any rate, with exception of two out of eight numbers, the text of all is identical with the texts as found in the Wolfenbüttel Vinci scores and in the London Orlandini libretto and the Venice (1719) libretto. But the title page not only attributes the opera to one Doletti (of whom absolutely nothing else seems to be known to Fétis, Wotquenne, Eitner), but says that the Paris score was engraved after his (the author's, i. e. composer's) score! Here, then, is a new puzzle! Now, it is a singular fact that of those two arias one, "Spera (speri) fors' anch' un di," appears in the Paris (1752) "Il giogatore" libretto. In view of this fact, and in view of the other fact, already mentioned, that with the third performance of "Il giogatore" Pergolesi's "Contento tu sarai" was replaced by another duet, the conjecture may be ventured that (the otherwise unknown) Doletti composed these two arias, and that in some manner the whole score came to be attributed to him.

We know, however, that of the other six arias (act I) "Si, si, maledetta," "Un consorte sciagurato," "Serpilla diletta" [duet]; (act II) "Signor giudice," "Quest' è quel' uomo [duet]; (act III) "A questa pellegrina," the music of five is the same as in the Wolfenbüttel scores bearing Vinci's name and in the Brussels "Giogatore" score no. 2372, barring transposition of key, etc. The aria "Si, si, maledetta," in the Doletti score is the same as in the Brussels score, but it is different from that in the Vinci score. Consequently as early as 1731 (see above) a setting of "Si, si, maledetta" existed which was not by Vinci. This aria is one of those expressly attributed by the Mercur to Orlandini. Since the recitatives in the Vinci scores are nearly all different from those in the Brussels score (the Doletti score has no recitatives), again some composer other than Vinci must have composed these recita-tives of the Brussels score. This conclusion recalls to our mind the fact that the Mercur expressly attributed the recitatives as used at Paris (1752) to Orlandini. Therefore, if the Mercur was wholly mistaken in assigning the arias identical in the Vinci scores and the Brussels and the Doletti score (duets "Serpilla diletta" and "Quest'è quel' uomo" and the aria "A questa pellegrina," i. e., as sung at Paris, 1752) to Orlandini, and if Leonardo Vinci, instead of Orlandini, should have to be considered their composer, the pasticcio character of the Paris (1752) "Giocatore" would have grown still more pronounced. If De La Laurencie adds to the composers so far traced Pietro Auletta, on the theory of his identity with Doletti, this identity is merely an assumption, and has not been supported by any evidence.

— Baiocco et Serpilla, parodie du Joueur, intermede en trois actes. Représentée pour la premiere fois par les Comédiens italiens ordinaires du roi, le jeudi 6 mars 1753.

Paris, la veuve Duchesne, 1771. 38 p. 17^{cm}.

Cast and note:

"Cet intermede est une traduction littérale de Baiocco e Serpilla ò del Giocatore, opéra bouffon, mis en musique par Mr. [Carlo] Sodi, & représenté ci-devant à la Comédie italienne."

On p. 3-5 the airs of "Ah! ah! ma cassette" (I, 1); p. 6, "On n'a jamais vu de femme" (I, 2); p. 11, duo "Je ne puis plus durer" (I, 2); p. 14-16, "Ma femme fait la diablesse" (II, 1); p. 17-20, "C'est un traître, un vaurien" (II, 2); p. 24-27, "Ah! perfide, barbare!" (III, 1); p. 28-32, "Ingrate, tu me fuis en vaine" (III, 2); p. 33-38, the duo "Mon bonheur est extrême" (III, 2).

This parody, though originally based on that of 1729, no longer has anything in common with it. Parfait narrates under Sodi the origin of the new parody thus:

"La nouvelle musique de la parodie du Joueur, intermede italien qui a été représentée deux fois à la cour avec beaucoup de succès. Les anciens vaudevilles ayant déplu à la dernière reprise de cette parodie, les Comédiens Italiens prirent le parti de charger le Sieur Sodi de composer de nouvelle musique sur les mêmes paroles, & le mélange d'italien & de françois ayant encore déplu dans les paroles, ils supprimèrent tout l'italien, & y substituèrent des paroles françaises de la composition de M. Favart qui fut obligé de parodier la musique du Sieur Sodi."

(Substantially the same remarks are to be found in the pref. to "Theatre de M. Favart," Paris, 1763-77, t. I, p. xviii.) Sodi's score as published (in L. of C.) agrees with the libretto.

"You remember that it was originally written and presented to you in the winter of 1785, as an after-piece, acknowledged to be suggested from a little French drama of one act, without songs (intituled, L'heureuse erreur), and that in borrowing the idea I totally altered and augmented the dialogue, incidents, and situation of that plot, and for the first time, attempted the introduction of a Yankee character on the European stage . . . you earnestly recommended and urged me instead of confining it to an after musical piece, to extend the design to a compleat comic opera, by the assistance of new characters and an underplot . . .

"In the course of the week, I again presented you, and read the opera in its present state, with the additional episode, characters and songs . . . It was then . . . transmitted to Mr. [Charles] Dibdin in London, who embellished it with his harmony: thus with the ornament of new scenery and dresses, and the then musical strength of your company, you, in the spring of 1786, gave it a fair trial before an Irish audience . . ."

The Yankee character introduced is that of Jonathen, who, in the course of the play, sings a "Song (air, Yankee tune [which is not mentioned]): 'He found me in a country now famous in story,'" and "Song (tune, Yankee doodle): 'For when I dwelt in Boston bay / I liv'd in peace and plenty.'" May-day: or, The little gipsy. A musical farce of one act. To which is added The theatrical candidates. A musical prelude. As they are both performed at the Theatre-Royal, in Drury-Lane.

London, T. Becket, 1775. 4 p. l., 40 p. 18½^{cm}.

One act each. Casts. "The theatrical candidates" on p. [31]–40. Both pieces by David Garrick, who is not mentioned. He says of "May-day," in a prefatory note, that "it was merely intended to introduce the Little Gipsy [Miss Abrams] to the public, whose youth and total inexperience of the stage, made it necessary to give as little dialogue to her character as possible, her success depending wholly upon her singing . . ."

The half title of the other piece, on p. [31], reads: "Upon the opening and alterations of the theatre," Drury-Lane. [Sept. 23, 1775], where "May-Day" was first performed on August 28, 1775 (Cummings); October 28 (Schatz). "May Day" was composed by Thomas Augustine Arne, "The theatrical candidates" by William Bates, neither of whom is mentioned. LONGE 78

— Teseo in Atene. Drama rappresentato in musica nel novissimo Teatro Ducale di Parma . . . Poesia di Aurelio Aureli.

Parma, Stamperia Ducale, 1688. 85 p. 16^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication by Giuseppe Calvi, argument, scenario, and Aureli's notice to the reader, in which he says:

"Fù questo drama con titolo di Medea in Atene rappresentato già 12 anni in Venetia [1675] . . . E se ben variato di titolo, non cangia però la sua essenza primiera, benché con aggiungervi il novo personaggio della Vecchia l'abbia arricchito d'alquante nove ariette poste mirabilmente in musica dalla virtù del Sig. D. Bernardo Sabadini . . . Vieni ad ascoltar il drama se brami d'udire una delle più armoniose, e bizarre musiche, ch'abbia giamai composta il Sig. Gio. Antonio Gianettini [Zannettini] . . ."

This version of "Medea in Atene" does not begin with the prologue of 1678, or even with the first scene in that edition. It begins with "Vincesti amico, e di tua spada," which is not in the 1678 version, and the first scene in this, "E svanita dal mio core," is now the third scene. There are many other minor differences of a similar nature between the two texts.

Il Medoro d’Andrea Salvadori. Rappresentato in musica nel palazzo del Serenissimo G. Duca di Toscana in Fiorenza. Per la elezione all’ imperio della Sacra Cesarea Maestà dell’ imperatore Ferdinando Secondo . . .

Fiorenza, Pietro Cecconcelli, 1623. 4 p. l., 46 p. 19½^{cm}.

Three acts. Introductory poem, argument, and dedication to Ferdinando Gonzaga, duke of Mantova, of date Florence, January 1, 1623, in which Salvadori says:

“Il Medoro (Serenissimo Signore) ricordevole dell’ onore al quale l’aveva destinato V. A. all’ ora che nel felicissimo maritaggio della Sacra Cesarea Maestà dell’ imperatrice Sua sorella, ella lo volse far degno d’esser rappresentato in Mantova; poiche per la subita partita di quella Maestà in Germania, egli non potè conseguire così segnalata grazia, si contentava più tosto di starsi celato appresso il suo autore, che comparire in luce con minor ventura. Ora sentendo io, che essendo stata trascritta una parte di esso, e divulgata in vari luoghi, correva non solamente rischio di esser rappresentato, ma dato ancora alle stampe molto diverso da quello, che era appresso di mè, hò giudicato ben fatto, che egli con publica comparsa, qualunque egli si sia, venga à rassegnarsi à V. A. per Suo. Ella lo vedrà molto vario da quello, che la prima volta fu veduto in scena, e se potrà parer povero ne miei versi, la veste della musica, onde l’ha nuovamente arricchito il Sig. Marco da Gagliano, lo renderà appresso di Lei, e riguardevole, e grato . . .”

From this dedication it becomes evident, as Solerti correctly remarks, that the performance of 1622 at Mantova, recorded by Vogel, did not take place. Vogel (see his biography of Marco da Gagliano) did not know this edition of the libretto and based his remarks on letters written by Marco da Gagliano to the duchess of Mantova January 31 and February 7, 1622, to the effect that he was sending her the desired transcript of his score. Before Vogel discovered these letters, it was not known that Marco da Gagliano was the composer of “Il Medoro,” first performed 1619 for the festivities mentioned in the title of the opera and alluded to in the dedication and more specifically, as Solerti has found from contemporary documents, on September

25, 1619. (An undated libretto for these performances exists, but it does not mention any composer.) From this document may be gleaned another fact not known to Vogel, Wotquenne, Schatz, etc., namely, that Jacopo Peri composed part of the original music. To quote the passus in Tinghi's "Diario," as excerpted by Solerti in his "Musica, ballo e drammatica alla Corte Medicea dal 1600 al 1637":

"Et adì 25 detto [settembre] S. A. . . . avendo alli passati giorni l'allegrezza della creazione del nuovo imperatore, et per ciò ordinò si facesse una festa per recitarsi in guisa di comedia cantata in musica, et sendo detta opera all' ordine et ordinato in detto di si recitasse nel palazzo de' Pitti nella sala grande de' forestieri, dove era fatto una prospettiva in forma di selve et boschi con finte finte [sic], la quale opera era nominata Lo spozalizio di Medoro et Angelica, recitata et cantata tutta in musica; fatta l'opera da Andrea Salvadori, poeta, et la musica fatta parte da Messer Marco da Gagliano, maestro di cappella, et da Jacopo Peri, et vi cantò molte donne et castrati et tutti i musici di S. A. in diversi abiti . . ."

Which parts were composed by Peri, and which by Marco da Gagliano is not known, since no score appears to be extant, or, at any rate, the score has not yet been found. Apparently Peri's share was not large and, so to say, not worth mentioning later on, even if Marco da Gagliano retained it in 1622. From Marco da Gagliano's letters to the duchess of Mantova we know at least that, at the suggestion of Salvadori, he changed the choruses in order not to make the opera "troppo grave" for the contemplated revival at Mantova.

Detached copy. Prologue and five acts. In his "avertissement," Antoine François Jolly enumerates the sometimes radical changes made by him in his text since the performances of the piece. For instance, he says:

"Pour établir donc les caracteres des principaux personnages, & leurs differents interêts, & sur tout ceux de Plexippe, qui n'étoient point assez marquez, & qui est le personnage le plus essentiel de la piece puis qu'il en fait le noeud & le dénouement; j'ay fait un premier acte avec un nouveau divertissement.

"Du premier acte j'en ay composé le second . . . Le troisième acte est entièrement changé au divertissement près qui est le même . . . Dans le quatrième acte les deux premières scenes sont changées . . . A l'égard du cinquième acte, la première scene est beaucoup plus étenduë . . ."

He concludes by saying:

"Cet ouvrage que j'ose appeller nouveau, puisqu'il n'a conservé que le texte & les vers."

Jean Batistin Stuck's score was printed before these radical alterations took place, and a comparison between the score and the revised libretto is very confusing.

Schatz attributes the libretto to Claudio Achillini, and the music to Giulio Caccini, but as Caccini died in December, 1618, and as this masque was first performed at the inauguration of the Teatro Farnese, December 21, 1628, Caccini's connection is more than doubtful. At any rate, Ehrichs does not mention this among Giulio Caccini's works. Certainly Schatz found nothing to support his claim of Caccini's connection with "Mercurio e Marte" in Ferrari's "Spettacoli . . . in Parma," and I fail to see that Ferrari's rather cursory remarks even oblige us to attribute the text to Achillini. Ferrari mentions neither author nor composer.

Midas; an English burletta. As it is performed, at the Theatre-Royal, in Covent-Garden.

London, G. Kearsly, W. Griffin, J. Coote, T. Lownds and W. Nicoll, 1764. 4 p. l., 66 p. 22^{cm}.

Ballad opera. Three acts. By Kane O'Hara, who is not mentioned. He is supposed to have selected and adapted the tunes used, as indicated in the headings of the Airs, but quite a few of the Airs were to be sung "To its own tune." These airs apparently composed for the occasion are: (Act I) "To happy ignorance," "Be by your friends advised," "Since you mean to hire"; (Act II) "Wondrous timber"; (Act III) "If in the courts your suit," "If a rival thy character draw" (headed Duetto and the name of Henry Carey's has been added in pencil as the composer), "Now I'm seated" and others. The tunes used included several French and Italian. The text is preceded by the cast, by the humorous "Prologue" as a plea for English drama and English music and by an editorial prefatory note which reads in part:

"The editor of the following piece thinks proper to observe, that the first idea of it was conceived, and the plan in some measure executed by a gentleman in Dublin, for the private entertainment of some persons of distinction in that kingdom, at a time, when Italian burlettas were blended with the exhibitions of the theatre, and almost triumphed over the best productions in our language. The public spirit of those, for whom it was originally intended, prevailed upon the author to enlarge his design. Accordingly, Midas adventured on the stage, and met with uncommon success for a series of nights . . . The public, with their usual candour, will consider the particular scope of this piece, and will decide nothing till they have heard the musick, to which it is adapted."

One act and epilogue. Ballad opera, in which airs v ("O cursed power of gold"), vii ("Thus, lovely patient"), and viii ("If you hope by your skill") were "set by Mr. Seedo." Cast, dedication, and preface, in which Henry Fielding (not mentioned) says:

"Le Medecin malgré lui of Molière hath been always esteemed in France the best of that author's humorous pieces . . . The English theatre owes this farce to an accident not unlike that which gave it to the French. And I wish I had been as able to preserve the spirit of Molière, as I have, in translating it, fallen short even of that very little time he allowed himself in writing it . . .

"One pleasure I enjoy from the success of this piece, is a prospect of transplanting successfully some others of Molière of great value. How I have done this, any English reader may be satisfy'd by examining an exact literal translation of the Medecin malgré lui, which is the second in the second volume of Select comedies of Moliere, just published by John Watts."

The preface is followed by cast and table of the nine songs.

First performed at Drury-Lane, September 8, 1732.

Napole, A spese de li impressarie, 1731. 60 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts. Author not mentioned and unknown to Schatz. Impresario's dedication, argument, cast, and note to the effect that the music is by Leonardo Vinci, except all the recitatives and certain indicated arias, which were by Giuseppe Sellitti. These arias are "Quanta furie scatenate" (I, 10), "Non serve pchiu a pensare" (II, 13), "E'no scoglio chisto core" (III, 10). At the end of the libretto is this note: "Nell' atto primo Sc. xii noagno de l'area 'Frà le sciure,' etc. se pò dicere la seguente aria posta mmuseca da lo Sio Àngelo Antonio Trojano, 'Se chisto affritto core' . . . Pulli che ritrovi in qualche margine, è il Sig. Pietro Pulli famosissimo sonatore di arceliuti e contrapontisto."

This remark applies to the arias "Povera pecorella" (I, 6), "So n'astritto rescgnuolo" (I, 17), "Chi cade dint' all' acqua" (II, 2), "Non si stracquo turco cano" (II, 15), "Me conzola no penzièro" (III, 2), "Che d'è chesto? che m'e dato?" (III, 4). Even therewith the pasticcio character of the opera is not exhausted because the aria "E n'ancunia sto core" has in margin Leonardo Leo's name. SCHATZ 10755

Three acts and introduction. The p. l. contain half-title, publisher's list, with date Nov. 12, 1729, title page, publisher's list, dated October 28, 1729, cast, and "introduction," in which the gentleman says:

"Sir, I was my self an eye-witness of it, being in France when this piece first appear'd on the stage and saw it represented several nights with a considerable share of pleasure, which put me upon rendering it into English. In this performance I have taken the liberty of turning the fables which were spoke in France, into ballads to be sung, and have heighten'd several of the scenes by the addition of other ballads, suitable to the present taste of the town. In short, I have made that an English opera, which was but a French farce."

By Ebenezer Forrest, after a farce by Fuzelier and Le Grand. The 42 airs are printed in the text, with their titles.

First performed, as indicated, December 3, 1729.

"Il dramma è del Sig. Giuseppe de [Joseph Felix von] Kurtz impresario, e posto in versi italiani dal Sig. Giovanni Bertati. La musica è del Sig. Antonio Tozzi . . ."

In his preface Kurtz says:

"Ecco qual sia il dramma, ch'io ho destinato di far rappresentare in questo nuovo teatro. Molto dire dovrei del dramma medesimo, il di cui genere forse potrà strano sembrare al pubblico, dopo che l'Italia si è dimenticata delle rappresentazioni, che facevansi ne' suoi teatri il secolo scorso. Solamente però io mi ristringerò a dire, che non cerco, e non pretendo con questa mia composizione d'introdurre un nuovo gusto sulle scene italiane; ma che a me si conveniva di appigliarmi ad una rappresentazione di questo tal genere, affine d'introdurvi que' spettacoli, e quelle decorazioni, ch'io aveva destinato di produrre in questa città; ed ecco per questo introdotte nuovamente sulle scene le Deità, e la molteplicità di personaggi."

Motezuma. A serious opera. To be performed at the King's Theatre in the Hay-Market. The music, entirely new, by Signor Sacchini. The translation by Bottarelli, jun. teacher of languages.

London, T. Cadell, 1775. iv, 53, [1] p. 19cm.

This title on p. [1]. It is preceded by the iv p. with the author, Giovan Gualberto Bottarelli's, dedication (dated February 1, 1775) to the duke of Dorset. The last unnumb. page contains "Proposals for printing by subscription several Odes of Horace, translated into Italian verse by G. G. Bottarelli and set to music by Messrs. Bach, Vento, Giordani, Boroni, Holtzbauer, Barthelemon, and others . . ."

The cast is preceded by G. G. Bottarelli's notice to the reader with a very brief argument, and reading in part:

"I do not see what objections can arise against Motezuma's dying on the opera-stage, breathing the language of harmony, when actors die on other stages in tragedy, speaking the language of the Muses."

Motezuma—Continued.

"I hope the British nation (I mean such as are inspired by Apollo, and whose genius's are happily composed to form the learned world) will take in good part these attempts of an honest man, who has laboured these seven and twenty years, both night and day, either to add new pleasures to the entertainment, or to give a new face and form to the old ones." Hamburg, Caspar Jakhel, n. d. Unpaged. 18½^{cm}.

Three acts and prologue. Argument, cast, scenario. The prologue has German text only; the three acts German (author unknown to Schatz) and Italian (by Paolo Antonio Rolli). Neither he is mentioned, nor any composer.

Chrysaender, when speaking of the first performance of the opera at London, Haymarket, April 15, 1721, in his Händel biography, proved that the single acts were composed by Filippo Mattei (called Pippo), Giovanni Battista Bononcini (who also composed the overture published by Walsh), and Georg Friedrich Händel, in the order named. The error of naming Attilio Ariosti (who was not in England at the time) as one of the collaborators instead of Mattei is due to Hawkins (V, 277) and Burney (IV, 258). Also Filippo Amadei has been mentioned as composer of the first act. That would not add to the controversy if the claim of Schatz is correct, that Filippo Amadei was merely the real name of Filippo Mattei.

First performed at Hamburg, January 7, 1723; at London, as above. SCHATZ 168

Nancy: or, The parting lovers. An interlude. Set to music by the author.

[245]-254, [2] p. 22^{cm}. (Henry Carey, Dramatick works, London, 1743.)

One act. Argument, in which Carey says that the subject of his interlude is based on an actual occurrence, and that from it:

"the author drew the following sketch, and form'd it into an interlude, a kind of entertainment formerly in great request, but now almost a stranger to the English stage. The Italians still preserve it under the name of Intermezzo, which is equal to the word Interlude. These little starts of fancy, not only afford a present diversion, and supply a vacancy on the stage, while other entertainments are getting ready; but, by encouragement and improvement, sometimes become entertainments themselves."

First performed at Drury Lane 1739; revived in 1755, as "The press gang, or Love in low life," "on the prospect of a war, and frequently brought forward on similar occasions under the title of True Blue" (Grove). ML 49.A2C2

Narbale. Dramma per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro Giustiniani di San Moisè nella fiera dell' Ascensione dell' anno 1774.

Venezia, Modesto Fenzo, 1774. 47 p. 17^{cm}.

Three acts. Argument, cast, scenario, and name of the composer, Ferdinando Giuseppe Bertoni, and of the author, Metastasio. The argument contains this ludicrous but characteristic remark:

"Questo atto eroico diede occasione al rinomatissimo Metastasio di formarne il dramma, che ha per titolo: L'Eroe cinese. Per le convenienze poi di questi cantanti, e le circostanze del teatro, che non poterono accomodarsi al vestito e scena Cinesi, si è pensato mutare e scena e nomi de' personaggi, e per conseguenza anche il titolo del dramma, conservandone tutta l'azione."

With the opera was performed (composer of the music not mentioned) Domenico Ricciardi's ballet, "Il ratto delle Sabine," description and cast of which on p. 20-22.

First performed, as indicated, May 25, 1774. SCHATZ 940

Il natal d'Ercole di Michelagnolo Buonarroti. Favola rappresentata al serenissimo Signor Don Alfonso da Este, principe di Modana, e all' eccellentissimo Signor Don Luigi suo fratello, nella venuta loro a Firenze. Da Madama serenissima di Toscana. Nel palazzo dell' Eccellentiss. Sig. D. Antonio Medici. [coat of arms]

Firenze, Giunti, 1605. 4 p. l., 51 p. 21^{cm}.

Prologue and five acts. Buonarroti's dedication is dated Florence, October 22, 1605. Since he speaks of "Questa mia favola del Natal d'Ercole, rappresentata a V. A. S. e all' eccellentiss. Sig. D. Luigi suo fratello, ben che al presente comparisca fuori spogliata de gli ornamenti dell' apparato, e per se poco adorna . . ." The performance would seem to have taken place before October 22, 1605, but a contemporary diary of court happenings, which Solerti quotes in "Musica . . . alla Corte Medicea dal 1600 al 1637" make it quite clear that October 22, 1605, was the date of first performance. The diary does not mention the composer. Nor is he mentioned in the libretto, nor by Solerti, Eitner, Vogel, Corazzini, yet Schatz attributes the music to Jacopo Peri. The words of "Il natal d'Ercole" do not appear with any of his published music.

In his "Vorrede," dated Leipzig, July 6, 1781, [Johann Gottfried] Dyk says:

"Die franzoesische und deutsche komische oper ist ein sonderbar ding. Zwar ist es etwas sehr gewoehnliches, zumal unter den Franzosen, liederchen bey spaziergaengen und mahlzeiten zu singen; aber im gespraech mit andern faellt man doch nie aus rede in gesang. Indess, die gattung ist einmal da und gewaehrt vergnuegen . . . Um aber das unnaturliche in der form so viel als moeglich zu mindern, sollte man die scene immer auf das land, oder in die fabelhaften und ritter zeiten legen; hier laesst sich der gesang noch am ehsten ohne gar zu grosse widersinnigkeit anbringen. Aus dem itzigen staedtischen leben entlehnte sujets, sollten wir Deutsche uns um so mehr enthalten mit gesaengen zu verbraemen, da wir unsern dialog in prosa schreiben und da unser gesang, eben weil er ungleich mehr gesang ist als der franzoesische, auch deshalb ungleich greller von der rede absticht. Die Italiener, in deren opern alles gesang ist, koennen ihre sujets freyer waehlen: hingegen muessen sie auf alle entwicklung der karaktere und leidenschaften verzicht thun, welche das recitativ nicht zulaesst. Bey dieser manier kann der dichter nur durch die situationen interessieren oder belustigen: bey der franzoesischen und deutschen kann er es auch in etwas durch die karaktere . . . Ausgefuehrte arien vollends darf man nur in ruhepunkten, etwann gegen das ende eines akts, anbringen: in der mitte einer scene haelt eine solche arie den fortgang der handlung zu lange auf. Nach diesen grundsuetzen habe ich zu arbeiten gesucht, und nicht sowohl auf einen kuenstlich verflochtenen plan und ausgefuehrte karaktere, als auf gemaelde und kontrastirende situationen und empfindungen mein absehn gerichtet . . . Der stoff meines stuecks ist aus dem Paysan parvenu von Marivaux gezogen; und die ausfuehrung der gesaenge gehoert einem meiner freunde, dem verfasser des Huldreich Wurmamsen von Wurmfeld, [Johann Friedrich Jünger], ohne dessen beyhuelfe ich es nicht wuerde gewagt haben, eine oper zu schreiben . . . Herr Hiller will die gefaelligkeit fuer mich haben, musik zu den gesaengen zu setzen: ein klavierauszug dieser musik wird im druck erscheinen."

London, Printed by M. Clark and sold by B. Tooke, 1679. 9 p. l., 52 p. 21cm.

Of the 9 p. l., the 3d (end of the dedication) and 9th (list of characters) are wanting in this copy. On p. l. 2-3, "The epistle dedicatory;" on p. l. 4-5, poems to "Mr. Edward Ecclestone," by Richard Saunders, John Leanerd, and John Morton; on p. l. 6-8 the preface to this five-act play, in which the author says:

" . . . Mr. Dreydon's State of Innocency and fall of Man, is of the same nature with this, from whose incomparable piece I drew this rugged draught . . ."

John Leanerd begins his poem:

"Milton reviv'd, or rather Dryden trac'd;

"Each step found out and follow'd, though in haste.

"A second op'ra to the world is brought,

"Full of quick sence, smooth fancy, subtle thought."

Listed by Clarence in "The Stage" as a miracle play.

Nouvelle chasse du cerf, divertissement en musique; composé de plusieurs airs parodiés sur les opera d'Angleterre: avec différentes symphonies étrangères.

p. [297]–[315]. 19½^{cm}. (Jean de Serré de Rieux, Les dons des enfans de Latone, Paris, 1734.)

The text is preceded by an "Avertissement," which reads in part:

"L'idée n'est pas nouvelle; elle a paru avec succès dans le divertissement de la Chasse du cerf imprimé chés Ballard il y a plus de vingt-cinq ans . . . en même tems l'idée est venuë d'offrir aux personnes qui pourvoient dans la suite entendre cette seconde Chasse, un genre de nouveauté en musique si différent, qu' elle ne pourroit diminuer le prix ni balancer la réputation acquise à la musique de M. Morin auteur de la premiere . . ."

" . . . Toute la différence qu'il y a entr'eux, ne consiste que dans la composition de la musique. Il n'y a dans cette seconde Chasse que les seuls recitatifs, qui font la liaison de l'action, & les choeurs, qui sont composés par un auteur françois: toutes les symphonies sont étrangères, tirées de différens auteurs italiens connus, & tous les airs chantans sont parodiés sur un nombre d'airs choisis dans les opera d'Angleterre de la composition de M. Hendel (Händel).

" . . . Comme sa composition infiniment sage & gracieuse semble s'approcher de notre goût plus qu'aucune autre, dans le principe où l'on est que tout ce qui est essentiellement bon en musique doit le paroître tel à toutes les nations sensées, on a voulu faire l'essai de voir si les paroles françoises mises avec exactitude pourroient sous un masque étranger recevoir encore de nouvelles graces . . ."

This preface is slightly contradicted by the "Table des air a chanter, avec violons" at end, where after the airs by "Hendel" is listed "Volez, tendres Zéphirs" as by "Fago, Napolitain" and "Que tes jeux sont charmans, trio." as from "2. L. de Son. Le Clair."

Firenze, Amadore Massi e Lorenzo Landi, 1637. 4 p. l., 104 p., 7 pl., 50, [1] p., 1 pl. 23^{cm}.

The ornamental t. p. and the 7 pl. were designed by Alfonsus Pariginus, engraved by Stefanus Della Bella. The pl. at end of the volume has the legend "Trattato di Carlo Blasis" and hardly belonged originally with this volume.

Prologue and five acts. Author's dedication dated Florence, August 1, 1737, and "A' lettori argomento, which reads in part:

"Sappia il benigno lettore, che io nel comporre, e stampare questa opera non hò havuto altro fine, che di ubbidire al comandamento del Serenissimo Gran Duca, à cui servo; il quale mentre ch'io era con l'animo più che mai alieno da simili poesie, mi comòdò, che componessi la commedia, la quale si dovea rappresentare in musica nelle sue felicissime nozze. Mi ristrinse à breve spazio di tempo per condurla a fine, come quegli, che havea gusto di vederla compita avàti la sua partenza per Pisa. M'ordinò soggetto allegro, quale si conviene à nozze, e per dar maggior campo all' inventore delle machine di abbellirla con varietà, e vaghezza di prospettiva; volle che contenesse festa in cielo, in mare, e nell' inferno: Ond' io presi per soggetto le Nozze degli Dei, trattandone quattro più celebrate da' poeti . . ."

"Così pensai sodisfare alle volontà del Serenissimo Gran Duca il quale trà sette giorni vide la commedia finita, l'udì letta da me, e mostrò nõ poco gradirla. Spero che la brevità del tempo, nel quale è stata composta scuserà le imperiezioni . . . Non tralascero di dire, che per fuggir la lunghezza, che portan seco le musiche, e le machine, e per la stagione molto calda, e poco atta agli spettacoli, e per la brevità delle notti, quella che si rappresentò fù in gran parte scemata, e variata da questa, che si stampa . . ."

This argomento is followed by the list of "Interlocutori. Chori. Balli." The text of the opera ending on p. 104, with instructions to the binder is followed by

— "RELAZIONE DELLE NOZZE DEGLI DEI. Favola dell' abate Gio. Carlo Coppola . . . In Firenze Nella nuova stamperia del Massi, e' Landi. 1637."

The author was Francesco di Raffaello Rondinelli, who signs the dedication. His very minute description of this extraordinarily spectacular opera begins with the antecedents of the text, already narrated by Coppola and then he says:

"Piacuto il concetto si diede ordine à cinque compositori principali della città (acciòche il sentirsi varietà di stile apportasse maggior diletto à chi ascoltava) che metessero in musica questa poesia; i quali corrisposero con l'artificio del contrappunto, e con la vaghezza dell' arie alla bellezza della favola. Il che fatto furono d'istruite le parti à migliori, che si trovassero nella città; nè si deve tralasciare, che un' opera così grande, nella quale intervennero circa 150. cantori, si fece senza chiamare alcun musico forestiero; essendosi presi tutti de' provisionati da S. A. e dello Stato, e città di Firenze. La cura della musica fù del Sig. Balè Ferdinando Saracini, soprintendente di essa per S. A. quella delle machine l'ebbe Alfonso Parigi, e de' balli Agnolo Ricci veterano in condurre con isquisitezza simili trattenimenti. Per ispiegare questa machina fù eletto il cortile del Palazzo de' Pitti, il quale essendo per tutta Europa celebrato (come in verità egli è) per una fabrica ammirabile, sarebbe cosa superflua, come notissimo il descriverlo.

"Risolutesi tutte queste cose il Sereniss. G. Duca se n'andò à Pisa, lasciando la cura di perfezionare quest' opera al Sereniss. Sig. principe Gio. Carlo suo fratello . . . Fattasi pertanto la coronazione della Sereniss. Sposa, fù giudicato opportuno il rappresentarla in questo tempo, acciòche essendo i popoli in somma allegrezza per questa solennità della nuova Gran Duchessa à tanto giubilo, e così universale, corrispondesse festa di straordinaria magnificenza . . ."

The relation is followed by the names "de i cavalieri, che operavano nell' abbattimento, e ne balli della commedia" and on the unnumb. p. by the imprimatur, dated September 5, 1637, that of the opera itself (on p. 104) being dated July 14, 1637.

Neither Schatz nor Solerti have anything to say about the identity of the five composers. If Schatz dates the first performance as September, 1637, he overlooked the fact that the text of the opera was published after the performances. The correct date is July 8, 1637, as appears from Solerti's "Musica, ballo e drammatica alla Corte Medicea dal 1600 al 1637."

Da Ponte is mentioned as the author, Mozart as the composer. In his preface, Da Ponte says:

"Il tempo prescritto dall' uso alle drammatiche rappresentazioni, un certo dato numero di personaggi comunemente praticato nelle medesime; ed alcune altre prudenti viste, e convenienze dovute ai costumi, al loco, e agli spettatori, furono le cagioni per cui non ho fatto una traduzione di quella eccellente comedia [by Beaumarchais], ma una imitazione piuttosto, o vogliamo dire un estratto.

"Per questo sono stato costretto a ridurre a undeci attori i sedeci che la compongono, due de' quali si possono eseguire da uno stesso soggetto, e ad omettere, oltre un intiero atto di quella, molte graziosissime scene, e molti bei motti, e saletti ond'è sparsa, in loco di che ho dovuto sostituire canzonette, arie, cori ed altri pensieri, e parole di musica suscettibili, cose che dalla sola poesia, e non mai dalla prosa si somministrano. Ad onta però di tutto lo studio, e di tutta la diligenza e cura avuta dal maestro di cappella, e da me per esser brevi, l'opera non sarà delle più corte che si sieno esposte sul nostro teatro al che speriamo che basti di scusa la varietà delle fila onde è tessuta l'azione di questo dramma, la vastità e grandezza del medesimo, la molteplicità de' pezzi musicali, che si son dovuti fare, per non tener di soverchio oziosi gli attori, per scemare la noja, e monotonia dei lunghi recitativi, per esprimere tratto tratto con diversi colori le diverse passioni che vi campeggiano, e il desiderio nostro particolarmente di offerirè un quasi nuovo genere di spettacolo ad un pubblico di gusto sì raffinato, e di sì giudizio intendimento. Il Poeta."

[Hamburg], Caspar Jakhel, n. d. Unpaged. 18^{cm}.

Prologue and five acts. Cast, scenario, and notice to the reader, who is informed: "Es hat zwar dem hiesigen Schau-platze bissher an allerhand abwechslungen, so wohl in ansehung des inhalttes der opern als auch der music, taenze, kleidungen, verwandlungen und anderen zieraten nicht gemangelt; ob aber jemahls alhier ein werk hervor getreten, dass so viele und so weit von einander entfermete veraenderungen in sich gehalten als das gegenwaertige, daran moegte wohl gezweifelt werden. Seinen ursprung nimmit es von Mr. de la Motte . . . Gleich wie nun in itztgedachtem [the text] ein bestaendiger wechsel herrschet, also ist auch in der musicalischen ausarbeitung solches in acht genommen und der hauptinnhalt nach italiaenischer was aber zu den aufzuegen gehoeret, nach franzoesischer art eingerichtet worden."

The reader is further informed that, for the sake of brevity, the music was cut in three places, besides in the last scene, "damit das spiel ein freudiges ende nehme," as was also done in France. The absent translator is said to have reported that his translation is literal, except for the interpolation of arias of his own make in imitation of Italian models, or excisions in order to better balance the "Odaischen saetze" or "wenn er, da ihm in der gedruckten franzoesischen music etwas von dem originale abweichendes in die augen gefallen, diesem mehr, als jenem nachzugehen ursache gefunden."

The German version was made by the composer Georg Philipp Telemann, who is not mentioned. SCHATZ 10265

Three acts. According to Burney "a new pasticcio . . . the airs . . . chiefly selected from the works of Hasse, Vinci, Araja and Porpora." From the six "Favourite Songs" published by Walsh we know that Araja composed "Felice ai di sereni" (III, 5) and Vinci "E follia, se nascondete" (III, 4), which is but a paraphrase of Metastasio's text in his "Catone in Utica." The air "Vaga stella pallidita" headed by Walsh as composed by Porpora, does not seem to be in Rolli's text of 1744.

First performed at London, Haymarket, March 2, 1736.

Prologue and three acts. A "Symbolum" by the translator, "Johann Kristof Lorber," pasted on the leaf preceding the title page. He is not mentioned in the text, nor is the composer. According to Schatz, it is "probably" Antonio Sartorio's "Orfeo" in a German version (with alterations) of Aureli's text.

Evidently performed at Brunswick, 1690.

Orfeo a torto geloso overo Amore spesso inganna. Drama per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatrino di Savoia l'anno MDCXCVII . . .

Bologna, Pic-Maria Monti, n. d. front., 67 p. 13½^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication signed by Giacomo Maggi, and dated Turin, April 20, 1697. Argument and scenario. Schatz attributes the music to Antonio Sartorio and the text to Aurelio Aureli, neither of whom is mentioned. As a matter of comparison, so little of Aureli's "Orfeo" text (Venice, 1672; music by Sartorio) appears in this

Bologna edition that they are practically two different librettos. For instance, in the original, I, 6 begins, "Aristeo, che t'affligge," and the aria is, "Al foco d'amore," whereas in this Bologna libretto these words open the eleventh scene of the first act, and the aria is, "Amor spietato arciere."

Orfeo ed Euridice. Dramma per musica da rappresentarsi nel nobile Teatro di San Benedetto di Venezia nell' estate dell' anno MDCCLXXVI.

Venezia, Modesto Fenzo, 1776. xxvii p. 20½^{cm}.

One act. Argument, cast, scenario, and name of composer, Ferdinando Giuseppe Bertoni, but not of the librettist, Ranieri de' Calsabigi. The opera had been previously performed at the same theatre during carnival (January) of the same year (1776), as appears from the libretto "Aristo e Temira e Orfeo ed Euridice." (Schatz, 934-935.) According to the preface of the latter, "Orfeo" had first been performed at Vienna, but this can refer only to Gluck's setting, Vienna, 1762.

First performed, as indicated, June 3, 1776. The libretto of Bertoni's opera was also printed, and performed together with Joh. Simon Mayr's "Temira e Aristo" (Venezia, Stamperia Valvasense, 1795, p. [29]-51 [Schatz 6203]). SCHATZ 916

It is stated that the Italian text is by Calsabigi "mit einigen zu der jezigen aufführung anbefohlenen einschaltungen." Reichardt is mentioned as the composer of these interpolations. German title-page, "Orpheus," and text face Italian.

First performed at Berlin, Kgl. Operntheater, January 31, 1788. SCHATZ 917

Orfeo ed Euridice, ballet. See Gazzaniga's La disfatta de' Mori.

Vicenna, Ghelen, n. d. [34] p. 19^{cm}.

T.-p. preceded by half-title with quotation from Virgil. Text of first act headed, of the two other acts followed, by vignettes. On t.-p. above imprint Orpheus resting under a tree with his lyre.

Argument, scenario, cast, and names of "Cav. Cristofano Gluck" as composer, of Gasparo Angiolini as "inventore e direttore de' balli," a brief description of which follows. The author of this famous libretto, Ranieri de' Calsabigi, is not mentioned.

First performed, as indicated, October 5, 1762. ML 50.2.0764

— Orfeo ed Euridice e Aristo e Temira, drammi per musica da rappresentarsi in Bologna nel Nuovo Pubblico Teatro nella primavera dell' anno MDCCLXXI.

Bologna, Sassi, n. d. 32, 32, vii, [1] p. 20^{cm}.

One act. By Calsabigi, who is not mentioned. Argument, cast, and name of Gluck as the composer.

Of the one act "Aristo e Temira" Carlo Monza is given as the composer after the argument and cast. Conte De Salvioli, the author, is not mentioned. At the end a description of Giovanni Favier's "Gli amori di Marte, e di Venere o la Furina di Vulcano nell' isola di Lenno. Ballo eroico pantomimo." The composer of the music is not mentioned. SCHATZ 3934

— Orpheus and Eurydice, a musical drama in imitation of the ancient Greek theatrical feasts. As performed at the King's Theatre in the Haymarket. The poetry by the celebrated councillor Calzabigi with additions and alterations by Signor A. Andrei.

London, J. Jarvis, 1785. 55 p. 23^{cm}.

Argument, cast, explanation of the ballets, and autobiographic captatio benevolentiae by the "Orpheus" Giusto Ferdinando Tenducci, dated May 7, 1785. If he therein says "I have resolved humbly to present . . . that same Orpheus, which was so much applauded at Florence" and where he had sung the same part, he not only contradicts himself later on but on p. [8] shows that the London version was a pasticcio of the worst sort:

"The music by cav. Christopher Gluck: with the additions of the late celebrated John Christian Bach: and with the choice of several favorite pieces of Mr. Handel. The whole (with many new additions and alterations) under the direction of Signor Pasquale Anfossi."

English text faces the Italian.

Cast and argument with remark:

"M. Calzabigi est l'auteur du poëme italien. On a suivi aussi littéralement qu'il étoit possible l'original dans la traduction: Ce foible ouvrage semble exiger plus d'indulgence qu'aucun autre, par l'extrême difficulté d'adapter la poésie française à la musique expressive d'un opéra, qui a déjà été représenté avec succès sur les principaux théâtres de l'Europe."

Moline is mentioned as translator, Gluck as composer.

L'Oristeo—Continued.

Faustini's Oristeo, but much altered, "per così dire, mascherato." As a matter of fact, the first eleven scenes of both are practically identical, then I, 12 in Bologna begins, "Qual rumor," whereas Venice has "Pargoletti germani," and the differences become too numerous for enumeration, though the original text is not lost sight of. For instance, III, 1 in the Venice ed., "Dove, dove m'aggiro," has become III, 4 in the Bologna ed. The composer of "quest' operetta," as it is called in the dedication, is not mentioned, but most likely was Cavalli, except, of course, for the new text. The matter is summed up in these words: "Condona cortese la molteplicità de gli episodii aggiunti per dilettaarti, e compatisci le digressioni talora soverchie, necessarie però nel diversificarsi le scene, e moltiplicarsi le machine." Orpheus.

First performed in five acts, text by Friedrich Christian Bressand, music by Keiser, at the Courttheatre, Brunswick, 1798, under the above title, according to Schatz. Repeated (with alterations) in two parts of three acts each at Brunswick in 1699 as "Die sterbende Eurydice," resp. "Die verwandelte Ieyer des Orpheus." Then at Hamburg, Opernhaus beim Gänsemarkte, 1702, as follows:

Five acts. Scenario and name of Reinhard Keiser as the composer. The author, resp. translator, Friedrich Christian Bressand, is not mentioned. The Italian text has been added to many of the arias.

In the very nature of the case, this five-act version is not a mere condensation of the version in two parts of three acts each. For instance, scenes I, 1-6, in Schatz 5106 are not in Schatz 5105. I, 3 of the latter, "Ach, Aristaeus, weich verkehrter blick," and I, 4, "Dein für mich dunckles wort," are the same as I, 6, and I, 7, in Schatz 5106. In the latter I, 8 (the last scene of the act), has the aria, "Bey mir wancken," which is not in the corresponding scene I, 5, of Schatz 5105. This is followed, as last of the act, by scene I, 6, "Angenehmste liebeskerten," with aria, "Dolce mia vita—Angenehmstes leben," which scene is not in Schatz 5106. The second act is the same in both versions, but after that the differences become very numerous again. It is curious to see that, whereas the fourth act begins with "Lass Orpheus die vernunft," etc., in Schatz 5105, this whole scene is made part of III, 11, in Schatz 5106. The first scene in Schatz 5107 in common with Schatz 5105, seems to be the latter's IV, 7, "Schöner ort, glückseele felder" (chorus) which is the first scene of second act in Schatz 5107.

Orpheus and Eurydice. With the pantomime entertainment. As acted at the Theatre-Royal in Lincoln's-Inn-Fields. By Mr. Henry Sommer . . .

London, C. Corbett, 1740. viii, 28 p. 17½^{cm}.

One act. In his preface the author refutes the charges of plagiarism brought by "Mr. Hill the apothecary" against the impresario, Mr. Rich. Sommer says that he wrote the piece eleven years ago, and that in 1734 he had occasion to submit it to Rich, who then described to him the plan of his own entertainment of the same title, with the "several tricks and escapes" which he intended to introduce. The same season (1734) Sommer made overtures to Mr. Fleetwood, who, however, could only offer to take the piece for the season following, and to purchase several of Sommer's "modules," which offer he rejected. Thereupon he entered into negotiations with Mr. Giffard, who, in 1736, agreed to produce the piece

"and the modules were carried to Lincoln's-Inn-Fields Play-house, in order to be got up with all expedition. And Mr. Giffard judging the pantomime part was long enough without the addition of a serious, because there was so great a variety, declined playing this as being too expensive.

"In January, towards the latter end, the harlequinade of my piece was performed with applause . . . I have reason to hope that Mr. Hill will not be so hardy to say, I have borrow'd any thing from his . . ."

The composer, John Frederick Lampe, not mentioned, and not recorded by Schatz.

Kiel und Hamburg, bey dem verfasser, n. d. xxxi, [1], 54 p. 15^{cm}.

The first seventeen p. of the "Vorrede" bring quotations from Virgil and Ovid, to show the origin of the plot. Then Carl Friedrich Cramer, the author of the German text, dwells at length on the dramaturgic problems presented by the theme of Orpheus and Euridice, and finally he points out wherein and why his text differs from the Danish original. On p. xxvi particularly he gives his reasons for weakening still more than the Danish original the impression of a "ganz grundloser eigensinn" in the mere "Frauenzimmer" Euridice. This "Vorrede" is well worth reading. Cramer's Tr. also in his Magazin d. Musik, 1786, p. 1085-1145. SCHATZ 7053

"Il mio poctare non si stende più oltre, che nel formar qualche soggetto appartenente alla musica, e ciò più per uso de' miei proprii componimenti, che de gl' altrui; più per mancanza de' pocti, che per professione . . . Alcuni lisci poetici, (e pur tali sono) da' quali, con lunga serie di versi, si cagiona la prolissità de' recitativi, che mi costituisce parziale, più della poesia, che della musica, son nati e dalla brevità della tessitura, per la disunione degl' atti, e perchè, havendo dovuta esser tradotta in lingua tedesca, per intendimento di quei, che non hanno cognitione della favella italiana, è da credere, che la lettura habbia da essere il principale oggetto: massimamente dove simili componimenti, non hanno fatto ancora spettacolo di se stessi, fra iluminosi splendori del teatro. Onde ne viene in conseguenza che se quest' opera, non havra tessiture artificiose, accidenti improvvisi, varietà di metri, frequenza d'inventioni, brevità di recitativi, spessezza di canzonette, inganni, viluppi, discioglimenti, sottigliezze, capricci, motti, allegorie, metafore, sentenze, traslati, e finalmente tutti quegli abbellimenti, che debbono havere i drammi musicali, composti per allettare & adulare il genio del secolo; non havrà ne meno spettatori nauseati, come altrove, dalla frequenza di tante e tante opere, che l'ascoltino . . . [Then speaks of his ambition and intention to write an opera totally different from all others.]

"Non è comedia; poiche la materia, che contiene, non è tratta da attioni civili e private. Non è tragedia; poiche non esprime, ne conclude casi atroci, e miserabili. Non è tragicomedia; poiche non partecipa, ne della comedia, ne della tragedia. Dovreb' esser drama; ma la qualità del soggetto, e della tessitura, non ammette ragionevolmente l'imposition di questo nome. Sarei per nominarla, Erotopœgnio Musicale (Ἐρωτοπαίγνιον musicum; quod est ludus de amore, ad musicam pertinens) ma per esser nome inusitato, quantunque fondato su la ragione, non so se sia (lettore) per sodisfarti . . ."

At the end of the libretto of the opera a note by the translator and list of errata. German title page, "Paris, ein gedicht zur musica," and text face Italian. The libretto of the opera is followed by a number of prose monologues addressed to the "Hochverständige richter" in German by Nimrod, Sol, Mars, Diana, Venus, etc. Apparently an allegorical-mythological pageant followed the opera. The "Cartel zum ballet des Parnasses" with an address by "Fama" ends the volume. The performances of Bontempi's ambitious work took place at Dresden, November 3 and 13, 1662.

Paride ed Elena. Dramma per musica da rappresentarsi in Napoli nella nobile Accademia di musica dedicato a' Signori cavalieri che la compongono.

Napoli, Vincenzo Mazzola-Vocola, 1777. 5 p. l., 41 p. 31 cm.

“L'aver io promossa in Napoli, e stabilita con successo una unione di cavalieri dilettranti di musica, mi ha fatto lusingare di ricavarne non solo un'onesto, e nobile divertimento, ma ben'anche di far rivivere il gusto in questo generè, che pare sia quasi assopito. Infatti la maggior parte de' forestieri intendenti rimangono stupiti di non trovare nelle orchestre di Napoli nè l'esattezza, nè l'espressione; e tanto più che mantenendosi ne' conservatorii una continua sorgente di musica, sembra che quest'arte dovesse nella nostra città portarsi al più eccelso grado di perfezione. Ma il numero immenso dei professori, che ne ha avvilito le paghe, e la molteplicità delle musiche, nata appunto dalla poca spesa che importano, han prodotta corrispondentemente la sazietà negl'i ascoltanti, e la svogliatezza dell' arte nei professori. Chi crederebbe mai che un buon soprano canti per la miserabile paga di dieci carlini? E che sia solo per metà piena una chiesa, dove fra scelti, e numerosi cori d'istrumenti, si sente cantare un mottetto all' incomparabile Aprile, o a Cafarelli? Queste necessarie conseguenze dell' attuale sistema armonico di Napoli, sono da altra parte sintomi troppo chiari della decadenza di un' arte, che ha sempre formato uno de' pregi, ed ornamenti della nazione. Ho creduto dunque che eccitando l'emulazione nei professori, ed il genio nella nobiltà, si potesse por' reaigne al torrente della corruzione, che minaccia alla musica la totale rovina. Non ho trovato un mezzo più adattato per riuscirvi, quanto quello di formare la detta unione di nobiltà, dove sull' esempio degli stessi cavalieri dilettranti si animano i professori a distinguersi, e colla scelta delle migliori composizioni si risveglia generalmente il gusto, e la passione per la musica. A questo fine ho voluto ancora adoprarmi, con far eseguire nella nostra accademia il tanto rinomato Paride del cavalier Cristofaro Gluch (Gluck), del quale è superfluo decantarne i pregi a chi deve sentirlo. L'espressione della musica conaturale al detto compositore, brilla ancor maggiormente in questa sua opera, dove non trovando egli, come nell' Alceste passioni violenti da maneggiare, ha intrapreso di far spiccare il contraposto dei caratteri di Paride, e di Elena, esprimendo in essi l'indole delle due nazioni Frigia, e Spartana; essendo rimarchevole, che nell' adattarsi alla ruvidezza, e semplicità di quest' ultima, si sostenga meravigliosamente, senza punto cader nel triviale. Se non mi fosse pienamente nota l'abilità dei professori, che con tanta cura si sono scelti per servizio della nostra accademia, temerei con ragione del successo di una composizione così delicata, e che merita la maggior esattezza nell' esecuzione; ma questa volta mi lusingo, non ostante l'assenza del compositore; che dice lo stesso cavalier Gluch essere del pari necessario per il buon regolamento, che la presenza del sole nelle opere della natura; sia il Paride eseguito in modo, da farne spiccare tutta l'arte, e le bellezze . . .

"Satyre ingénieuse & très fine. M. Favart n'avoue point cette pièce, telle qu'elle est imprimée ici, quoique le fond, le cadre, la plus grande partie des couplets, & presque tous les détails lui appartiennent. music by Michel de la Guerre (d. 1679). Quittard goes into the history of this performer of Perrin and Cambert's pastorale, reprints the text, and dates the first performance as January 22, 1655.

In his "Oeuvres," Perrin precedes the text of his own pastorale on p. 273-290 by his "Lettre écrite a Monseigneur l'archevesque de Turin. Apres la representation de la comedie suivante. De Paris ce 30. avril 1659." Unfortunately, this very interesting and important historical document is too long for quotation here. It is easily accessible in extenso in Pougin's "Les vrais créateurs de l'opéra français, Perrin et Cambert" (Paris, 1881, p. 56-68). Of course, the letter is in the nature of a campaign manifesto for French opera against Italian. For English-speaking people his sixth "defaut" (defect) pointed out against the cultivation of Italian opera in France is particularly à propos. Perrin says:

"Le sixieme qui les fera toujours échoier sur nostre theatre, est le defaut inévitable de chanter en une langue étrangere & inconnuë à la meilleure partie des spectateurs, qui leur ravit la plus belle partie du plaisir de la comedie, qui est celuy de l'esprit, & qui fait à leur égard ce qui arrive à peu près à ceux qui voyent danser sans entendre les violons . . ."

Patie and Peggy: or, The fair foundling. A Scotch ballad opera. As it is acted at the Theatre-Royal in Drury-Lane. By His Majesty's servants . . . With the music prefix'd to each song.

London, J. Watts, 1730. 4 p. l., 34, [2] p. 20^{cm}.

One act, prologue, and epilogue. Cast and author's preface, signed T.[eophilus] C.[ibber] and dated "Theatre-Royal April the 20th, 1730," which reads, in part:

"That I am indebted to Mr. Ramsay's Gentle Shepherd (a Scotch pastoral comedy, wrote originally in five acts) for the greatest part of the following piece, was not owing to my idleness, but a doubt of my abilities to produce any thing entirely new of this kind, that might plead to much pretence to favour . . ."

He decided

"to turn it into a ballad opera . . . in bringing the tale within the compass of one act, adding to the number of the songs, and changing it into the English dialect without which, it had not been intelligible to our auditors; nor indeed had I time to vary it more, my benefit being fix'd before I had laid my design, which was plan'd and finish'd in one day . . ."

The 22 airs are printed in the text, with their titles.

First performed, according to Clarence ("The Stage encyclopaedia"), and Tufts, on May 31, 1731, but this is obviously incorrect, as this performance must have taken place before April 20, 1730.

Cast and author's preface which reads:

"Je ne dois sans doute qu'au jeu des acteurs le succès de cette piece. Je sais avec plaisir l'occasion de leur en marquer ma reconnoissance. Quelques personnes cependant ont trouvé mauvais que j'aie fait représenter cette comédie sur le Théâtre Italien. Il faut me justifier. Les acteurs de ce théâtre se font un devoir d'accueillir, d'encourager les auteurs; on n'y connoît point l'usage de faire desirer pendant deux ans l'honneur d'une lecture, l'homme de lettres n'est point obligé de jouer le rôle de suppliant dans l'antichambre d'un semainier. Ces raisons sont suffisantes pour un homme qui ne se sent point d'humeur à souffrir les tracasseries, & sur-tout l'humiliation. On peut y joindre cependant des vues particulieres. La musique paroît aujourd'hui tenir le premier rang dans nos spectacles; seroit il déplaire au public que de tâcher de l'allier avec la peinture de nos moeurs? Pourquoi nous borner aux païsans? Pourquoi ne pas essayer tous les tous? Quittons le village, la ville nous offrira plus d'un tableau intéressant. J'espere que l'on ne prendra point ceci pour un trait de satire contre les auteurs qui n'ont travaillé que dans le premier genre. Un talent en annonce toujours un autre. L'auteur de la Chercheuse d'Esprit a fait l'Anglois a Bordeaux. Chacune de ces pièces est un chef-d'oeuvre. On me pardonnera aisément de citer par préférence M. Favart. Il est permis à un écolier d'avoir quelque prédilection pour son maître. C'est lui qui m'a donné les premières leçons de l'art dramatique. Bastien a été fait sous ses yeux. Il est facile de s'en appercevoir, & cette dernière piece vaudroit sans doute beaucoup mieux, si j'avois pu profiter de ses avis pendant le cours de la composition. Quelques critiques m'ont accusé d'avoir copié le méchant dans la scene où le marquis tourne en ridicule le baron & la baronne. Ils se sont trompés. Cette situation est tirée du conte des Rémois de la Fontaine."

London, J. Williams, 1767. 40 p. 19½^{cm}.

Cast and Advertisement:

"It may be proper to take notice, that the title given this piece, at present, is copied from the French of Monsieur Favart; whose 'Caprices d'amour, ou Ninette a la cour,' the author, Mr. Lloyd, confesses was the ground-work of his piece, called the 'Capricious lovers.'

"In order to make that piece entertaining, (and in conformity with the Italian burletta) musical dialogues have been added towards the end of each act; these are known among the Italians by the word finale, and are deemed indispensably necessary in an entertainment of this sort. It is now presented to the public with many alterations. Several airs have been added, others again suppressed; and adapted to the talents of the different performers, some of them being foreigners . . . it was necessary to alter the title of this opera, to that of Phillis at court, on account of the alterations . . ."

Berlin, Friedrich Maurer, 1794. front., 6, [2], 127 p. 16^{cm}.

No composer or performance recorded by Schatz. In his "Vorbericht" of date "Ostermesse 1794" Herklots says that his play is clearly intended for "musikalische composition," but that the possibility of "theatralische darstellung" is questionable, though he kept this possibility constantly in mind. He continues by saying what his main object was

"Seine hauptabsicht was die, einem gefühlvollen tonsezzer gelegenheit zu verschaffen, sein talent für richtigen ausdruck wechselnder leidenschaften zu zeigen, und diese absicht verräth schon zur genüge, dass er sich nicht arien nach italiänischen zusehnt, sondern jene edlere gattung von tonkunst gedacht hat, von deren herzerschütternden wirkung der unsterbliche Gluck seinen landsleuten so vortreffliche muster hinterliess."

"Der verfasser hat die stellen, die er für eigentlichen gesang, und die er für rezitation bestimnte, durch grössere und kleinere drucklettern bezeichnen lassen, aus gründen aber, hat er nur den drey hauptpersonen die letztere art des vortrags gegeben, und überdem vieles, was seinem inhalt gemäss, rezitativ seyn müsste, nach art der, in itahänischen opern gewöhnlichen schlussscenen, lyrisch behandelt; durch welche vermischung er keiner inkonsequenz schuldig zu seyn glaubt, da Reichardt, Salieri, und andre denkende componisten schon praktisch gezeigt haben, dass diese form den edlen und richtigen musikalischen ausdruck keinesweges ausschliesst."

Riga und Mitau, Wilhelm Christian Andreas Mueller, 1796. vi, 104 p. 16½cm.

German version, by G[eorg] C[arl] Claudius, who dates his preface Leipzig, May, 1795. In this he speaks of his deviations from the Italian original, and says:

Der Pariser Maler (Il pittore parigino) von Cimarosa machte eine geraume Zeit hindurch auf dem kaiserl. könipl. Hoftheater in Wien, selbst bei seinen vielfältigen Wiederholungen gleichsam immer ein neues Glück, und dieses ist die Ursache, warum man ihn in ein deutsches Gewand einzukleiden suchte. Da unsere deutsche Original-Oper immer noch so arm bleibt, und, allem jetzigen Anscheine nach, auch nicht sonderlich reicher werden dürfte, so bedarf es also schon einer Entschuldigung weniger, wenn man ausländische Producte auf inländischen Boden verpflanzt. Dass dergleichen Arbeit immer selbst bei allem Fleisse, selbst bei einem ziemlich gefüllten Magazin von Erfahrungen, ein Wagstück bleibe, ist nicht zu läugnen. Denn der Inhalt der ital. Opern, und die meist so sonderbare Bearbeitung ihrer Gegenstände stossen gemeinhin so sehr wider den deutschen Geschmack, dass nicht selten Nation gegen Nation ungerecht wird, sich beiderseits verkennen, und am Ende selbst den Wald-vor Bäumen nicht sehen. Die Deutschen haben bereits an unserm Eschenburg einen vortrefflichen Vorgänger, wie der Friede zwischen beiden Partheien zu erhalten sey, und wie man jeder sein Recht geben könne. Robert und Kalliste wird ewig davon ein schönes Beispiel bleiben. Auch Herr D. Schmieders Versuche sind von den deutschen Theatern mit Beifall aufgenommen worden. Ich würde mich freuen, wenn man meine Arbeit nicht so ganz überflüssig finden wollte. Ueber Cimarosas Musik will ich hier nichts sagen, da ich nur mit meiner eigenen Sache zu thun habe.

“Die Aenderung des Titels: Der Pariser Maler, schien mir schon die erste Nothwendigkeit; denn der Maler in diesem Stück kann aus allen Weltgegenden herseyen, da ihm der ital. Entwurf keine Eigenheit beimisst, warum er gerade aus Paris seyn muss. Selbst für sonst neugierige Liebhaber des Theaters würde dieser Titel keinen besondern Reiz gehabt haben, da die Emigranten anjetzt eben nicht die freudigste Theilnahme erregen. Ich bestimmte den Titel nach der Hauptintrieue des Stücks, weil ich glaube, dass es mit allen Titeln so gemacht werden sollte, obgleich unsere neuere Zeit auch über diese alte wahre Regel, ohne sich darum zu bekümmern, ihren rüstigen Geniesprung gemacht zu haben scheint . . .

Polly: an opera. Being the second part of the Beggar's opera. Written by Mr. Gay . . .

London, Printed for the author, 1729. 1 p. l., vii, [1], 72 p., 31 p. (music). 23½^{cm}.

Three acts and introduction. Ballad opera. Seventy-one songs, the airs of which are indicated in the text by title. They are printed with their basses in the supplement without title, but with number corresponding to that in the text and with the words to which they were to be sung in "Polly."

The text is preceded by Gay's preface, dated March 15, 1729, in which he narrates his experiences with the Lord Chamberlain who refused to grant permission of performance, though "everything was ready for a rehearsal," but "the Lord Chamberlain sent an order from the country to prohibit Mr. Rich to suffer any play to be rehears'd upon his stage till it had been first of all supervis'd by his Grace." Gay then in parallel columns lists the errors in the copy delivered to the Lord Chamberlain and the Emendations on revising the piece for the press. He takes pains to prove that there was no attempt on his part to deceive the Lord Chamberlain as to the actual text of the piece. On Dec. 7, 1728, he desired to read the opera to His Grace, but was ordered to leave the manuscript with him, and on Dec. 12, 1728, received word from the Lord Chamberlain

"that it was not allow'd to be acted, but commanded to be suppress. This was told me in general without any reasons assign'd, or any charge against me of my having given any particular offence.

"Since this prohibition I have been told that I am accused, in general terms, of having written many disaffected libels and seditious pamphlets . . . I have been inform'd too, that in the following play, I have been charg'd with writing immoralities; that it is fill'd with slander and calumny against particular great persons, and that Majesty itself is endeavour'd to be brought into ridicule and contempt.

". . . to justify and vindicate my own character, I thought my-self obliged to print the opera without delay in the manner I have done.

"As the play was principally design'd for presentation, I hope when it is read it will be considered in that light: And when all that hath been said against it shall appear to be intirely misunderstood or misrepresented; if, some time hence, it should be permitted to appear on the stage, I think it necessary to acquaint the publick, that as far as a contract of this kind can be binding; I am engag'd to Mr. Rich to have it represented upon his theatre." [Lincoln's Inn Fields, not Covent Garden, built 1732, as pointed out by Tufts.]

John Christopher Pepusch, who selected and arranged the music, is not mentioned.

The piece was not performed until June 19, 1777, at the Haymarket (Genest), and then, it is generally claimed, altered by Colman. Tufts adds: "Arnold supplied six new airs." ML 50.5.P74

Venezia, Modesto Fenzo, 1752. 2 p. l., 64 p. 17^{cm}.

Three acts. Cast, scenario, and Carlo Goldoni's dedication dated November 11, 1752, in which he says:

"Questi giocosi drammi per musica sono in oggi per tutta l'Italia desiderati, e con piacere intesi, e le persone nobili, e colte v'intervengono frequentemente, trovando in esse alla melodia del canto, unito il piacere dell' onesto ridicolo, il che forma un divertimento assai più allegro del solito."

The composer, Giuseppe Scarlatti, is not mentioned.

Three acts. Argument and cast. The Italian title, "Poro rè dell' Indie," heads the Italian text which faces the English. According to a footnote on p. 3 the arias, etc., "Tiranna la sorte" (I, 2), "Poro, se sull' Idaspe / Sorti illeso Alessandro" (III, 5), indicated in the text and others on "the leaf of alterations" which is not in this copy, were not composed by Händel. The text is based on "Alessandro nell' Indie" by Metastasio, who is not mentioned.

Three acts. In his "Vorbericht," which contains also the argument, C. G. Wend, the translator, says that this "Porus" has nothing to do with an opera of the same title previously performed at Hamburg, that in his translation of Händel's "Porus," though but "eine eilfertige arbeit," care was taken "ein theil derer arien (sonderlich solcher, die sich im gemeinen leben appliciren lassen,) in teutsche reime zu bringen und unter die music zu legen, damit sie allenfalls liebhaber, die eben keine abgoetter von italiaenischen worten sind, auch teutsch singen hoeren, oder selbst auf der kamer nachsingen koennen." He then comments on the difficulty Italian verses "musicalisch zu parodiren." Characteristic is his remark:

"Dass unser herr Telemann die teutschen recitative unter noten gebracht, brauche ich wohl nicht erst zu melden, weil so ein grosser meister dergleichen etwas wohl im schlafe zu verrichten faehig ist, und ich folglich seinen sonst hohen verdiensten durch meldung eines so geringen fast unrecht anthun wuerde."

Prologue, three acts, and final Divertissement. The latter was intended entirely for music, whereas in the comédie-ballet proper music figured only incidentally in the form of dances and choruses. The composer, Jean Philippe Rameau, is not mentioned. Cast and Avertissement, reading, in part:

"Le Roi a voulu donner à Madame la Dauphine une Fête qui ne fût pas seulement un de ces Spectacles pour les yeux, tels que toutes les Nations peuvent les donner, & qui passant avec l'éclat qui les accompagne, ne laissent après eux aucune trace. Il a commandé un Spectacle qui pût à la fois servir d'amusement à la Cour, & d'encouragement aux beaux Arts, dont il sçait que la culture contribue à la gloire de son Royaume. M. le Duc de Richelieu, Premier Gentilhomme de la Chambre en exercice, a ordonné cette Fête magnifique.

"Il a fait élever un Théâtre de cinquante-six pieds de profondeur dans le grand Manège de Versailles, & a fait construire une Salle, dont les décorations & les embellissemens sont tellement ménagés, que tout ce qui sert au Spectacle doit s'enlever en une nuit, & laisser la Salle ornée pour un Bal paré, qui doit former la Fête du lendemain.

"Le Théâtre & les Loges ont été construits avec la magnificence convenable, & avec le goût qu'on connoît depuis long-tems dans ceux qui ont dirigé ces préparatifs.

"On a voulu réunir sur ce Théâtre tous les talens qui pourroient contribuer aux agrémens de la Fête, & rassembler à la fois tous les charmes de la déclamation, de la Danse & de la Musique, afin que la Personne Auguste, à qui cette Fête est consacrée, pût connoître tout d'un coup les talens qui doivent être doresnavant employés à lui plaire.

"On a donc voulu que celui qui a été chargé de composer la Fête, fit un de ces ouvrages Dramatiques, où les divertissemens en musique forment une partie du sujet, où la plaisanterie se mêle à l'Heroïque, & dans lesquels on voit un mélange de l'Opéra, de la Comédie, & de la Tragédie.

"On n'a pû ni dû donner à ces trois genres toute leur étenduë; on s'est efforcé seulement de réunir les talens de tous les Artistes qui se distinguent le plus, & l'unique mérite de l'Auteur a été de chercher à faire valoir celui des autres . . .

"Ce Divertissement a été exécuté le 23. Février de cette année 1745. vers les six heures du soir. Le Roi s'est placé au milieu de la Salle, ayant auprès de lui, la Reine, Monsieur le Dauphin, Madame la Dauphine & Mesdames.

"Les Princes & les Princesses du Sang achevoient le cercle. Les Grands Officiers de la Couronne étoient derriere la Famille Royale.

"Il eût été à désirer qu'un plus grand nombre de Français eût pû voir cette assemblée, tous les Princes de cette maison qui est sur le Trône long tems avant les plus anciennes du monde, cette foule de Dames parées de tous les ornemens qui sont encore des chef-d'oeuvres du goût de la Nation, & qui étoient effacés par elles; enfin cette joye noble & décente qui occupoit tous les cœurs & qu'on lisoit dans tous les yeux.

"On est sorti du Spectacle à neuf heures & demie dans le même ordre qu'on étoit entré, & alors on a trouvé toute la façade du Palais & des Ecuries illuminée. La beauté de cette Fête n'est qu'une foible image de la joye d'une Nation qui voit réunir le sang de tant de Princes ausquels elle doit son bonheur & sa gloire.

"Sa Majesté, satisfaite de tous les soins qu'on a pris pour lui plaire, a ordonné que ce Spectacle fût représenté encore une seconde fois." ML 52.2.P7

London, Cadell and Davies, 1799. viii, [9]–40 p. 21^{cm}.

Cast and preface which makes it clear that the translation had not yet been performed and in which Heartwell says:

“Very few liberties have been taken with the original [“Le prisonnier, ou La ressemblance,” text by Duval, music by Della Maria] which, to stamp its celebrity, boasts of one hundred successive representations in the year 1798. It does not open with Rosina’s song; has no change of scene; with those exceptions, the situation, interest, and, it is hoped, simplicity, will be found faithfully preserved.”

This translation was found to be too simple for the English stage. With the cooperation of George Colman for the text and Thomas Attwood for the music “The prisoner” was much altered and expanded to two acts. In this form it was first performed as “The castle of Sorrento” at the Haymarket, July 13, 1799. (See this under its title.)

— Arlequin Endymion. Pièce d'un acte. Représentée par la Troupe du Sieur Francisque à la Foire de Saint Germain 1721 . . .

"Les comédiens italiens dans ce temps-là représentèrent devant le roi une pièce intitulée Diane & Endymion, ce qui donna occasion de faire celleci, qui contient quelques scenes parodiées."

— La forêt de Dodone. Représentée par la troupe du Sieur Francisque à la Foire de Saint Germain 1721.

Le Théâtre de la foire, Paris, 1724, t. iv, 3 pl., [213]-251 p. 17^{cm}.

From 264 the pagination jumps, by printer's error, to 295! According to a note on 2d p. l., the plays in t. iv were by Le Sage, Fuzelier, and d'Orneval. The "prologue" is entirely in prose; the two other plays en prose, mêlée de vaudevilles. The airs, selected or composed and arranged by Jean Claude Gillier, the "compositeur" of the theatre, are printed at end of the volume in the "Table des airs."

Paris, N. B. Duchesne, 1759. 64 p. 19^{cm}. (Theatre de M. Favart, Duchesne, 1763-77, t. iv.)

One act. Prose and vaudevilles. Many airs printed in the text. Cast. The arranger or composer is not mentioned and is unknown to Font. According to the préface (v. I, p. xix) some of the couplets were written by Sedaine. According to Font "Petrine" is merely a much altered version of Favart's "Farinette," a parody (performed March 9, 1741) of Lully's "Proserpine," revived January 31, 1741. The original version was "tout en vaudevilles."

La prosperità di Elio Sejano. O. T. of Minato's libretto La genesità di Tiberio.

La prosperita di Elio Seiano. Dramma per musica nel Teatro a S. Salvatore l'anno MDCLXVII . . .

Venetia, Bartolo Tramontino, 1667. 72 p. 14½^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication by the author, conte Nicolò Minato, and dated Venice, January 15, 1666, argument, scenario, and notice to the reader which reads, in part:

"A questo drama, nominato La prosperità di Seiano, doveva la sera immediatamente vedersi l'altro intitolato La caduta di Seiano, mà per non ritardarti il godimento de gl'insigni virtuosi che v'intervengono, & il diletto della musica del Signor Antonio Sartorio . . . s'è voluto prevenir con questa, per farti poi in breui giorni sentire anco l'altra compositione."

This notice, therefore, would cancel the one at the end of the text:

"Segue poi l'opera intitolata La Caduta di Seiano, che si rappresenta la sera seguente alla recita di questa." SCHATZ 9486

Venetia, Andrea Giuliani, 1656. 64 p. 15^{cm}.

Five acts, with prologue. Argument and scenario, but without name of the composer. Music attributed by Schatz and Wiel (in the "Musical Antiquary") to Pietro Francesco Cavalli. Both date the first performance 1646, Teatro Novissimo, Venice, though the libretto plainly has date of 1656. SCHATZ 1726

Il protettore alla moda. Dramma comico per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro Tron di S. Cassiano l'autunno dell' anno 1749.

Venezia, Modesto Fenzo, 1749. 60 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts. A new version of "Chi non fà non falla," by Giuseppe Maria Buini, who is not mentioned, and who also was responsible for the music (Bologna, 1729). For the replica, Galuppi reset more or less the whole libretto, but it is probable that, besides Buini and Galuppi's music, music by several other composers was used in this pasticcio (Piovano). The libretto for this further replica of 1749 contains no reference to the composers. SCHATZ 3520

n. i., n. d. [97]-176 p. 20^{cm}.

Three acts. By Eliza Ryves, who is not mentioned, and from whose Poems on several occasions (London, 1777), this appears to be detached. She says, in a footnote on p. [97]:

"The author hopes her readers will be so indulgent, as to consider that this opera was intended for the stage, and most of the airs composed for particular tunes . . ."

The titles of these are given on p. 175-176, in a table of the "Old tunes, to which the airs are adapted." LONGE 197

Prunella: an interlude perform'd in the The Rehearsal, at the Theatre-Royal in Drury-Lane. The sense and musick collected from the most famous masters. By Mr. Airs, for the advantage of Mr. Estcourt . . .

London, Printed for Bernard Lintott, n. d. 2 p. l., 16 p. 21½^{cm}.

A prefatory note by Estcourt precedes the list of characters. The interlude has four scenes spread over the four acts of "The Rehearsal," a comedy by George Villiers, duke of Buckingham. In the margin some of the airs are indicated to which the airs in "Prunella" were to be sung. The indicated airs were taken from Clayton's "Arsinoë," from Bononcini's "Camilla" and from "Thomyris." Also popular airs (ballad airs?) seem to have been used! On the title page is this

"Note, that an opera, of which this is but a part, will be soon finished and printed, with a prologue and epilogue; and a preface in praise of the fineness and delicacy of operas, and the difference between an Italian opera and an opera in Italy."

According to Clarence "Printed before 1713 . . . Acted Drury Lane, Februray 12, 1708," the same date as given by Genest. ML 50.2.P74

"essendo il drama composto da rappresentarsi in musica, e con machine apparenti, poca vaghezza havrebbe avuta, cominciandosi dopo che Psiche fosse tornata dall' inferno: come all' incontro era necessario il farlo breve diversi, perche, portando lunghezza la musica, non havessero i Serenissimi precipi, che v'intervennero, à stare à disagio. Non durò più di tre hore in quattro; tempo nondimeno aggiustato alle sceniche poesie; di modo che al sentire d'Angelo Ingegneri nel luogo sopracitato, se più durassero, benchè dilettevoli, sempre noiose riuscirebbono. Si potrebbe aggiungere, che il tessar lunga la favola, è così senza la mira, che possa commodamente recitarsi in musica, è difetto; che se bene oggidi si recitano spesso i drammi senza musica, non è il dovere, che si tolga loro il potersi almeno in musica rappresentare . . ."

Two acts. Text preceded by the list of characters, argument, and the anonymous author's dedicatory "Lettera al Sig. Deifebo Romagnoli." According to Piovano, in the Supplement to Eitner, the composer, Deifebo Romagnoli, since 1795 organist at the cathedral of Siena, was also a poet. If that is correct, it is possible that he is the author of this libretto, since the "Lettera" is written in a curiously facetious, self-ironical tone. At any rate, the libretto appears to have been written at the request of Romagnoli for his use. Whether or not he composed it, is not known to me. ML 48.A5 v. 32

One act. Cast, argument, and preface signed by the author, Richard Leveridge, in which he says:

"As diversion is the business of the stage, 'tis variety best contributes to that diversion . . . And as our present encouragers of this part of the theatrical labours, have for some late years been chiefly regaled with high recitative and buskin airs; I have here endeavoured the quite reverse of those exalted performances; and hope I may challenge some small excuse for this exotick essay, from no less than example and precedent.

"If the first founders, the Italians, in the grandest of their performances, have introduced lions, bears, monkees, dragons etc as their doughty fables require: I know no reason why I may not turn moonshine into a minstrel; the lion and stone wall into songsters; and make them as diverting as a dance of chairs and butterflies have been in one of our most celebrated British entertainments . . ."

At the end of the argument Leveridge says that Shakespeare's "The Midsummer night's dream" he "made bold to dress out . . . in recitative, and airs, after the present Italian mode, hoping I have given it the same comical face, though in a musical dress." Leveridge also composed the music.

Pyrrhus and Demetrius. An opera. As it is perform’d at the Queen’s Theatre in the Hay-Market.

London, Jacob Tonson, 1709. 3 p. l., 52 p. 22^{cm}.

Three acts. Cast and dedication by “Owen Swiny” (Owen McSwiney). His text is practically a translation of Adriano Morselli’s “Pirro e Demetrio.” It does not include the seventeen English aria translations by Armstrong, printed by Walsh in the “Songs in . . . Pyrrhus and Demetrius.” The libretto contains the Italian text and the English translation of all the arias, etc., that were sung in English, those sung in Italian remaining untranslated. The music was largely that composed by Alessandro Scarlatti for Naples (1694), but the overture and not less than twenty-one arias were by Nicolo Francesco Haym, as appears from Walsh’s “Songs.”

First performed at London December 14, 1708.

The rape of Proserpine: as it is acted at the Theatre-Royal in Lincoln's-Inn-Fields. Written by Mr. Theobald. And set to musick by Mr. Galliard.

London, T. Wood, 1727. viii, 17 p. 17½^{cm}.

One act. Cast and J. Rich's dedication, recommending his "part in this work" (the design of it), and dated "Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, Feb. 10, 1726." This dedication, to Thomas Chamber, reads in part:

"Though my inclination to musick frequently leads me to visit the Italian opera; yet, I confess, it is not in the power of the present excellent performers to prevent my falling into the very common opinion, that there are many essential requisites still wanting, to establish that entertainment on a lasting foundation, and adapt it to the taste of an English audience.

"For not to mention the trite objection of the performances being in Italian, and the general ill choice of the subjects for those compositions, it is evident that the vast expence of procuring foreign voices, does necessarily exclude those various embellishments of machinery, painting, dances, as well as poetry it self, which have been always esteemed (except till very lately in England) auxiliaries absolutely necessary to the success of musick; and, without which, it cannot be long supported, unless by very great subscriptions, of which we naturally grow tired in a few years.

"It seems, therefore, the only way by which musick can be establish'd in England, is to give it those assistances from other arts which it yet wants, and by that means to adapt it still more to the public taste: to moderate, as much as possible, the expence of it, and thereby to make it a general diversion, which hitherto it has not been.

"You will perceive, Sir, that in the following entertainment, the vocal parts of which are here presented to you, I have endeavoured to introduce that variety, which has usually been thought agreeable on the stage; and have attempted to form the serious part of it upon the above mentioned plan, as a specimen of what may not be displeasing to an English audience, and from which the town may be able to form a judgment of the effect an opera wou'd have, if conducted (by an abler hand) in the same manner.

"As for the other parts, it might, perhaps, seem an affectation in me to detain you with the history of the ancient pantomime entertainments, or to make a long apology for the revival of them at present. Thus much, however, may be said in their favour, that this theatre has of late ow'd its support in great measure to them. I own my self extremely indebted to the favour with which the town is pleas'd to receive my attempts to entertain them in this kind; and to engage, for my own part, that whenever the publick taste shall be disposed to return to the works of the drama, no one shall rejoice more sincerely than my self . . ."

According to Grove's Dict., this pantomime was first performed in 1725, forming part of "Harlequin sorcerer," as "The loves of Pluto and Proserpine." "The rape of Proserpina" is not mentioned by Genest. ML 50.2.R24

Il rapimento di Cefalo rappresentato nelle nozze della Christianissima Maria Medici regina di Francia è di Navarra. Di Gabriello Chiabrera [vignette].

Firenze, Giorgio Marescotti, 1600. [3], 4-27, [1] p. 21^{cm}.

At end, on the unnumb. p. printer's mark. Five acts. On p. [2] Interlocutori, on p. [3]-4 Prologo. No composer is mentioned, but Michelangelo Buonarroti in his very minute and interesting "Descrizione," 1600, of the festivities (quoted by Solerti) says:

"Giulio Caccini ebbe il carico di tutta la musica, e funne il componitore; se non che dei cori, il primo da Stefan Venturi del Nibbio, insieme con una gran musica delli Dei simili a coro, ed il terzo e'l quarto da Messer Luca Bati maestro della cathedral cappella composti furono. Il secondo per maggiormente onorarsi musica e scena reale, di fare compiacquesi il Signor Pietro Strozzi, gentiluomo non solamente di tale arte, ma di ogni nobile facultà adornissimo: per la cui opera altresì ricevette molto giovemento l'esercizio di tale impresa, siccome per quella del Signor Cosimo de' Medici ancora."

Caccini did not mention these facts when he published part of his music in his "Nuove musiche," 1601 [1602], p. 19-24 with these introductory remarks:

"Non havendo io potuto per molti impedimenti far' istampare com' era il desiderio mio il Rapimento di Cefalo composto in musica da me per comandamento del Serenissimo Gran Duca mio signore . . . mi è parso ora con l'occasione di quest' altre mie musiche aggiugnere à quelle l'ultimo coro di esso Rapimento . . ."

Besides this chorus "Ineffabile ardore" he published the arias "Muove si dolce," "Caduca fiamma," "Qual trascorrendo," and the chorus "Quand il bell' anno." After the first two arias the chorus "Ineffabile ardore" was repeated. The whole publication, therefore, forms what might be termed the finale of "Il rapimento di Cefalo."

Final rehearsal on October 7, 1600; first performance on October 9, 1600.

By Le Sage and D'Orneval. Largely en vaudevilles. The airs, selected or composed and arranged by Jean Claude Gillier, the "compositeur" of the theatre, are printed at the end of the volume in the "Table des airs." A note on the title page reads:

"Les auteurs de cette pièce l'avoient composée pour le début de l'Opéra comique, qui s'est rétabli à la Foire de S. Laurent de cette présente année 1721: mais comme la permission de r'ouvrir ce théâtre n'a pas été accordée aux acteurs qu'on auroit souhaité, on n'a pas voulu la faire représenter. Three acts. Dedication dated Bologna, January 18, 1694, and signed by Giacomo Antonio Perti and Ceare Bonazzoli apparently as impresarios, scenario, and notice to the reader which reads, in part:

"Lo vedrai cangiato in varij luoghi con nuove ariette . . . Averti ancora, che si è posto in scena nella maniera, che fù scritto di prima impressione supponendo questa la vera intentione del medesimo autore."

The words in the dedication "eccolo, che, dovendo ritornar alle stampe, e di nuovo comparir sopra le scene in Bologna" make it clear that the opera must have been performed there before 1694. Bound in is the following (same imprint, 21 p.):

INTERMEZZI, et aggiunte al drama intitolato Il rè infante, che si rappresenta nel Teatro Malvezzi l'anno 1694.

The reader is informed that, in order to please the audience, in many places of the opera arias have been cancelled and others "di maggior genio de' virtuosi cantanti" have been substituted, also that

"vi si sono ancora aggiunti due intermezzi, acciochè più ti sia grato il serio, vedendovi framezzato il faceto."

The characters in these intermezzi are "Dircea, poi Gildo" and "Gildo, poi Despina e Livio." The substitute arias printed are "Mercè de la mia fè" (I, 5), "Sembra riso, ed è sol pianto" (I, 7), "Se costante è la mia bella" (I, 11), "Sol per voi fogli amorosi" (I, 12), "Vaghi rai del mio bel Sole" (II, 1), "Quand un ayme tendrement" and "Les amantes, qui sont fidèles" (II, 3), "Rissolvi ò cor tradito" (II, 5), "Come al Polo si rivolge" (II, 17), "Sei vago, sei vezzoso" (II, 17), "Nel seno amante" (III, 2), "Beltà costante" (III, 3), "Fiero Pluto de l'Inferno" (III, 3), "Bel gioia, gioia soave" (III, 24). Schatz attributes the music to Perti, probably because he signed the dedication. Comparison proves that, barring many alterations, the text is the same as the one performed 1683 at Venice, the setting of which is attributed also by Schatz to Carlo Pallavicini. If correctly attributed to him, it therefore may be that Perti either did not compose the text for Bologna (1694) at all or that he was merely responsible for the additional music, etc. SCHATZ 7953

Paris, de L'imprimerie de Monsieur, 1789. (double) 62 p. 21^{cm}.

Two acts. Not Dubuissou's translation. French text faces Italian. Cast, name of Giovanni Paisiello as the composer and Avertissement:

"En traduisant ce poème, l'on s'est proposé deux principaux objets, l'un, de faciliter aux personnes peu versées dans la langue italienne, l'intelligence du texte, que l'on a suivi d'aussi près qu'il a été possible; l'autre, d'établir des distinctions sensibles entre le récitatif simple, le récitatif obligé, et les airs. On a donc rendu en prose le récitatif simple, et le reste en vers blancs ou non rimes . . . Si les personnes qui lisent pendant la représentation, éprouvent que cette forme de version distraît moins leur oreille du rythme musical, que ne le feroit de la prose absolue, on ne regrettera pas de s'être imposé cette contrainte de plus." The reconciliation; or The triumph of nature. A comic opera, in two acts by Peter Markoe.

Philadelphia, Prichard & Hall, 1790. viii, [9]–48 p. 20^{cm}.

A ballad opera, the tunes indicated in the text. The dedication (p. [iii]) reads: "To His Excellency Thomas Mifflin, Esq., President of the State of Pennsylvania; and to the Honorable Thomas M'Kean, Chief Justice of the said State; this comic opera approved of by them in their official capacity according to law; but withdrawn from the managers of the theatre, after it had remained in their hands more than four months; is . . . inscribed."

In his preface (p. [v]–vi) Markoe says:

"A revival and correction of "Erastus," literally translated by a native of Germany, lately arrived in Pennsylvania, gave rise to the following piece.

"The happy simplicity of the German original, written in one act by the celebrated Gesner, suggested an enlargement of the plan. A new character is added, songs are introduced, and the dialogue so modelled as to be rendered (it is presumed) pleasing to an American ear. Those who understand the German and the English languages will, on comparing the two pieces, readily perceive the difference between them . . ."

According to a note on 2d p. l. of t. iv, the plays in t. iv-v were written by Le Sage, Fuzelier, and d'Orneval. Largely en vaudevilles. The airs, selected or composed and arranged by Jean Claude Gillier, are printed at the end of the volume in the "Table des airs." The final vaudeville was composed by Aubert. The text is preceded by this Avertissement:

"Le 22. du mois d'Août le Privilege de l'Opera Comique fut ôté à la troupe qui l'avoit, & donné à celle du Sieur Francisque; qui commença ses représentations en vaudevilles le 1. de Septembre suivant.

"Pour mettre au fait du Regiment de la Calotte ceux qui n'y sont pas, ils sauront que c'est un regiment metaphysique, inventé par quelques esprits badins, qui s'en sont fait euxmêmes les principaux officiers. Ils y enrôlent tous les particuliers, nobles & roturiers, qui se distinguent par quelque folie marquée, ou quelque trait ridicule. Cet enrôlement se fait par des brevets en prose ou en vers qu'on a soin de distribuer dans le monde. Mais la plupart de ces brevets sont l'ouvrage de poètes téméraires, qui de leur propre autorité font des levées de gens, qui deshonoreront le corps par leur merite & par leur sagesse, si le commissaire ne les cassaït point aux revûës."

Paris, la veuve Duchesne, 1772. 80 p. 21½^{cm}.

Cast. On p. 75-80, the airs of the ariettes, "Je le veux, et cela suffit," "De l'ordre exprès d'un petit dieu," and "Suis-je digne." The composer's correct name is Jean Nicolas Amédée Le Froid de Méreaux. ML 50.2.R42M2

La ressource des théâtres, pièce en un acte. Par M. C * * * représenté pour la première fois sur le Théâtre de l'Opéra-comique, le 31 janvier 1760.

Paris, Duchesne, 1760. 42, [6] p. 19^{cm}.

Cast. Running title calls this a prologue. Prose, vaudevilles, and ariettes, some of which are printed in the text, as, for instance, the final vaudeville, "Toujours suivre avec uniformité," of which a foot-note says: "L'air & les couplets du vaudeville sont de M. Favart." In fact, the preface of the "Theatre" (v. I, p. xxvii) informs us that this was Favart's only contribution to the play. "mais ce vaudeville a fait presque seul tout le succès de la pièce." The real author is mentioned neither in this preface nor by Font, who is silent also on the musical collaborator. The [6] p. contain lists of plays, etc. SCHATZ 11509

The restauration of King Charles II. or, The life and death of Oliver Cromwell. An histori-tragi-comi ballad opera. As it was forbid to be acted at the New Theatre in the Hay-Market . . .

London, R. Walker, 1732. 2 p. l., vii, [1], 54, [2] p. 18½^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication by the author, Walter Aston, and his preface. According to this, Aston submitted the play to Mr. Potter, "master" of the New Theatre in the Hay-Market, who told him that "nothing must be play'd there till a gentleman of the treasury, and another of the exchequer, had read and approv'd it."

They were approached. They claimed to have "not time to look over such things," but if their friend, who had approached them in behalf of Aston, "was satisfied, there was no offence, there should not be any stop put to it." Thereupon Aston

"distributed the parts [the proposed cast on the last [2] p.], printed bills and tickets, and had it rehearsed thrice; but unexpectedly a message came, to stop the performance [which was planned for May 4th]; for the actors should be all taken up: That now they dare not play treason, they put treasonable titles to their bills; and that the Restauration of King Charles II. was a treasonable title.

"I confess I am so stupid, I cannot apprehend what they mean . . ." When Aston protested and asked for the censor's reasons, the final answer he reports to have been, "the story is too recent."

The 23 airs used in this ballad opera are indicated by title.

Rinaldo, an opera. Perform'd at the Queen's Theatre in London. MDCCXI.

[71]-143 p. 21^{cm}. (Aaron Hill, Dramatic works, London, T. Lownds, 1760, vol. I.)

Three acts. Cast and argument. In his dedication to the Queen Aaron Hill says "This opera is a native of Your Majesty's dominions" and speaks of his "endeavour to see the English opera more splendid than her mother, the Italian." In his preface, Hill, mentioning Hendel (Georg Friedrich Händel) as the composer, gives the peculiar history of this Rinaldo text:

"The deficiencies I found, or thought I found, in such Italian opera's, as have hitherto been introduced among us, were, first, that they had been composed for tastes and voices, different from those who were to sing and hear them on the English stage; and secondly, that wanting the machines and decorations, which bestow so great a beauty on their appearance, they have been heard and seen to very considerable disadvantage.

"At once to remedy both these misfortunes, I resolved to frame some drama, that, by different incidents and passions, might afford the music scope to vary and display its excellence, and fill the eye with more delightful prospects, so at once to give two senses equal pleasure.

"I could not chuse a finer subject than the celebrated story of Rinaldo and Armida, which has furnished opera's for every stage and tongue in Europe . . . It was a very particular happiness, that I met with a gentleman so excellently qualify'd as Signor Rossi, to fill up the model I had drawn, with words so sounding and so rich in sense, that if my translation is in many places led to deviate, 'tis for want of power to reach the force of his original . . ."

This is followed by Giacomo Rossi's notice "Il poeta al lettore" in which he pays not the slightest attention to Hill, apologizes for the defects of his "parto di poche sere" due to lack of time

"poiche il Signor Hendel, Orfeo del nostro secolo, nel porla in musica, a pena mi diede tempo di scrivere, e viddi, con mio grande stupore, in due sole settimane armonizzata da quell' ingegno sublime, al maggior grado di perfezione un opera intiera."

Rossi's Italian text is faced by Hill's English translation.

First performed at London, Haymarket, February 24, 1711.

Three acts. In the lengthy "Kurtzer vor-bericht" Barthold Feind (not mentioned by name) states that he made his translation of Rossi's "Rinaldo" in five days; that this will account for its shortcomings; but that, on the other hand, he followed Rossi "fast slavisch," so not to miss a single note of Hendel's music. He means, of course, Georg Friedrich Händel. This incidental remark may be of interest:

"En fin, weil noch kein Teutscher als Hendel einen Rinaldo aus der italiaenischen sprache in die music gesetzt, wird ihm wohl niemand den glorieusen musicalischen titel eines Orfeus dieses seculi, als der neid selber disputirlich machen; wiewol ich mich dabey mit plaisir erinnere, dass alhier ein herr von den gens de qualité, welcher einen staatecharacter mit besonderm ruhm bekleidet und dem bey muessigen stunden die music sein zeitvertreib ist, vor einigen jahren in der allerzartesten bluethe seines alters eine von mir auf befehl seines nuemehr in Gott ruhenden herrn vaters Excellence verfertigte italiaenische opera, "Virginia generosa, e Don Camillo incostante" benahmet in die music gesetzt und der Hochseeligsten Koenigin Anna, glor-wuer-

Robin Hood; or, Sherwood forest: A comic opera. As it is performed at the Theatre-Royal, in Covent-Garden. By Leonard Mac Nally, Esq.

London, J. Almon, 1784. 74 p. 21^{cm}.

Three acts. Cast and dedication to William Shield, composer to the Theatre-Royal, Covent-Garden (in which capacity he also composed and partly compiled the music for this piece). Mac Nally says:

“The three principal ideas which combine the subject are not original, but borrowed from the ballads of Robin Hood, the Nutbrown maid, and the Hermit of the dale; I adopted them as being popular. It was my first intention to have taken all the songs from old ballads; those I have selected are, I trust, not ill chosen, or unapplicable to the piece . . .”

In Bland's vocal score “The stag through the forest” is headed as composed by Henry Harington, “If to me” as by Anfossi and “Friendship claims the name” as by Bertoni. The overture is ascribed by a contemporary hand to Baumgarten.

Three acts. Argument, with name of Georg Friedrich Händel as composer of the Italian arias, the Italian text of which is added to the German. Neither the composer of the German recitatives nor C. G. Wend, the translator of the Italian by Salvi-Haym, is mentioned.

Three acts. Giovanni Gualberto Bottarelli is mentioned as the author, and he signs the dedication as such, remarking that he wrote the libretto by demand of the king, but from the “Avvertimento” in the 1778 ed. it would appear that he simply retouched a drama by Zeno. As a matter of fact, Zeno never wrote a Rodelinda, nor did he write the arias in this particular Rodelinda. The text utilized by Bottarelli was really that by Antonio Salvi. The avvertimento is preceded by the cast, the argument, and the names of Carl Heinrich Graun as the composer, and of "Giovanni Cristoforo Rost" as the author of the German version, "Rodelinde, köninginn der Longobarden," which faces the Italian.

First performed, as indicated, December 13, 1741.

— Rodelinda, regina de' Longobardi. Dramma per musica da rappresentarsi nel Regio Teatro della Corte . . .

Berlino, Haude e Spener, 1778. 95, [3] p. 16^{cm}.

Three acts. By Giovanni Gualberto Bottarelli (who is not mentioned), but the "Avvertimento" reads as follows:

"Quantunque questa tragedia [Pertharit, di P. Cornelio] sia forse la più debole di quante ne ha scritte quel chiarissimo tragico, parvo ad Apostolo Zeno, ch'ella potesse servire di degno soggetto ad un dramma per musica, e ne fece un opera che si trova fra le altre di quell' insigne autore.

"Quei che nell' anno 1744 serviva da poeta nel Regio Teatro di Berlino, trasformò malamente l'opera dello Zeno, e la diè fuori mutilata e guasta com' ell' è anche al presente . . ."

This is entirely incorrect, as the note for the 1741 ed. proves. Argument, cast, scenario, and name of Carl Heinrich Graun as the composer. Though the avvertimento says that a revival was ordered "nel presente anno 1778," the performance took place, according to Schatz, December 19, 1777. Cast, Herissant's privilege, on the [2] p. a list of plays and preface by the author Sedaine, who is not mentioned, in which he states:

"Je fais imprimer cette pièce avant qu'elle soit représentée, & je la fais distribuer le propre jour de la représentation."

He took this precaution, he says, not because of "un amour-propre très indiscret" but in order to give "à l'auditeur toute la facilité de suivre la musique sur les paroles." The preface is interesting, as it gives an inside-view of Sedaine's ambitions and methods. He says, for instance:

"Ce petit genre a l'ambition de joindre la flûte d'Euterpe au masque de Thalie, tels que les Grecs l'ont unie au sceptre de Melpomène. Ses efforts tendent à introduire la vraie comédie, ne faisant qu'un avec les morceaux de musique nécessairement enchainés à la scène, & vicieux dès que le concours heureux de l'harmonie ne donne pas à l'action de la chaleur, du mouvement, & de la précision, sur-tout dans ces momens rapides sur lesquels la tragédie & la comédie n'osent & ne peuvent appuyer . . ."

Paris, la veuve Duchesne, 1770. viii, 104 p. 19^{cm}. (Theatre de M. Favart, Paris, Duchesne, 1763-77, t. x.)

Cast. On p. 97-98 the air of the "Vaudeville de la Rosiere de Salenci" ("Vous qui cherchez à mériter") and on p. 102-104 the "Air: Menuet d'Exaudet" sung to the words "Cet étang, qui s'étend." The text is preceded by an "Eclaircissement historique sur la Fête de la rose" and by an "Avis du libraire" which begins:

"La Rosière de Salenci a déjà été imprimée; mais les exemplaires étoient uniquement destinés pour la cour.

"Depuis plusieurs années bien des auteurs se plaignent de voir leurs ouvrages contrefaits dans presque toutes les grandes villes du royaume, remplis de fautes, de contre-sens insoutenables, qui les défigurent au point qu'eux-mêmes ont bien de la peine à les reconnoître. Ces contrefaçons . . . se débitent même jusques sur les théâtres de la capitale: c'est pourquoi, pour garantir le public de toute supercherie à cet égard, nous nous croyons obligés de l'avertir de s'adresser directement aux libraires désignés sur les titres des pièces qui s'impriment à Paris . . ."

The music is attributed principally to Blaise, Duni, and Philidor, who are not mentioned. ML 49.A2F1

La rosière de Salenci, pastorale en trois actes, mêlée d'ariettes; représentée, pour la première fois, par les Comédiens italiens ordinaires du roi, le lundi 28 février 1774: précédée de Réflexions sur cette pièce, mêlés de quelques Observations générales sur les spectacles.

Paris, Delalain, 1774. xxviii, 67 p. 21^{cm}.

Cast. By Alexandre Frédéric Jacques Masson, marquis de Pézay, who is not mentioned. His preface is very interesting and full of side lights on olden times and manners. Grétry, the composer, comes in for some complimentary remarks, and those who were jealous of his successes for some rather uncomplimentary remarks. Nor does the author spare his own critics when defending his piece in detail against their attacks. Still, the criticism levelled at the piece can not have been wholly unreasonable, because the author himself in a foot-note on p. xx remarks that even after contracting the two first acts of the original four into one, the piece may be too long with its three acts. The date of performance in the title is that of the original four acts at the Comédie italienne, Paris, whereas the three-act version was first performed there on June 18, 1774. The present three-act libretto was printed, as appears from remarks on p. xvii, before this performance but, of course, after that of the four-act version. Of the libretto printed for the original performances at Fontainebleau (exact date not recorded) the author says that it was "trop fautive pour valoir même la peine d'être désavouée."

For the present purpose the following quotations from Masson de Pézay's frank and noteworthy "Réflexions" must suffice:

"... La présence inattendue de Madame la Dauphine, avoit favorablement disposé le Public à la première représentation de la Rosière à Paris; on est indulgent quand on est heureux. Quelques mois auparavant cette Pièce avoit été donnée à Fontainebleau, & n'avoit pas eu pour elle, à beaucoup près, le plus grand nombre des suffrages. Il y a plusieurs exemples, au Théâtre, de cette apparente contradiction entre les jugemens de la Cour & ceux de la Ville. J'en donnerai plus d'une raison plausible, avant de me prévaloir de celle que l'esprit malin de la Capitale se plaît à accréditer. Je ne l'allègue point, parce qu'elle me paroît fausse . . .

"Une de ces circonstances les plus marquées, est sans doute l'usage qui proscrit les applaudissemens toutes les fois que Sa Majesté honore le Spectacle de sa présence. Il ne nous appartient pas de décider si ce silencieux hommage du respect compense bien celui qu'il interdit à l'amour; s'il peut être, pour un Monarque, beaucoup de tableaux plus doux que tout mouvement passionné des coeurs qui lui appartiennent; & si des ris & des larmes libres ne développeroient pas toujours, avec un nouvel avantage, aux yeux du Roi, le caractère du peuple charmant & sensible dont il est maître? Ce que je sais, c'est que l'étiquette a fixé cet usage; c'est qu'il est glaçant pour l'Acteur; c'est que l'Acteur ne se glace point sans refroidir celui qui l'écoute, & que de froideur en froideur, & de contrainte en contrainte la toile se lève & s'abaisse ainsi, sans que l'ame engourdie à ce Théâtre se permette l'élan, qui seul lui donne le droit de juger, parce que seul il lui permet de sentir . . .

"Il est une autre observation particulière aux Pièces en musique, c'est qu'elles ne sont données à Versailles ou à Fontainebleau qu'une fois, deux au plus, & qu'il est impossible de juger les effets d'harmonie à une première, & même à une seconde représentation . . .

"Aux obstacles communs à toutes les Pièces en musique données à la Cour, il s'en est joint quelques-uns de particuliers à la mienne. Un devoir militaire m'occupoit à l'Isle de Rhé, au moment où l'on se disposoit à la donner à Fontainebleau. Je ne pouvois pas trop déceint repasser la mer pour venir veiller à la répétition. Quelques mois auparavant, je m'étois contenté d'envoyer un manuscrit exact, accompagné de notes indispensables. J'ignore par quelle fatalité il se trouva perdu avant que la Pièce fût sùe, & par conséquent représentée. Au défaut du manuscrit égaré, on eut recours à un autre très-raturé, où les nouvelles corrections, relatives aux ariettes seulement, étoient portées. Elles s'y trouvoient malheureusement en contradiction avec l'ancien dialogue: delà résulta, à la représentation, mille petites absurdités plus piquantes les unes que les autres, & un galimathias dont toute la bonne volonté des rivaux auroit eu bien de la peine à sauver le ridicule à l'Auteur mutilé & absent.

"Ce manuscrit étoit depuis cinq ou six ans entre les mains de M. Gretri. Je saisis cette occasion de rapporter la date de mon importante production; je me crois obligé d'en faire part aux esprits bien intentionnés, qui ont eu grand soin de faire remarquer à des Juges, dont une seule pensée ne peut être indifférente, combien peu le métier d'un Aide-Maréchal Général-des-Logis de L'Armée est de faire des Opéra-comiques. C'est à ces donneurs d'avis bénévoles que j'observe qu'il y a six ans sur-tout, ces distractions pouvoient encore m'être permises; qu'aujourd'hui même je serois aussi loin d'en rougir que de m'enorgueillir du succès le plus entier dont elles pourroient être suivies . . .

J'ai tardé long-tems à faire imprimer la Rosière: peut-être ne l'aurois-je pas fait imprimer du tout, si des critiques verbales, même imprimées, ne m'avoient fait connoître que toute Pièce où il y a de la musique n'est jamais bien entendue, ni même comprise avant d'avoir été lûe: c'est pour l'intelligence de la Scène que je me détermine à cette nouvelle publicité, & non par la conviction que de telles misères puissent jamais mériter les honneurs durables de la presse . . ."

Three acts. Real name of the author is Antonio Soliva, according to Wotquenue after Florimo), but Piovano says that it is an anagram of Francesco Antonio Tulli. Impresario's dedication, cast, argument, and note:

"La musica è del Signor Antonio Orefici, a riserva dell' arie con questo segno § che sono del Signor Leonardo Leo . . ."

This would apply to "Se i miei strali fosser tali" (I, 4), "Il vincitore: Lascia, ch'io parli al core" (I, 7), "Po fa la Ddea, che a chisto core" (I, 13), "In libertate lasciami il core" (I, 15), "Vincerai, non paventar" (II, 7), "Quell' amor, che nel cimento" (II, 9), "Ma non gli affetti miei" (II, 11), "Sento la speme" (II, 15), "Non fa, ch'io porri immora" (III, 1), "Dove spero aver la sorte" (III, 3), "Dolce ben mio" (III, 9), "Bell' alme innamorate" (III, 14).

The sign § frequently stands not at the beginning of an aria but somewhere in the middle or towards the end. Since there appears no reason for having misplaced it, the lines have been quoted, which are actually distinguished by the sign. Thus part of an aria would seem to have been by Orefici, part by Leo! This sort of thing was not customary even in pasticcios, though it was not unprecedented.

Schatz attributes the music to Giuseppe Antonio Paganelli and says that the composer sang the part of "Armindo." The list of characters says: "Il Sig. Giuseppe Paganelli di Forli," but since the composer was from Padua, the two do not appear to be identical. (Comp. also Eitner.)

By comparison I find that the text is a pasticcio text. Much of the dialogue is identical with Silvio Stampiglia's "La Rosmira fedele." Also a few arias are identical with arias in this, but most are not, and of these quite a few can be traced to Metastasio.

Paris, Prault fils, 1753. 31 p. 19cm.

En vaudevilles. In the Avertissement (p. [4-5]) the authors say:

"Parlons maintenant d'une autre pièce qui s'est débitée à Paris dans l'intervalle des deux foires, intitulée de même: Le Rossignol, opera comique, représenté pour la première fois sur le théâtre de Rouen, le 8 octobre 1751, & imprimé dans la même ville en 1752.

"Ce titre annonçant à notre Rossignol, un rival d'autant plus dangereux qu'il paroît fortifié du droit d'aînesse, les deux auteurs se sont, comme on peut croire, empressés à le lire, & ce n'est pas sans surprise, qu'entr'autres imitations, ils y ont vu un de leurs couplets, copié presque en entier . . . Il est question du monologue "Que pour mon coeur ces lieux ont d'attraits . . . Or, comme il seroit difficile de se persuader qu'une ressemblance si parfait soit un pur effet du hazard, les deux auteurs appréhendant, avec raison, que le reproche d'un plagiat aussi caractérisé ne retomât sur eux, ont fait toutes les démarches nécessaires pour éclaircir la vérité; & ils ont été assez heureux pour recouvrer un des doubles de la pièce de Rouen, revêtu de l'approbation d'un censeur de Paris, dans lequel double, le couplet, dont il s'agit, n'existe point, ce qui est une preuve, sans réplique, que cet auteur l'a ajouté après coup, & que c'est lui par conséquent qui est le plagiaire . . ."

They then ask the public to choose between their "Rossignol de Paris" and the "Rossignol provincial." According to Parfaict (see t. vii):

"L'avis au lecteur qui précède la pièce est fait pour justifier les auteurs de l'accusation d'avoir pris l'idée & même quelques morceaux d'une pièce du même nom, composée par M. Bavières de Rouen . . ."

Clément and de Laporte give Baillère as the name of the author. They and Schatz attribute the text of the Parisian Rossignol to the abbé de Latteignant and others. Schatz does not mention the composer, resp. the arranger, of the music. According to Schatz there was played on November 18, 1751, at Berny, at the palace of the comte de Clermont a one-act comédie mêlée d'ariettes by Charles Collé, music by J. B. de La Borde, which might easily be confused with the two other Rossignols, since its title was "Rossignol ou Le mariage secret."

Sancho at court. By a gentleman late of Trinity College, Dublin. As it was design'd to be acted at Drury Lane.

2 p. l., 56 p. 19^{cm}.

Title page wanting. Title copied from Tufts, who says under 1742 "Ascribed to James Ayres." I have found the opera mentioned also with the title "Sancho at court or The mock governor."

Three acts. Ballad opera, the 20 airs in which are indicated by title. In a preface, the bookseller, Mr. Torbuck, tells the reader that

"The author is a gentleman of Trinity College, Dublin, who has publish'd several small pieces that have had a favourable reception, and, as I am inform'd, is in no small reputation with the inimitable Dean, who, as he himself told me, had the inspection and chastisement of the play"

He goes on to say that he submitted the piece to the manager of Drury-Lane, who advised judicious cuts and who recommended Chetwood for the purpose. This was done, but when the piece was submitted to the Chamberlain's office with Chetwood's alterations, no answer was forthcoming from the censor for eight months, and when Torbuck wanted the manuscript back he "could not have it, it being left at a place not then to be come at." Thereupon he decided to print the piece. He winds up by saying:

"However, the trouble I have had in this affair will be a sufficient caution to me (and may be so to others) not to undertake the bringing a play on the stage; for as things are now circumstanced, viz. the approbation of the players, the licensing-office and the ill-natur'd critic, not to say any thing of the publick, an author has but a small chance of succeeding." Leipzig, Wilhelm Heinsius der jungere, 1793. 118, [1] p. 16^{cm}.

Der schiffspatron—Continued.

On p. [103]–118, signed “Ostermesse, 1793. C.,” the editor’s reasons for subjecting the original text to such a thorough revision. To prove “die geschmacklosigkeit des alten textes,” he then quotes several scenes of the original version. For instance, the opera began, “Amtmann: Doch unmasgeblich meynt das Oberamt” instead of, as in his version, “Der Schöpfer. Hiermit wird männiglich heut publicirt,” and instead of the aria,

“O Eifersucht! O Eifersucht Mein Herz willst Du zerstören!”

he has:

“O Eifersucht! O Eifersucht!
Du Qual verliebter Herzen.”

In general, he says: “habe ich dem ganzen mehr haltung zu geben, und die scenen überhaupt besser zu verbinden gesucht.”

Schatz attributes the original version to Johann Friedrich Jünger, and mentions a later version, “neubearbeitet,” by Vulpius. SCHATZ 2607

Mannheim, C. F. Schwan und G. C. Goetz, 1790. 92 p. 18^{cm}.

Prefatory note, dated Mannheim, January 20, 1790, by the author, Christian Friedrich Schwan, who says that about twenty years previously he translated from the French the popular comedy, "Der kaufmann von Smyrna." This he subsequently turned into a one-act singspiel, produced successfully with Vogler's music at Mannheim, but it could not be continued, because Vogler went to Italy with the only score. In the meantime Carl David Stegmann (1773) published the vocal score of his own setting of the text, and in 1775 Andreas Holly his. Schwan continues:

"Dadurch wurde nun dieses kleine singspiel allgemeiner gemacht, und verschiedene Jahre lang auf mehreren buchnen gegeben, bis es endlich auch wie andere seines gleichen, nach und nach in vergessenheit gerieth.

"Ich lasse es nun auf veranlassung eines unserer hiesigen schon ruehmlich bekanten tonkuenstlers, zum dritten male in einer sehr veraenderten gestalt, und in einem etwas laengerem gewande, unter dem titel, Der sclavenhaendler, auf der buehne erscheinen."

Three acts. Dedication by the author, conte Niccolò Minato and dated Venice, January 16, 1668, argument, scenario, and notice to the reader:

"Questo drama comparve fin hora mascherato sotto simulatione di cittadino del cielo di Napoli; hora ch'egli è stato eletto à nuovamente servirli, no hò gusto, ch'egli rimanga con l'oscura nota d'occulti, e menzogneri natali. Egli è parto di quella stessa penna, che ti fece vedere il Xerse, L'Artemisia, L'Antioco, Lo Scipione, il Mutio, il Pompeo & ultimamente la Caduta, e la Prosperità di Seiano. L'autore nascose volontieri la di lui origine all' hora che doveva farlo comparire insieme col suo Pompeo, temendo, che, se fossero ambo stati conosciuti per figli d'una senna medesima, potesse egli restar ripreso di partialità con l'uno più, che con l'altro."

The composer, Antonio Sartorio, is not mentioned.

Three acts. Argument. No composer mentioned. Same as his "Semiramide."

This is one of the texts which Metastasio later on partly rewrote. Here are a few telling differences: The original version has in I, 6 the aria "Maggior follia non v'è," which the later version dropped. In I, 8 of the original version the scene begins with "Amico, in rivederti" and has the aria "Come all' amiche arene"; in the later version the scene begins "Come! e tu non ravoisi" and has no aria. In the original version I, 10 begins "Signor, brama Scitalce" and has no aria, in the later version it begins "Signor, quali predici" and has the aria "Se intende si poco" which occurs in the original version in I, 11.

Three acts and licenza. Argument, scenario, and names of Metastasio as the author, of Joh. Ad. Hasse as the composer. French title page, "Semiramis," and text face Italian, which is neither quite the same as in the Dresden version of 1747, nor as in the original Venice version of 1745. For instance, the aria, "Ardo per te d'amore," in I, 11 of Venice ed. has been replaced by "Se intende si poco" of the Dresden ed. On the other hand, the additional arias in I, 6 and I, 12 of the Dresden version have been dropped, and the original text has been restored.

Napoli, Stamperia Avelliniana, 1769. 72 p. 15½^{cm}.

Three acts. Cast, name of Paisiello as the composer, and preface by the author, Pasquale Mililotti, in which he says that the impresario was compelled to abandon his plan of presenting a new work and "di replicare la presente commedia, tanto, pochi anni sono, dall' eccellentissima nobiltà e dal pubblico compatita; ed acciocchè possa maggiormente aggradire, come spera, ha procurato di farla in buona parte innovare sì di poesia, come di musica, come si osserverà da chi cortese degnasse di leggerla."

Accordingly, these performances of 1769 can not have been the first, at least not in the original form of the opera, and it is known that the title of the original dialect version was "Le mbroglie de le bajasse."

Napoli, Vincenzo Flauto, n. d. 58 p. 15^{cm}.

Two acts. Cast and name of Niccolò Piccinni as the composer. On p. 3 this anonymous note:

"Il presente dramma è una imitazione, o sia estratto del libro intitolato le Nozze di Figaro. Nell' originale francese l'azione fu condotta da sedici interlocutori, e poi dal Sig. ab. da Ponte questi si ridussero a undici . . . ora comparisce sopra queste scene ristretta l'azione a sei attori."

According to Schatz Giambattista Lorenzi is responsible for this version.

La serva padrona. Intermezzo per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro Giustinian di S. Mosè.

Venezia, Modesto Fenzo, 1748. 20 p. (incl. front.). 14½ cm.

Two parts. Neither Gennaro Antonio Federico is mentioned as author, nor G. B. Pergolesi as the composer. Cast. The text is exactly the same as in the score edited at Paris by Rousseau in 1752. It agrees also, it seems, with the text of the original libretto (Naples, 1733) as analyzed by Radiciotti, except that the final duet, "Per te io ho nel core," has been substituted from act III of Pergolesi's "Flaminio" for the original final duet of "La Serva Padrona," "Contento tu sarai." In the replicas, "Per te io ho nel core" appears to have been used oftener than the original.

The libretto contains (arias in italics):

- (Int. I) 1. Aspettare e non venire.
Questa è per me disgrazia.
2. Sempre in contrasti.
In somma delle somme.
3. Stizzoso, mio.
Benissimo, hai tu inteso?
4. Lo conosco a quelli occhietti (duet).
(Int. II) Or che fatto.
5. A Serpina penserete.
Ah quanto mi.
6. Son imbrogliato io già.
Favorisca, signor, passi.
7. Per te ho io nel core (duet).

First performed at Naples, Teatro di S. Bartolomeo, August 28, 1733.

— La serva padrona, intermezzo per musica. Stampato a spese degli musicisti italiani e riveduto da Marco Soralli, maestro della lingua italiana.

n. i., n. d. 63 p. 16½ cm.

An altered version of Pergolesi's 2-act intermezzo. Soralli or somebody else made this version begin with an "Intermezzo primo. SERPINA E ANTIMONIO. Serp. 'Di grazia signore conte.'" After this comes the original "Intermezzo primo," and called such! The second intermezzo is followed by "Intermezzo terzo. UBERTO, POI SERPINA, etc. Uber. 'Il prender moglie.'" in which again the conte figures. Apparently two different works were combined to produce this hybrid affair. German title page, "Die herrschende magd," and text face Italian.

First performed at Frankfort a/M, Theaterbude am Rossmarkt, April 4, 1755, by the opera company of prince Thurn & Taxis under the management of Girolamo Bon.

Pergolesi is not mentioned. On p. 3, this four-liner:

"A M^{lle} Favart.
Nature un jour épousa l'art;
De leurs amours naquit Favart.
Qui semble tenir de sa mere.
Tout ce qu'elle doit à son pere."

The parody resp. transl. was by N. Baurans, who is not mentioned.

The score was published by the widow Delormel. Both the score and the libretto contain the arias

I, 1. Longtemps attendre (=1 in La Serva Padrona).

I, 2. Eh bien! Fimras tu? (source unknown to Wotquenne).

Sans fins, sans cesse (=2 in S. P.).

Eh, mais ne fait-il pas? (=3 in S. P.).

Je devine a ces yeux (=4 in S. P.).

II, 1. Vous gentilles jeunes filles (According to Wotquenne=Donne belle che bramate in "Amor mascherato," intermezzo by unknown composer).

II, 2. Charmant espoir qui nous (Source unknown to Wotquenne).

II, 3. A Zerbine laissés par grace (=5 in S. P.).

II, 4. Quel est mon embarras (=6 in S. P.).

II, 5. Me seras tu fidèle? (= Contento tu sarai, the original final duet of S. P.).

"La serva padrona" was first performed at Paris, Comédie italienne, October 4, 1746, with an overture by Paganelli, and again at Paris, Academie royale de musique, with an overture by Telemann on August 1, 1752, before a ballet-pantomime and after Lully's "Acis et Galatée." SCHATZ 7895

Sieg der schoenheit, in einem singspiele auf dem Hamburgischen Schau-Platz vorgestellt 1722.

Hamburg, Philipp Ludwig Stromer, n. d. Unpaged. 18^{cm}.

Three acts. According to Schatz, originally written by Christian Heinrich Postel as "Der grosse könig der afrikanischen Wenden Gensericus als Roms und Karthagos ueberwinder," but first performed at Hamburg in 1693 as "Gensericus," with music by Johann Georg Conradi. The text was then partly rewritten by Weichmann, and further altered for the performances of 1722 by Georg Philip Telemann, who composed the new music. Under its original title, "Der grosse koenig," etc., Telemann's version of Conradi's opera was then performed at Braunschweig in February, 1725. It was repeated, so Schatz claims, at Braunschweig in February, 1732, as "Sieg der schoenheit." Schatz' statements do not quite agree with those of Ottzenn, who, in his monograph on Telemann, mentions a score preserved at Berlin headed "Genserich Opera, so zu Braunschweig anno 1732, in der Winter Messe representiret worden. Componirt von kapellmeister Telemann in Hamburg." This would seem to imply that Telemann composed an opera, "Genserich," performed at Braunschweig in 1732, and that this opera is not identical with Conradi's "Sieg der schoenheit," as revised by Telemann.

Cast, scenario, and avertissement, which indicates cuts and states:

"Ferner hat man für gut befunden [das] in der dritten handlung am ende des zehenden auftritts befindliche [Ballet] nicht vorzustellen, an dessen statt aber soll vor dem schluss-chore ein Gr[and] Balleten chaconne von den sämtlichen taentzern und taentzerinnen hin [zu] gefueget und also das gantze werck mit solcher pracht geschlossen werden, [wie] es anfaenget."

The siege of Rhodes: the first and second part; as they were lately represented at His Highness the Duke of York's Theatre in Lincolns-Inn Fields. The first part being lately enlarg'd. Written by Sir William D'avenant.

London, Printed for Henry Herringman . . . 1663. 4 p. l., 46 p., 1 l., [2], 61, [2] p. 22^{cm}.

Signatures: pt. 1: A in four, A₂-F in fours; pt. 2: 2 l. unsigned, B-I in fours.

The second part has special t.-p. and separate paging.

The first part consists of "Entry" first to fifth, preceded by the author's dedication to the Earl of Clarendon, and "The persons represented." The second part consists of five acts, prologue, and epilogue.

This edition contains no allusion to the fact that this was (practically) the first opera produced by D'avenant in 1656 after he obtained permission "for the performance of operas." Especially does this edition not contain the particulars given in the first edition of the libretto, 1656. (See Prendergast in "English music," 1906), as, for instance, "a representation by the art of prospective in scenes, and the story sung in recitative musick," nor that the vocal music of the first and fifth "entry" of the first part was composed by Henry Lawes, of the second and third, by Captain Henry Cook, and the fourth, by Matthew Locke, nor further, that the instrumental music was composed by Charles Coleman and George Hudson. The music of this first English opera seems to be lost.

Three acts. Cast, scenario, argument, and name of the composer, Domenico Fischietti.

The author of the text is not mentioned, but comparison showed it to be a rifacimento of Metastasio's text for Porpora's "Siface," which itself was but a rifacimento of some earlier text by unknown author. (See below.) Metastasio's dialogue was kept largely intact, but most of his arias have disappeared and others were replaced by texts from other operas of his. For instance I, 4 "Potria fra tanto" if from his Siface—Continued.

"Achille in Sciro," II, 4 "Più temer non posso ormai" from his "Ipermestra," II, 8 "Io veggio in lontananza" from his "Semiramide." Fischietti's "Siface" has in I, 2 "Della mia sorte altera," Porpora's I, 2 has "Se ti scopro il foco mio," Fischietti's II, 3 has no aria, Porpora's II, 3 has "Porto è vero il sen piagato," Fischietti's II, 4 has "Più temer non deve ormai," Porpora's has "Come nave in mezzo all' onde" and Porpora's III, 9 "Quel basso vapore" was moved to III, 7. Other original "Siface" arias in Fischietti's opera are "Son pellegrin errante" (II, 5), "Rendimi i lacei miei" (II, 11), "Sempre in soglio" (final chorus). "A gli oltraggi della sorte" (II, 14) which is listed by Wotquenne as from Zeno's "Ornospade" (I, 1) appears in Fischietti's "Siface" in II, 13 and in Porpora's "Siface" in II, 14!

It should be noted that Schatz claims Porpora not to have been the first to compose Metastasio's "Siface." He records a setting by Francesco Feo for Naples, Teatro di S. Bartolomeo, spring 1723.

The date in the imprint is a misprint, as the first performance took place as indicated, on April 29, 1761.

Venezia, Marino Rossetti, 1726. 60 p. 15cm.

Three acts.

No author is mentioned. Quadrio was the first to attribute the text to Metastasio, who then had this to say about his authorship in a letter written on June 29, 1772, to abate Vincenzo Cammillo Alberti:

"E un dramma fatto senza volerlo fare: l'idea era di raffazzonare un antico libretto a istanza del maestro Porpora (but see above) e nel raffazzonarlo fu interamente cambiato . . . ma pure non è mio, ben chè non credo che vi sia rimasto alcun verso del primo autore."

It is unknown to me whose text Metastasio undertook to raffazzonar. However, it is a curious fact that the aria "A gli oltraggi della sorte" in II, 14 of "Siface" also occurs and only slightly different in I, 1 of Zeno's Ornospade! This fact was overlooked by Wotquenne, who failed to incorporate several "Siface" arias in his "Verzeichnis" (See above Fischietti's Siface.)

London, P. Vaillant, J. Bouquet, [etc.], 1753. vii, [1], 39, [1] p. 19^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication by Samuel Derrick, dated London, July 11, 1753, translation of Tagliazucchi's "address to the reader," in which he makes it clear that he simply translated the French prose text by Frederick the Great in order to adapt it to the "beauties of Italian music" and to render it fit for a theatrical representation," and "A short account of Sylla." Graun, the composer, is not mentioned. English text only.

Not performed in England.

Three acts. Argument and cast. English text faces the Italian. Neither Metastasio, the author of "Siroe" (as in caption title), nor Johann Adolph Hasse, the supposed composer, is mentioned. (See next entry.)

First performed, as indicated, November 23, 1736.

SCHATZ 4587

— Siroe, dramma per musica da rappresentarsi nel Regio Teatro di Dresda per il gloriosissimo giorno di nome di Sua Maestà Augusto III . . . La poesia è del Sig. abbate Metastasio. La musica è del Sig. Hasse . . .

Dresda, Stamperia regia, 1763. 3 p. l., 87, [2] p. 17^{cm}.

Three acts and licenza. Argument and scenario. Schatz and Mennicke call this Hasse's second version of the text, which is not quite the same as in the London (1736) edition. For instance, London has, in I, 1, the aria, "Dovea svenarti allora" (from Metastasio's Catone in Utica), whereas Dresden has "Se il mio paterno amore;" London has, in I, 3, the aria, "Dille pur che il suo riposo," which is not in the Dresden edition, and is not by Metastasio at all; Dresden has, in I, 5, the aria, "D'ogni amator la fede," whereas London has "Ancor io pensai d'amore," which is also not by Metastasio; Dresden has, in I, 8, the aria, "O placido il mare," whereas London has "Nel cor il mio pensier," which is not by Metastasio. Considering that Metastasio's dialogue has been freely tampered with, and that so many arias are neither from his "Siroe" nor by him at all, it becomes clear that this London "Siroe" (by Schatz and Mennicke so-called first version of the "Siroe" text) was really a pasticcio, and though Hasse presumably composed the new numbers, at its best, a Hasse pasticcio, though Burney (IV, 400) says: "Composed by Hasse. This is the first time that I ever perceived the composer of an opera named in the advertisements and bills of the day."

First performed at Dresden, as indicated, August 3, 1763.

The sot. A burletta, in two parts. As it is performed at the Theatre Royal in the Hay market. Altered from Fielding. The music composed by Dr. Arne.

London, Cox and Bigg, 1775. 2 p. l., [1], 10-35 p. 20½^{cm}.

The caption title is "'Squire Savage. Part the first.'" The prefatory advertisement reads:

"The characters and design of this piece are taken from a ballad opera, written by Henry Fielding, Esq.

"Some of the songs are likewise written by that celebrated author; but many others, with the quintetto and chorus necessarily added, and the measure of the dialect is obliged to be changed throughout, on account of its being delivered in recitative.

"Dr. Arne is sensible of the disadvantage attending all dramatic performances, deprived of their greatest ornaments, viz.—Action, characteristic, dress and scenes; but a restrictive Act of Parliament, (intended chiefly to prevent strolling vagabonds from infesting the town with their paltry attempts; but no way meant to suppress native genius, when displayed by persons of undoubted establishment and reputation) has unfortunately prevented the Dr. from displaying his productions in the most advantageous manner, he humbly hopes (supposing it was difficult to draw a line between the two extremes) that the public, ever favourable and indulgent, will, as in oratorios, by the assistance of printed books, supply with their ever fertile imagination, this unavoidable deficiency which, as now, will hereafter give him a fair opportunity to exert his best endeavours towards the entertainment of his gracious patrons, without infringing the interdicts of the said Act."

The piece was advertised for first performance on March 16, 1772, as "a new burletta, called 'Squire Badger'" (Cummings), and, according to Clarence, was printed in 1772 under that title.

The Spanish lady, a musical entertainment, in two acts. Founded on the plan of the old ballad. As perform'd at the Theatre Royal in Covent-Garden . . .

London, J. Cooper, n. d. 35 p. 18½^{cm}.

Cast, dedication, and preface dated, Theatre-Royal, Covent-Garden, December 8, 1769, which reads in part:

"The following scenes were written on receiving the news of a signal conquest, gained in the Spanish West Indies, by the English forces in the year 1762, and intended as a small tribute to the noble family who had the direction of that important expedition. It was accordingly licensed and rehearsed, when some public commotions in the theatrical world, prevented the intended exhibition; since which, it has been once acted for a performer's benefit.

"It has now undergone some few changes and abridgments, and is to be considered merely as the story of the Spanish lady, in a dramatic dress . . . With the aid of the music (which has been selected under the inspection of an eminent composer), it is hoped the piece may not prove unentertaining to a delicate and susceptible mind . . ."

The author, Thomas Hull, is not mentioned. The composer, who selected the music, is not recorded by W. Barclay Squire.

First performed May 2, 1765, as indicated.

Pirna, Arnold und Pinther, 1799. 2 p. l., 80 p. 15^{cm}.

Name of Portogallo as composer, and translator's preface, dated Dresden, May, 1799, in which he says that Brocchi selected Portugal's opera, "Lo spazzacamino," for his debut at Pillnitz (near Dresden), with great success. He then continues:

"Hier sahe sie der bearbeiter derselben mit vergnuegen und glaubte dem teutschen operntheater nicht unnuetz zu werden, wenn er ihm dies lustige machwerk eignete.

"Dies geschahe mit mannichfaltigen noethigen abaenderungen des plans, mit veredlung des karakters der Donna Flora, der, unter der welschen maske, dem sittlichen vaterlaendischen zuschauer schwerlich behagen konnte und mit vertheilung einer handlung in zwei; jedoch unter beibehaltung der ganzen lokalitaet und der schoenen musik."

First performed at Dresden, Theater vor dem schwarzen Thore, May 22, 1799.

Lo spazzacamino principe. Commedia con musica divisa in due atti' e tolta dal francese da rappresentarsi nel Teatro di Monza l'autunno 1790 . . .

Milano, Gaetano Motta, n. d. 4 p. l., 68 p. 16^{cm}.

Two acts. Dedication by the impresario, Antonio Puttini, in which he calls this "uno spettacolo che è il primo di questo genere, che compaja in Italia." The author, Giuseppe Carpani, who is not mentioned by name, takes his mouth still more full in his notice to the public. He, too, insists on the novelty saying of his version of "Le ramoneur prince:"

"non vi avendo musica, si poteva, col farvela tra noi, riunire per la prima volta ai pregi dell' opera francese la pompa, e le attrattive della musica italiana, e dar così uno spettacolo, o signori, novissimo e ben degno di voi, e che imitato venendo produrrebbe all' Italia una quantità di attori, ed arricchir potrebbe di bellissime commedie alla musica accomodate."

On a slip pasted on p. l. 4, the note: "La musica sarà tutta nuova del cel. Sig. maestro Angelo Tarchi." With the opera was performed (composer of the music not mentioned) Urbano Garzia's ballet, "La cosa rara."

Venezia, Modesto Fenzo, 1755. 48 p. 14½^{cm}.

Three acts. By Goldoni. Impresario's dedication, cast, scenario, names of Vincenzo Pallavicini and Domenico Fischietti as composers, and notice to the reader, which reads:

"Ponendosi nel frontispizio il nome arcadico dell' autore, ben conosciuto, ha egli desiderato, che si faccia sapere al mondo, essere stato da lui composto il presente libretto tre anni sono in Bologna ad istanza del Sig. Francesco Baglioni e del Sig. Francesco Carratoli, in tempo che colà trovavasi colla compagnia del Sig. Girolamo Medebac.

"Tale protesta intende egli di fare per sua giustificazione verso di quelli, che lo caricano ingiustamente aver trascurato di scrivere per il Comico suo Teatro per lucrare con altri. Egli ha libertà di scrivere per teatri di musica. Il Filosofo di Campagna lo ha scritto nella Quaresima passata, in tempo, che non potea prevedere la malattia sofferta per cinque mesi. Ma a chi mai rende egli conto di ciò la gente oziosa, e maligna, che non ha che fare con lui."

First performed, according to Schatz, at Milan, Regio Ducal Teatro, 1754, but see above the entry from Goldoni's works.

— Der spiegel von Arkadien. Eine heroisch-komische oper in zwei aufzuegen. Unter dem titel: Die neuen Arkadier neubearbeitet und zum erstenmal auf dem Hoftheater zu Weimar den 2. februar 1796 aufgefuehrt. Die musik ist von Franz Suessmeyer.

This title page followed by a special t.-p. with the new title.

In his "Vorrede," Christian August Vulpius (not mentioned) under date of "Weimar, am tage Renata, 1796" says:

"Wer das original dieser oper kennt, deren bearbeitung ich hier liefere, der wird finden, was ich dabei geleistet habe, oder nicht. Ich habe anderswo (In den Rheinischen Musen, 5 bd., 1 St. S. 67-72) als ich diese arbeit begann, schon etwas darueber gesagt."

Vulpius then takes issue with Schikaneder for having given the piece an incorrect title, for having made of Arcadia an island and other such silly and absurd nonsense, and he continues:

"Der dialog aller handelnden personen ist groesstentheils ganz neu fuer gesittete und deutsche zuschauer geschrieben worden und die verse sind allenthalben abgeandert . . . Freilich, die musik war da und der neue text musste derselben erst angepasst werden, und daher kamen die fesseln, in die ich mich sehr ungen schmiegen musste."

— Der spiegelritter, eine oper in drey aufzuegen.

n. i., n. d. front., [321]-448 p.

Obviously detached from some volume of an edition (before 1800?) of August von Kotzebue's collected works, as the opera libretto is followed on p. [449]-476, by his "Einige zuege aus dem leben des guten Musaeus von der hand seines schuelers entworfen." In the "Vorbericht" to the opera, Kotzebue says:

"Man hat mich oft aufgefordert, doch auch einmal eine oper nach heutigem zuschnitt zu verfertigen, und da habe ich denn endlich eine gemacht. Der leser wird hoffentlich finden, dass sie eben so naerrisch und abentheuerlich und albern ist, als ihre aeltern geschwister auf der deutschen buehne. Unter allen operibus eines schriftstellers ist eine solche oper das leichteste opus. Der himmel mache mich so gluecklich, als er die herren Eberl & consorten gemacht hat; das heisst: er schenke meinem Spiegelritter eine musik, wie die der Dittersdorffe, Mozart's, Martin's oder Reichard's, so wird sich der bursche wohl durch die welt helfen."

Sprigs of laurel: a comic opera. In two acts. As performed, with universal applause, at the Theatre-Royal, Covent-Garden. Written by John O'Keefee[!] . . .

London, H. S. Woodfall, 1793. 3 p. l., 47 p. 20cm.

Cast, author's dedication, dated April 6, 1793, and "A card," dated Brompton, May 21, 1793, which reads:

"Mr. O'Keefe owes his first thought of writing this piece, to a circumstance he had heard of a sentinel quitting his post, to follow the detachment from the Guards when it embarked at Greenwich: But whether a fact, or fiction, he is happy if it has afforded any pleasure from the popularity of the occasion, the sweet melodies of Mr. Shield, and the zealous exertion of the respective performers." Longman & Broderip's vocal score says: "Consisting of German, Scotch, Irish, and English airs, one by a nobleman and others by Handel, Anfossi, and Shield."

First performed, as indicated, May 11, 1793, and, according to Genest, in an altered version as "The rival soldiers," at the same theatre, May 17, 1797. LONGE 225

The Spring. Pastoral as it is now performing at the Theatre Royal in Drury Lane. The music by Mr. Handel, and other eminent masters . . .

London, T. Davies, n. d. 16 p. 21½^{cm}.

Two acts. Text by James Harris, who is not mentioned in the Advertisement, which reads:

"As this pastoral was not originally designed for the theatre, it is thought proper to give the public some account of it, and by what means it has now found its way to the stage.

"The chorusses and airs were selected from Mr. Handel and several other eminent masters, by a gentleman whose taste and knowledge in music, is perhaps his least merit.

"Having conceived the design of a musical entertainment of this miscellaneous nature, he found himself obliged, in order to introduce the several airs and chorusses with propriety, to connect them by a recitative of his own composition: This naturally produced a kind of little drama; and the ease and elegance of the whole, is the more to be admired, when it is considered that the words were of necessity composed in perfect subservience to the music.

"The piece has been several times performed at Salisbury, and been greatly admired by many of the first rank and other acknowledged judges of music. The author, upon Mr. Norris (who performed a capital part in the pastoral) being engaged at the theatre, was applied to for leave to bring it on the stage, to which, he has most obligingly given his consent . . ."

The text is the same as of "Daphne and Amaryllis," 1766 (Longe 293).

First performed at Drury Lane October 22, 1762.

The springs glory, a maske. Together with sundry poems, epigrams, elegies, and epithalamiums. By Thomas Nabbs.

London, Printed by J. Dawson, 1639. 51 unnumbered p. 17½^{cm}.

Second ed. Includes his "A presentation intended for the Prince his Highnesse on his birthday the 29 of May 1638," partly to be sung and danced. The text of the masque is preceded by Thomas Nabbes' dedication to "Guglielmo Balle [William Ball] filio natu majori Petri Balle armigeri" (therefore not dedicated to Peter Ball!), a dedicatory poem by "C. G. Oxon" to Nabbes and one by Robert Chamberlaine to Nabbes. No allusion to a composer is made. No performance recorded by Clarence.

The state of innocence, and fall of man: an opera. Written in heroick verse; and dedicated to Her Royal Highness the Dutchess. By John Dryden . . .

London, Printed by H. H. for H. Herringman, 1684. 8 p. l., 33, [2] p. 22½^{cm}.

"The author's apology for heroick poetry, and poetick licence" ([8] p. preceding p. 1) contains first Dryden's reasons for publishing "an opera which was never acted." One of them was his desire to protect his reputation as a poet:

"many hundred copies of it being dispers'd abroad, without my knowledge or consent; so that every one gathering new faults, it became at length a libel against me . . ."

This treatise is preceded by a poem "To Mr. Dryden, on his poem of Paradise" and by Dryden's dedication. At the end a two-page publisher's catalogue. No mention is made of a composer or of a performance and none are recorded.

Napoli, Salvatore Votto, n. d. 5 p. l., 66, [1] p. 14^{cm}.

Three acts. Impresario's dedication, notice to the reader, argument, cast, and scenario. Is Zeno and Pariati's "La Statira" as altered by Carlo de Pretis. The usual excuse is made to the "Amico Lettore," in which notice Giuseppe Vignola is named as the composer of the additional matter. Gasparini is not mentioned at all. A most unusual feature of this libretto is that on the additional page the arias by Giuseppe Vignola are enumerated by first line, i. e. (Act I) "Dalle pupille della mia bella," "Si, si consolami," "Fiero addio"; (Act II) "Pupille del mio bene," "Disperato questo core," "Co i lacci del tuo amor"; (Act III) "Di morte non cura il rigore," "Si godi, o cor," "Bella mi parto," "Cari sassi," "Scherza ridi," "Aure belle," "e tutte le scene buffe." Three acts. Argument, cast, scenario, name of Giuseppe Scolari as composer, and Goldoni's, as always, charming dedication "alle nobilissime dame Veneziane," in which he says:

"Allora quando (Eccellentissime dame) su queste scene medesime fu per la prima volta rappresentata la mia Statira, nell' anno 1741, questo piccolo dramma era parto d'un' uomo che dir potevasi principiante, e da pochissimi conosciuto . . . Non mi sarei mai creduto vederla, dopo il corso di quindici anni, tratta dall' urna delle opere dimenticate, per farla nuovamente comparir sul teatro. So chi mi ha fatto sì bel regalo; non ho potuto impedirlo, ma non vuò nemmeno dissimulare la dispiacenza, che ne risento. Ora quell' uomo, incognito nel 1741, è conosciuto un po' troppo per suo malanno, e se in allora quest' operetta ebbe la fortuna che di lei si parlasse poco, ora chi sa, che di lei non si parli troppo? . . . Il zelo dunque di mia reputazione, il rispetto, che devo al pubblico . . . mi hanno stimolato a rivederlo, ad accrescerlo, a riformarlo, cosicchè poco del primo scheletro vi è rimasto . . ."

"Aggiugnesi alle altre imperfezioni di questo dramma quella di essere in cinque personaggi soltanto, per accomodarsi alla brevità ricercata dalla stagione. Ma ciò sarebbe il minor male, se fosse poi ben tessuto, e dolcemente scritto; io non so fare nell' una, nè l'altra di queste due. Quando scrivo per musica l'ultimo, a cui pensi, son io medesimo. Penso agli attori, penso al maestro di capella moltissimo, penso al piacere degli uditori in teatro, e se i miei drammi si vedessero rappresentate soltanto, e non venissero letti, spererei migliore destino . . ."

Prologue and five acts with five intermedi. Author's dedication dated September 2, 1617, sonnets by the author "alla sua tragedia," and to cardinal Capponi, to whom the text is dedicated, by Paolo Forti to the author, by the latter to the "signori protettori nel recitarsi la sua tragedia," argument and notice to the reader containing this protesta, certainly one of the earliest on record:

"E dove si ritroveranno in questo mio poema le voci fate, sorti, Dei, eterno, Angelo, & simili si dovranno intendere conforme al' uso poetico; imperchoe io voglio sottopormi sempre à l'ubbidienza de la santa Romana Chiesa . . ."

briefly states his reasons for his own one-act version. He begins his "Notes" with these remarks:

"Ces especes de traductions devoient être moins rares: outre qu'elles rendroient notre scene lyrique plus variée, elles empêcheroient les larcins continuels d'une partie de nos musiciens, & aiguileroient l'émulation de l'autre."

On p. 38-52, the airs: "À votre âge, ce langage" (sc. 2), "Loin de son berger" (sc. 6), "En amour un tel hommage" (x 8).

Mannheim, C. F. Schwan, 1773. 72, [4] p. 14^{cm}.

The unnumb. p. contain advertising matter.

One act. Translated by Johann Joachim Eschenburg, who is not mentioned. He says in his preface:

"Die italiaenische operette selbst [Gli Stravaganti, perf. there 1772] hat mit gegenwaertiger ausser der anlage, die ueberhaupt nicht viel sagen will, sehr wenig aehnliches. Man hat nur die musik nutzen wollen und ist also von dem original so oft abgewichen, als es der deutsche plan zu erfordern schien. Ein hiesiger geschickter theatraldichter machte zuerst eine franzoesische nachahmung, die auch mit der musik gestochen worden; diese ist gewissermassen, besonders was die arien betrifft, hier zum grunde gelegt worden. Es wird immer zum voraus gesetzt, dass man den hrn. Piccini hoeren will, wenn man sich bei der vorstellung dieses stueckes einfindet und nicht den dichter, auf den man, wenn er noch so harmonisch gereimt haette kaum acht haben wird.

"Bey originalstuecken geht der dichter voran und der componist folgt ihm. Bey uebersetzungen aber und nachahmungen muss sich der dichter nach der bereits vorhandenen musik bequemen . . ."

First performed at Mannheim, Brettertheater auf dem Fruchtmarkt, by Theod. Marchand's company, January, 1773.

— Il Bajazet. Dramma per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro dell' illustrissimo pubblico di Reggio in occasione della fiera l'anno MDCCLXIX . . .

Reggio, Ippolito Vedrotti, 1719. 77 p. 16½^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication dated Reggio, April 29, 1719, argument, Protesta, cast, scenario, and name of Carlo Francesco Gasparini as the composer. ("La musica è nuova.") The author, conte Agostino Piovene, is not mentioned, a considerably altered adaptation of whose "Tamerlano" this "Bajazet" is said to be in the Protesta, "particolarmente nell' arie, che sempre esigono d'essere accomodate a' nuovi musici." For instance, Tamur has been dropped from the list of characters and that of Clearco has been added. The aria ending scene IV, act I, "Custodite per mia figlia," has become "Forte, e lieto a morte andrei," the third scene begins "Un lieto annunzio" instead of "Prencipe, or orai i Greci," the third act has seventeen scenes instead of fifteen, etc., etc. Though the music is said to be new, presumably this is to be taken with a grain of salt. Probably "Il Bajazet" was not Gasparini's second setting of the Tamerlano text, but his first and only setting of the text with other music where the texts differed. Perhaps "Il Bajazet" was in reality a pasticcio.

Tamerlano: Drama. Da rappresentarsi nel Regio Teatro di Hay-Market, per La Reale Accademia di musica.

London, Printed and sold at the King's Theatre in the Hay-Market, 1724. 6 p. l., [3], 4-99 p. 18^{cm}.

Three acts. Cast, argument, text both in Italian and in English. (Half-title on 1st p. l. is "Tamerlane, an opera.") The dedication in Italian only. In it Nicola [Francesco] Haym says:

"Avendo io per ubbidire agli ordini de' miei nobilissimi padroni i signori direttori della Reale Accademia di musica, accomodato per il loro teatro la presente opera di Tamerlano . . ."

Consequently, Haym did not claim to have been the author of the text, as charged in Grove's Dictionary and elsewhere. He does not mention conte Agostino Piovene nor the composer, Georg Friedrich Händel. English translation faces Italian text.

First performed at London, as indicated, October 31, 1724.

Three acts. By Apostolo Zenò. Impresario's dedication, argument, cast, scenario, name of Fortunato Chelleri as composer, and this notice to the reader, which covers a current practice of the time:

"Il presente Temistocle è un' azzione scenica fatta in Vienna per il giorno natalizio della S. C. R. M. di Leopoldo Primo Imperatore de Romani l'anno 1701, e per potere esprimere la sua perfezzione, basta il dire, che sia componimento uscito dalla famosa penna del Sig. Apostolo Zen [!] storico e poeta di S. M. Imp. [music by Ziani]. Questo adunque essendosi dovuto accommodare rappresentabile nel Teatro Obizzi di Padova, è stato soggetto alla dura necessit  di aggiunta di nuove scene, cambiamenti di arie, ed accrescimenti di mutazioni. Destino al quale ogni drama vien sottoposto, dopo la sua prima comparsa che egli fa sù i Teatri. Ma acioche questo non punto resti defraudato di ci , che di venerazione si deve, a quello, ch'   parto d'un' cos  celebre, e rinomato autore, tutto quello che da altro poeta vi sar  tramischiato con piccole virgolette contrasegnato vedrassi. Vivi felice."

Accordingly, for instance, were added Temistocles' aria (I, 7) "Dell' aurora al primo albore," Palmide's entire scene (I, 10) "O dell' anime amanti" and the final chorus "Chi non s  che sia dolore" and many more. The revisor is not mentioned.

Five acts. Cast, names of Quinault as author, of Mondonville as composer, who penned the following dignified and sensible Avertissement, as if he foresaw the unfair attacks on him ever since the first public performance of his work at the Académie royale de musique, January 13, 1767:

“Nous avons la même liberté en France pour les motets. Si nous pensons comme eux dans le genre Latin, pourquoi n'aurions nous pas le même privilège pour les poëmes françois? Cet usage encourageroit les talens, exciteroit l'émulation, & contribueroit peut-être à l'amusement du Public. Ces motifs que j'ai crû raisonnables, m'ont déterminé à choisir le poëme de Thesée, non comme un téméraire qui veut attaquer Lully, mais comme un enthousiaste des operas de Quinault. Il est vrai que pour me conformer au goût présent du Théâtre, j'ai été contraint d'abrèger les scènes, & d'acroître les divertissemens, ce qui m'a obligé pour les liaisons d'ajouter quelques vers qu'on reconnoitra sûrement pour n'être pas de Quinault.

“A l'égard de la musique de Lully, ma délicatesse & mon admiration pour ce célèbre auteur, m'ont déiendu de l'employer. J'ai crû que n'en pas faire usage c'étoit la respecter.

“C'est dans ce sentiment que j'ai osé ouvrir une carrière nouvelle & avantageuse à tous les compositeurs. Heureux si l'on veut bien pardonner mon entreprise en faveur du motif.”

Thomyris, queen of Scythia. An opera. As it is perform'd at the Theatre in Lincolns-Inn-Fields. Written by Mr. Motteux. The fourth edition.

London, J. Tonson, 1719. 3 p. l., [1], 10–46 p. 18^{cm}.

Three acts. Cast and preface:

“The delicacy of taste in musick which the English have of late Years arriv'd to, makes it necessary that all Entertainments of this kind shou'd be as exquisite as the Nature of the Thing will bear. For this Reason it is, that the Persons concern'd in the reviving of English Opera's lay before the Town the Scheme of their Undertaking; not without Hopes, from former Encouragements, that the World will come into so Agreeable and Innocent a Diversion.

“Their first and principal Design is to fix these Entertainments, and make them more lasting in England. It has been observ'd, that if we shou'd have the Misfortune to lose the best of the Italian Performers, either through Age, want of Health, or their Customary Inclination of returning to their Native Country, Opera's must necessarily fall. But it wou'd be happy if we had young People train'd up here in England, and instructed to sing after the Italian Manner; (and sure the Town will be willing to encourage such a Nursery, who may emulate those Excellent Performers:) This wou'd be a Means not only to establish but perpetuate these favourite Entertainments.

“To those who may perhaps mention the Difficulty of finding Native Voices for the English Theatre, we beg leave to observe that England has already supply'd us with Mrs. Tofts, Mrs. Barbier and Mrs. Robinson; who may stand in Competition with the most Eminent among the Italians: There have formerly been Men, who have given entire Satisfaction to the Publick on the Stage, and there is no Reason why others may not be found now, who will be glad to qualify themselves upon Encouragement. We cannot but remember one of late Years whose Voice, dedicated to more solemn Performances, the Italians themselves have own'd was not to be parallel'd; and if we may expect to be supply'd with the like, those Artificial Voices, which are the peculiar Product of Italy, may well be spared, and we are apt to believe the English will never regret the want of them in their own Country.

"As a moderate Price demanded will help to convince the Town that the Principal Aim is to divert the Publick upon the most easie and reasonable Terms the Nature of the Affair will admit; so at the same time the Persons concern'd confess they flatter themselves that this very Method will in the Event be serviceable to them. For they cannot conceive how any Diversion can be lasting that is so Burdensome, as are those Exorbitant Prices, Large Subscriptions, and frequent Benefit Days. These are Grievances that have been justly complain'd of, and which they are resolv'd shall never be charg'd upon them. They are determin'd to sit down satisfied with a moderate Gain, and if in the Prosecution of this Design they shall hereafter have occasion to make Application to the Publick for some additional Encouragement, they promise that it shall be in such moderate Terms as every Body may think well of.

"Now what they hope they may promise themselves in the Success, depends upon these three Particulars; The General Encouragement from the Town to what has been propos'd; The Reasonableness of the Performers in their Demands; and The good Oeconomy and sincere Design of Pleasing in those who have undertaken it."

Motteux wrote the text adapting it to arias by Alessandro Scarlatti, Giovanni Battista Bononcini, as Walsh's score informs us and to whom Hawkins adds Steffani, Gasparini, and Albinoni. Pepusch furnished the recitative (not printed) and arranged the music.

Brescia, Gian Maria Rizzardi, n. d. 55 p. 12°.

Three acts. Argument, cast, scenario, and on p. 7: "La musica sarà di nuova composizione del Sig. Cristoforo Gluck" [Gluck]. In his essay, "Un opéra inconnu de Gluck" (Sammelbände d. I. M. G. 1907/8, p. 231-281), Piovano proves that: "Le texte du Tigrane est celui que l'abbé Francesco Silvani écrivit en 1691 sous le titre La virtù trionfante dell' amore e dell' odio, et qui fut successivement refondu en 1723 probablement par un poète napolitain, et remanié en 1741 par Goldoni." The copy described by Piovano lacked the p. 35-36, which contain, according to our complete copy, scene I, 14, beginning "Deh, principessa, almeno" and ending with the aria "Priva del caro bene," also I, 15, beginning "Morire? toglia il ciel sì tristo evento" with the aria "Care pupille amate" and I, 16, beginning "Caro, invito Tigrane."

Tigrane. Drama per musica da rappresentarsi nel Real Teatro di S. Carlo nel dì 4. novembre di quest' anno 1745. Per solennizzare il glorioso nome di Sua Maestà.

Napoli, Cristoforo Ricciardi, n. d. 58 p. 14^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication, argument, cast, scenario, and note:

"La musica del recitativo della scena xi dell atto terzo, e tutte l'arie signate colla lettera S. sono del celebre maestro Sig. Gio. Adolfo Asse detto il Sassone [Hasse], quelle di tutti l'altri recitativi, sinfonia, ed alcune arie sono del Sig. Antonio Palella, maestro di cappella napolitano, direttore dell' opera."

The arias not by Hasse, accordingly, were, for instance, in the first act: "Coronato il crin-d'alloro" (I, 1), "Scende dal monte il fonte" (I, 7), "Perfido non parlarmi" (I, 8). The text is a modernized version (utilizing perhaps Goldoni's final alterations of 1741) of Francesco Silvani's "La virtù trionfante dell' amore e dell' odio." Comparison with the Brescia, 1743, edition of "Tigrane" (as set by Gluck for Crema, 1743) shows, for instance, that the aria for I, 8, in this "Non mi parlar d'amore" has become "Perfido non parlarmi." The scené I, 9, now begins "L'odio di Cleopatra" and has the aria "Quando l'amore insegna" instead of "Si despera il mio core" resp. "Vezzi, lusinghe e sguardo," and Scene I, 10, beginning "Se sia, che un giorno stringa" has the aria "Se spunta amica face" instead of "Se spunta amica stella" and beginning "Non im ami Cleopatra."

First performed, as indicated, November 4, 1745, but previously under the same title at Naples, Teatro di San Bartolomeo November 4, 1723, and presumably without the final revisions by Goldoni, but with many alterations in Silvani's text and without Palella's music.

"Io non compongo, che per mio gusto, ed il mio gusto è d'apportar più giovamento, che diletto, onde stimo migliore strada di caminar sù le regole de Sacri Oratori, che detestano i vitii. che il seguitar gl' esempi de profani poeti, che gli vanno adulando . . ."

was Jommelli's second setting, with interpolation of pieces by Antonio Zanetti, but neither the libretto itself nor Wiel corroborate this claim. The text is so absolutely different from that of Turin (1743) as to have nothing in common with it except the scene in II, 3, "Ingiustissimi Numi," with the aria, "Da me che vorresti," which has become scene II, 4. Under the circumstances, it is clear that this "Tito Manlio" was not a second setting, but practically a new opera.

— Tom Jones, a comic opera: as it is performed at the Theatre Royal in Covent-Garden. By Joseph Reed. The second edition.

London, Becket and De Hondt, 1769. 4 p. l., 59 p. 20^{cm}.

Three acts. Cast and preface, in which the author says:

“While I was writing the last act of this opera (which was in June, 1765), the French Tom Jones fell into my hands. I found its plan so very confined, and so materially different from mine, that I could reap little or no benefit from it. The only particulars, of which I have availed myself from Mons. Poinset, are the hint of legitimating Jones, and the thought, which gave rise to my second air.”

By far most of the airs are headed by the names of these composers: Arnold (6), Holcombe (1), Granom (1), Arne (11), Van Maldere (1), Joh. Chr. Bach (3), Händel (1), Galuppi (1), Baildon (1), Boyce (1), Abel (1), Pergolesi (1), Hasse (1), Corelli (1), but some were to be sung to indicated popular tunes, and a few of the airs have no heading at all. Paris, Duchesne, 1765. 56 p. 18½^{cm}.

Cast. On p. 52-56 the airs of “C'est cependant le cours” and of the three airs mentioned in next entry, which compare for further details. On p. [3] a note reads: “La pièce est un mélange de l'ancien & du nouveau genre,” meaning that it is partly en vaudevilles and partly not. An Avertissement on p. [2] reads:

C’est d’après des épreuves favorables & réitérées en plusieurs endroits, qu’on ose présenter cette pièce au public; plus appuyés néanmoins sur les exemples de son indulgence, que sur le mérite de l’ouvrage . . .”

Accordingly “C’est pour le dieu du vin,” “Climène, au cabaret,” “Dans un verger, Colinette,” “Quand je vois Fanchette,” “Près de moi dans la boutique,” etc., had been retained by Quétant-Gossec from Audinot’s original version. Indeed, this applies to most of the ariettes, etc., in the libretto. As to the “nouvelle édition augmentée” of the next entry, the 1767 ed. has thirteen scenes only, whereas the 1765 has fourteen! Furthermore, while the dialogue in scene 7 is somewhat longer in the 1767 ed., the songs “En revenant de Clarenton” and “Je veux bien m’en fier à foi” in scenes second and third have been dropped. The final scene differs very much in both editions, the 1767 ed. having, for instance, the vaudeville “Trop occupé de mon ouvrage,” the 1765 ed. “Auprès d’un tendron.” The score published by De La Chevardière coincides with the 1767 ed. of the libretto, not with the 1765 ed.

Pictorial title page. Branchi's dedication is dated Bologna, May 30, 1621. The first piece is divided into "Uscita" 1-2, "Amore guerriero" is one long scene ("barriera") followed by a baletto and the "Coronatione d' Apollo" consists of Uscita 1-6 with the baletto in the last. Ricci attributes all these texts to Silvestro Branchi. He does not mention the composer or composers. That Silvestra Branchi wrote and Ottavio Vernizzi (probably) composed at least "La coronatione d' Apollo" is clear since in 1623 an edition of the text was published by the same publisher for performance in the Teatro della Sala in which Branchi is called the author and Vernizzi the composer. In 1623 the text was divided into four "intermezzi," for Branchi's play "L' amorosa innocenza." (See "La coronatione d' Apollo"). ML 52.2.T7

Napoli, n. publ., 1783. 21 p. 15^{cm}.

Two acts. A much altered, shorter version of "La favola de' tre gobbi," by Carlo Goldoni, who is not mentioned. Dedicatory poem, cast, and remark: "La sinfonia e la musica segnata col segno + è del Sig. D. Vincenzo Fabrizi Romano." This applies to "Mi corrono d'intorno," "Dico bene-certo ardore," "Per servirvi, e cortegiar," etc. The text of these arias does not appear to be by Goldoni. In the first intermezzo only his "Vezzosa gradita" was retained. In the second, whereas the arias "Corpo di Bacco / Son Parpagnacco," "Vi prego di core" and "Se vi guardo ben" are in the original version, "Seu tanto benedetti" and "Che bella cosa ch'è" are not by Goldoni at all. First performed at Rome, Teatro della Palla a Corda, carnival, 1784.

SCHATZ 848

Gli tre pretendenti. Dramma giocoso per musica da rappresentarsi in Bologna nel Teatro Marsigli Rossi la primavera dell' anno 1777 . . .

Bologna, Sassi, n. d. 67 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts. Impresario's dedication, cast, scenario, and name of the composer, Giovanni Battista Borghi, but not of the librettist. The imprimatur is dated May 21, 1777.

Schatz lists this as being the same as Giovanni Bertati's text of "La donna instabile." The two texts, indeed, begin "Don Testaccio mio carissimo" and they have now and then other matter in common, as, for instance, the finale of the second act, "Non si faccia più rumore." It is therefore clear, that the "Gli tre pretendenti" text is somewhat related to that of "La donna instabile," but on the whole the two texts have very little in common and are practically two different texts.

Three acts. By Bartolomeo Vitturi, who is not mentioned. Cast, name of Antonio Galeazzi as composer, scenario, and argument, in which we read:

"Della Statira di Monsieur Pradon furono tratti i caratteri, e l'argomento del presente dramma, ma poi diversamente sceneggiato per accomodarlo all' uso dell' Italiano Musicale Teatro." SCHATZ 3418

Il trionfo della fedeltà. Dramma pastorale per musica di E.[rmelinda] T.[alèa] P.[astorella] A.[reada]

Dresda, la vedova Stössel e Giovanni Carlo Krause, 1754. 8 fold. pl. (of which the last six numbered 1-6 and incl. front.), port., 63 p. 22¹/₂^{cm}.

The plates were engraved by L. Zucchi after paintings by (1-5) B. Müllers and (6-8) J. Roos. The portrait was designed by Steffano Torelli and engraved by L. Zucchi. It represents in profile "Ermelind. Tal. P. A.," indicating as in the title-page the Arcadian name of Maria Antonia Walpurgis, princess of Saxony, who wrote both text and music of this opera, though neither was wholly her work. It is known from her letters that she submitted her text to Metastasio for corrections and that Hasse, her teacher, composed part of the music, though his name appears neither in the libretto nor in the published score of the opera.

First performed at Dresden, Regio Elettoral Teatro, summer of 1754. SCHATZ 5949

Five acts. By conte Girolamo Frigimelica Roberti, who is not mentioned and who filled 24 of the 84 p. with lengthy notices to the reader, notizia istorica, notizia poetica, L'azione, Il nodo, etc., etc. Scenario and name of Alessandro Scarlatti as the composer. SCHATZ 9525

Il trionfo della pace. Festa teatrale per musica da rappresentarsi nel Regio Teatro di Torino nella primavera del 1782 alla presenza delle Maestà Loro.

Torino, Onorato Derossi, n. d. viii, 40 p. 15½^{cm}.

Two acts. Argument, cast, scenario, and names of the composer, Francesco Bianchi, and the librettist, Cesare Oliveri. On p. 36-39 description, argument, and cast of "L'inaspettata consolazione nelle sventure, ballo eroicomico." The second ballet was called "Rinaldo nel giardino incantato d'Armida." Both were by Domenico Ricciardi and composed by Vittorio Amedeo Canavasso. SCHATZ 991

Il trionfo della pace. Dramma per musica da rappresentarsi per l'aprimiento del nuovo Regio-Ducal Teatro in Mantova la primavera dell' anno 1783 . . .

Two acts. Dedicatory poem, argument, cast, scenario, and names of Cesare Oliveri as author, of Giuseppe Sarti as the composer ("La musica sarà"). On p. [49]-70 prefatory note, argument, cast, scenario, and description of Innocenzo Gambuzzi's ballets (music by Antonio Bonazzi) "Enea nel Lazio ed Il pellegrinaggio o sia La vindemmia fiamminga, ballo piacevole—pantomimo."

First performed, as indicated, May 10, 1783.

Napoli, Domenico Antonio Parrino e Michele Luigi Mutio, 1696.
2 p. l., 83 p. 13^{cm}.

Three acts. Argument. T.-p. and list of characters have been supplied in ms., as above. This was evidently done under the impression that the copy is one of the Naples ed. (1696) of Marc Antonio Bononcini's opera, but as Wotquenne's catalogue proves, this should have 6 p. l., 70 p., not 2 p. l., 83 p.! Consequently, our imperfect copy belongs to some other edition. It is distinctly different from the next entry.

SCHATZ 1206

— Camilla, regina de' Volsci. Drama da rappresentarsi in musica nel famoso Teatro Vendramino l'anno 1698 . . .

Venetia, Girolamo Albrizzi, 1698. 59 p. 14½^{cm}.

Three acts. Publisher's dedication, dated Venice, October 4, 1698, scenario, argument, and prefatory note, in which it is stated:

"E convenuto ridurlo con molta fatica à quella brevità, ch'è indispensabilmente necessaria al costume delle nostre scene."

Accordingly, the first act has 17 scenes, the second 15, the third 12, as against 15, 18, 15 in our imperfect copy. Also, the text differs noticeably in scenes otherwise the same. For instance, imperf. copy has, in Scene I, act I, Camilla, "Ma più di voi son' io misera figlia;" Venice (1698) has, "O d'infelice rè misera figlia." In the latter the opera ends with a quartet, "Amore nel mio core;" the imperf. copy with a chorus, "A tanto giubilo." The opera became known under many titles besides the two here given: "Regina de' Volsci," "La fede in cimento o sia, Camilla, regina de' Volsci," "Amore per amore," "La rinovata Camilla."

— Camilla. An opera. As it is perform'd at the Theatre Royal in Drury-Lane, by Her Majesty's servants.

London, Jacob Tonson, 1706. 3 p. l., 38, [2] p. 21½^{cm}.

On last (unnumb.) page, publisher's book list.

Three acts, prologue, and epilogue. Cast and dedication by "Owen Swiny," which reads, in part:

"The mighty encouragement musick has lately met with in England, is not only an effect of the true taste our nobility and gentry entertain of that nice science, but an instance that we have some among us, who may be able in time to bring it into a settled reputation. Hitherto it seem'd confin'd to the more Southern climates, as if it had been the peculiar product of those happier countries; and languish'd, like tender exoticks, when remov'd into our colder region. But some late attempts have made it appear, that the English genius is not so inharmonious, but that a publick encouragement may render us capable of contending for the mastery with the Italians themselves.

"This consideration made me ambitious of addressing the following essay to Your Ladyship [Lady Wharton], which is design'd to introduce a foreign composition, that may serve at present to give us a taste of the Italian musick, and in time prove a foil to the English . . ."

Owen MacSwiney mentions neither Stampiglia, whose "Il trionfo di Camilla" he simply translated, nor M. A. Bononcini. Nor does he mention Niccolo Francesco Haym. If Grove's Dictionary says:

"Camilla (adapted from Buononcini, to a libretto by Owen Mac Swiney) was Haym's first opera, produced at Drury Lane, April 30, 1706."

this information is partly misleading, partly incorrect, since a comparison between the score of "The songs . . . in Camilla" (London, Walsh) and the ms. score of Bononcini's opera proves that the latter was performed at London practically intact, without additions by Haym or any other composer.

Tullo Ostilio. Drama per musica del Sig. Adriano Morselli da rappresentarsi nel famoso Teatro di Tor di Nona . . .

Roma, Buagni, 1694. 72 p. 13^{cm}.

Three acts. Impresario's dedication, cast, scenario, and prefatory note, in which it is stated:

"Comparisce per la seconda opera su queste scene, il Tullo Ostilio, bensì in gran parte mutata per quello che risguarda all' arie da Palemone Licurio [=Silvio Stampiglia] havendovi levate, & aggiunte alcune scene con qualche poca variazione in diversi passi de' recitativi . . . La musica in pochi giorni l'ha partorita il fertile ingegno del Signor Gio. Bononcini."

Consequently the opening remark in the dedication that "il Tullo Ostilio, che sin ora con sommo applauso ha passeggiato i più famosi teatri d'Italia viene a far mostra di sì in questo di Roma," appears to apply to the libretto, with music by some other composer, possibly by Marc' Antonio Ziani, first performed at Venice in 1685. The two misers: a musical farce. As it is performed at the Theatre Royal in Covent-Garden. By the author of Midas, and the Golden pippin.

London, G. Kearsley, 1775. 3 p. l., 32 p. 19½^{cm}.

Two acts. By Kane O'Hara. Cast and note:

"The following scenes are taken from a justly admired piece entitled, Les deux avares [by Fenouillot de Falbaire]. The bare out-line only of the finish'd characters, with just enough of the dialogue to connect the incidents, has been retain'd in order to reduce the whole within the compass of an English farce . . ."

The composer, Charles Dibdin, is not mentioned. How much, if any, of Grétry's music he borrowed, is unknown to me. In Johnston's vocal score of "The two misers" Dibdin is not mentioned, and the title page says "The music selected from the works of the most celebrated composers." In our copy the name of Dr. Hayes is added in pencil to the duet "Now gossip strike home" and that of [Felice] Giardini to the catch "Fill ev'ry man his cup."

First performed, as indicated, January 21, 1775.

The two Sosias. A. T. of Purcell's Amphitryon.

Two to one. A comic opera, in three acts. As performed at the Theatre-Royal, Hay-market, and Smock-alley. Written by George Colman, jun. . . . The music composed by Dr. Arnold.

Dublin, Printed for W. Wilson, 1785. 54 p., 1 l. 17^{cm}. [Bound with Thompson, James. Edward and Eleonora.]

Most of the music was composed by Arnold, but, as Harrison & co.'s vocal score shows, he also utilized some ballad airs. For instance, for air IV, "Adzooks, old Crusty" he used "Yankee Doodle." "When cruel parents" is headed in the vocal score as composed by Philip Hayes.

First performed at the Haymarket June 19, 1784.

Three acts. Goldoni is mentioned as author and Florian Leopold Gassmann as the composer. Schatz claims that this was his second setting of the text. This Vienna version of the libretto follows fairly closely that of the original, Venice, 1759. Still, a number of differences are noticeable. For instance, the aria "Tusai cupido" (I, 11) has become "Roccolina bella, bella," "Amor per te mi stimola" (III, 5' has become "Per te sospiro," etc., etc. SCHATZ 3627

Five acts. By Giacomo Badoaro, who in his long dedication (p. 5-18) gives what may be called his esthetic creed of dramas for music. In the course of his remarks he says:

"Feci già molti anni rappresentare il Ritorno d' Ulisse in patria, dramma cavato di punto da Homero, e ricordato per ottimo da Aristotile nella sua Poetica, e pur' anco all' hora udii abbaiar qualche cane, ma io non fui però tardo à risentirmene co' sassi alle mani. Hora fò vedere l' Ulisse errante . . . ho voluto rappresentare gli accidenti più gravi, occorsi ad Ulisse nel gir' in patria . . . Se dirassi, e questa opera sia un mostro, dirò di nò; se dirassi, che'l soggetto ecceda la commune dell' altre tragedie, dirò che è un gigante nato per eccesso di materia, e non contra la mia volontà. Se vorrà affermar un bell' ingegno, che di questo soggetto poteva fare cinque opere; io le rispondo, ch'è vero, ma non le hò fatte, perche hò voluto, e saputo farne una sola . . .

"Fù il Ritorno d' Ulisse in patria decorato dalla musica del Signor Claudio Monteverde soggetto di tutta fama, e perpetuità di nome, hora mancherà questo condimento; poiche è andato il gran maestro ad intuonar la musica degli angeli à Dio. Si goderanno in sua vece le gloriose fatiche del Signor Francesco Saccati, e ben' era di dovere, che per veder gli splendori di questa luna, tramontasse prima quel Sole. Havremo per ordinator di machine, e di scene il nostro ingegnossissimo Torelli . . ."

Between this dedication and the argument there is a notice to the reader by Giacomo Torelli, which is of importance in another direction. He says:

"Io hebbi dalla mano dell' autore l' Ulisse errante, con privilegiata autorità di farlo stampare in grande con le figure doppò fornite le recite, & ciò intrapresi per haver occasione di mostrar al mondo quelle fatiche, che hò io incontrate per ben servire à questi cavalieri; Hora dalla pienezza di questa gratia è nato in mè nuovo ardire di farla anco stampar in questa forma per incontrar la sodisfazione di quelli, che godono più simili cose, quando sieno accompagnate dalla lettura . . ." The Arias in Italian, the recitatives in German. Neither Pietro Pariati, the author of the Italian "Vespetta e Pimpinone," nor the translator, Johann Philipp Praetorius, nor the composer, Georg Philipp Telemann, is mentioned. Ottzenn enters this, possibly from the score parts, as "Pimpinone oder Die ungleiche heirat."

First performed as indicated, 1725.

[Paris], P. Robert Christophe Ballard, 1774. 61 p. 19^{cm}.

Cast and names of Pierre René "Le Monnier, commissaire des guerres" as author and of Etienne Joseph Floquet as composer. The third entrée has, in the text, the alternative title "Les troubadours," and "Théodore" is preceded by this note:

"Le sujet de cet acte, est le même que celui qui a été traité par M. Roi [Roy], dans le Ballet des Grâces; on a supprimé le rôle d'Eudoxe, mère de Théodore, parce qu'on a cru qu'il faisoit longueur. Les vers marqués par des guillemets, sont de l'ancien opera."

First performed at Paris, Académie royale de musique, September 7, 1773.

n. i., n. d. [118]-176 p. 16^{cm}. (F. L. Schmidel's Theatralische werke, Wien & Leipzig, 1785.)

Detached copy. The text is preceded by this protest:

"Dieses singspiel wurde den 23 hornung [February] 1783 in dem k. k. National-hoftheater unter dem titel—Die betrogene arglist—aufgefuehrt. Da es in dieser gestalt, in der es aufgefuehrt wurde, gar nicht zu dieser absicht bestimmt war, sondern von dem herausgeber ohne mein wissen dazu gebraucht worden ist, so bin ich niezumanden, der ueber seine unwahrscheinliche und unvollkommene ausfuehrung unzufrieden war, und es sein musste, rechenschaft schuldig. Was die gegenwaertige ausfuehrung betrifft, erwarte ich das urtheil eines jeden kunstrichters, der mich belchen will."

The piece was written, and composed by Joseph Weigl, for the marionettes theater of friends of Schmidel.

Two acts. By conte Jacopo Antonio Sanvitale, who signs the dedication with both his real and his Arcadian name. Argument, cast, name of the composer, Giuseppe Colla, and note:

"Questa favola pastorale, con maggiore estensione in tre atti divisi, fu un' opera fino dall' anno 1720 esposta sul Ducal Teatro di Piacenza in occasione delle nozze del Serenissimo Sig. Duca di Modena. La traccia, la condotta, e i pessimi versi, che ne fanno arrossire l'autore, sono tutti diversi, come diversa è l'allegoria; onde l'argomento medesimo chiaramente si vede in quante nuove, e migliori maniere possa esser trattato. Quanti autori di tragedie, di commedie, e di drammi musicali non hanno trattato il medesimo argomento? Giudica bene, e vivi elice."

Paris, chez le libraire au Théâtre du vaudeville, an VII [1798-99], 87 p. 21½^{cm}.

Cast. Many of the airs are printed in the text. They are by no means all vaudevilles in the sense of real folk-songs but in the technical sense. For instance, Rousseau's own "Dans ma cabane obscure" was used and Paisiello is expressly mentioned as the composer of the fredon "Je suis Lindor" for "Toujours ainsi, de mon champêtre asyle," as also "C.[itoyen] Wicht" as composer for the fredons of "Pour leur grosseur" and "Cueillons ces cerises." A note on p. 2 informs us that the title of the opera at its first performance was simply "La vallée de Montmorency."

Dresda, 1783, n. publ. 127 p. 15½^{cm}.

Two acts. German title page, "Die weinlese," and text face Italian. Gazzaniga is mentioned as the composer. This edition of Bertati's text is very different from that below.

The latter has in I, 3, the aria "La donna ch'è amante," the Dresden libretto has no aria; the Lisbon ed. has "Su bel bello, adagio" in I, 6, the Dresden ed. has it in I, 7. Scene I, 9, in the latter is the same as I, 8, in the former, but this has the aria "Egli è ver che son villana" instead of "Alle selve, alle campane." SCHATZ 3675

Venus and Adonis: A masque. And Myrtillo: A pastoral interlude. Performed at the Theatre-Royal. Written by Colley Cibber, Esq., set to musick by Dr. Pepusch . . .

London, Henry Lintot, 1736. vii, (incl. front.), [8]-24 p. 16^{cm}.

The first piece consists of two "interludes." "Myrtillo" begins on p. 25. Casts and preface:

"The following Entertainment is an Attempt to give the Town a little good Musick in a Language they understand: For no Theatrical Performance can be absolutely Good, that is not Proper; and how can we judge of its Propriety, when we know not one Word of the Voice's Meaning? But perhaps this is not all that the Italian Language has of late impos'd upon us; most of our Opera's being (if possible) as miserably void of Common Sense in their Original, as the Translation: Nay, the Tyranny is carried yet farther; for the Songs are so often turn'd out of their Places, to introduce some absurd favourite Air of the Singer, that in a few Days the first Book you have bought, is reduc'd to little more than the Title-Page of what it pretends to; and as it now stands, the whole Entertainment seems to be dwindled into a Concert of Instruments; for a Voice that is not understood, has in reality no more Meaning than the Fiddle that plays to it: And thus, by slavishly giving up our Language to the despotick Power of Sound only, we are so far from establishing Theatrical Musick in England, that the very Exhibition or Silence of it seems entirely to depend upon the Arrival or Absence of some Eminent Foreign Performer. By this sort of Conduct, the vast Sums that have been levied for the Support of it, have only ended in its Abuse and Prostitution. And (though the insolent Charms of the Opera seem to be above it) why should we suppose that a little plain Sense should do Musick any more harm, than Virtue does a Beautiful Woman? And 'tis but a melancholy Proof of its Power, that it has been so long able to keep Nonsense in countenance.

"It is therefore hoped, that this Undertaking, if encourag'd, may in time reconcile Musick to the English Tongue. And, to make the Union more practicable, it is humbly moved, that it may be allow'd a less Inconvenience, to hear the Performer express his Meaning with an imperfect Accent, than in Words, that (to an English audience) have no Meaning at all: And at worst, it will be an easier Matter to instruct two or three Performers in tolerable English, than to teach a whole Nation Italian.

"After having said so much of its Absurdities, it will be but just to allow the Excellencies of the Italian Composition; the Manner of it being indisputably superior to all Nations for a Theatre: And 'tis hoped this Entertainment will want nothing of the Italian, but the Language."

"Venus and Adonis" was first performed at Drury Lane, as indicated, November 22, 1715; "Myrtillo" in 1716.

Three acts. Cast, scenario and name of Pasquale Anfossi as composer. This is practically the same text as that of "La vera costanza," except that the third act of "La pescatrice fedele" has six scenes only instead of nine, that III, 1 is different, shorter and without the aria "Nò, non andrà l'indegna," and that the scene II, 11 "Perdona amato Ernesto" with aria "A questo bel segno" has been dropped.

First performed at Venice, as indicated, November 20, 1776. SCHATZ 248

Three acts. Argument, scenario. Neither the author, resp. translator, Hinsch, nor the composer, Reinhard Keiser, is mentioned. Some of the arias have Italian text added to the German. Noticeably different from the edition of 1703. For instance, the aria "Wie sich die blauen flammen entzünden" has been dropped from I, 1, as also "Holde goettin glimmer hertzen" from I, 2, and the aria in I, 2, "Toedtliche eyffersucht," has been replaced by "Du grausame schoene."

I veri amici. Drama per musica da rappresentarsi nel Teatro Tron di S. Cassano. Nel carnevale dell' anno 1713 . . .

Venezia, Marino Rossetti, 1713. 70 p. 15^{cm}.

Three acts. Dedication, argument, cast, scenario, and notice of the publisher, in which he says:

"L'idea del presente drama, è presa dalla famosa tragedia di Mons. Pietro Cornelio, intitolata l'Eraclio ['Héraclius], ella fù appoggiata ad una storia egittia, cangiategli perciò i nomi. Consegnato poi ad altro autore perche la verseggiasse, questo si è creduto in debito di aggiugnervi diverse altre scene ancora per ridurre l'opera all' uso italiano, che gusta vedere ad agire gl' interlocutori, e non solo sentirli parlare . . ."

This note does not seem to quite bear out Wiel and Schatz, who attribute the text to Francesco Silvani and Domenico Lalli. They both consider Andrea Paulati as the composer.

Leipzig, Dyckische buchhandlung, 1772. 144 p. 15½^{cm}.

On p. [2], the note: "Nach dem Devil to pay or The wives metamorphosed des herrn Coffey." On October 6, 1752, Christian Felix Weisse's two-act "Der teufel ist los oder Die verwandelten weiber" was performed, with music by Johann Standfuss, at Leipzig. Later on Weisse rewrote the text in three acts, after Sedaine's "Le diable à quatre" and reversed the title, and Johann Adam Hiller revised Standfuss's music, replaced rejected portions of it by music of his own, and composed all new matter in the text. The libretto of 1772 mentions neither author nor composers. In the revised three-act version this practically first German comic opera was first performed at Koch's Theater am Rannstaedter Thore, Leipzig, May 23, 1766 (Calmus). SCHATZ 4732

Dresde, Jean Riedel, 1717. 31 p. 15^{cm}.

A notice to the reader tells us that the first and second intermezzo were by Alessandro Scarlatti, the third by Francesco [Bartolommeo] Conti; also that the text of the first two was by Silvio Stampiglia, of the third by baron Francesco Ballerini and that

"Le arie che sono tradote in francese, di Vespetta e di Milo, si possono cantare come le italiane."

Not mentioned by Dent, unless I am much mistaken. The libretto of these intermezzi forms also part of that to Antonio Lotti's opera "Giove in Argo," Dresden, (1717). (Unpaged. 19cm. See Schatz 5719.)

First performed at Dresden, Schlosstheater ("Sala di Ridotto"), October 25, 1717 (Schatz), though the dedication in the libretto of "Giove in Argo" is dated November, 1717.

*1 p. l., 184 p. 16^{cm}. (Zwo komische operetten von G * * , Chemnitz, 1773.)

In his prefatory note, the unidentified author says:

"Wuerdiget man mich seiner beurtheilung, so macht man sich einen juengling verbindlich, der die Musen, von seiner wiege an, unbeschreiblich liebte, und setzt ihn dadurch vielleicht in den stand, diese gesetzlosen taendeleyen dereinst durch correctere und wichtigere arbeiten der verzeyhung wuerdig zu machen."

Not recorded by Schatz. The "Zwo komische operetten" have been attributed (see Deutsches Anonymen Lexikon) to Carl Franz Henisch, 1745-1776, and to Wilhelm Kraus, but (1) the title page clearly points to a name beginning with the letter G.; (2) Kraus's earliest known publication dates from 1795, so that an interval of more than twenty years would lie between this and the "Zwo komische operetten;" (3) the dedicatory poem, with the motif of "Die erstlinge," ends:

"Und so auch heiligt Dir die dankbare Camoene Die ersten ihrer toene."

This can not possibly apply to Henisch, who began to publish his Singspiele in 1770, and who would hardly, in 1773, have called himself a "Juengling." Neither this nor "Das Testament," the other operetta in the volume, is recorded by Schatz.

Wallrad und Evchen oder Die parforsjagd, ein singspiel von L. Ph. Hahn. Mit musik von J. L. F. C. Maier, dem juengern.

Zweibruecken, P. Hallanzy, 1782. 67 p. 16½^{cm}.

On p. 3-11 a "Vorbericht" dated "Zweibruecken, im Erndemond, 1782," which reads like a novel. According to this, a starving, old, retired actor by the name of Meyer came to the author with the request to cede to him some literary work which he would publish at his own expense and from the sale of which Meier expected to reap a profit. Hahn finally consented, found an old "Entwurf zu einem Hochzeitgedicht," completed it as a singspiel in eight days, got a young, local musician, evidently Maier, to compose it, etc. The result, of course, was that Meyer did not even cover the printing expenses with this venture. A few years later he was dead and Hahn then decided to give the possible proceeds from the sale of the libretto, which seems to have at first been printed under the name of Meier, to the widow. Finally, Hahn says that the play is in certain respects local, the characters being designed after certain well-known persons of Zweibruecken. SCHATZ 5844

Three acts, introduction, and epilogue. Cast and preface beginning:

"The following ballad-opera is a faithful translation of the French original; nor is there one word added to the title, or any character omitted in the dramatis personæ . . . There is a strong presumption that it was wrote by a Hugonot to please the Jansenists, who abhor Jesuits . . . But it is not very material who was the author of it . . ."

The preface of the anonymous and unknown translator then goes on to say how the piece was privately performed, how the Jesuits caused it to be suppressed, etc. LONGE 120

London, R. Baldwin, 1783. v. [1], 40 p. 21^{cm}.

Original cast and 1783 Covent-Garden cast. In his preface the author-composer-compiler, Charles Dibdin (not mentioned) says:

"Finding among the different pieces I have composed for Ranelagh and the theatre, a number of ballads which I took great pains with, and which have been but little heard, I thought I could not better employ my leisure time than in furnishing, upon some familiar plan, the dialogue necessary to work up these materials into a ballad farce, a species of entertainment which has always been well received, and which; as it has lain dormant for some time, I thought would have so far the charms of novelty to recommend it.

"I had heard of a piece of this sort, which has the characters of a Waterman and a gardener in it; and the scene of which is laid at Battersea: This I enquired after, but was informed it was out of print; I nevertheless liked the idea of those two characters so well, that I determined to pursue the hint . . . I never read the piece in question. nor do I for a certainty at this moment know the title of it . . ."

First performed at the Haymarket August 17, 1774 (Clarence, but Genest "the 5th time"), July 14, 1774 (Schatz).

Two acts. Cast and preface, dated February 8, 1773, by Charles Dibdin, in which he says:

"The reader will perceive at first sight that the hint of this piece is borrowed from an Italian Opera, entitled, Il Filosofo di Campagna [by Goldoni]. There is also a circumstance from Moliere, which, except about twenty lines taken from different publications, and thrown occasionally into the songs, are the only passages in it that have ever appeared either on the stage, or in print.

"Indeed conscious of my own inability, I should have collected all the materials, had it been practicable; but attempting this without success, and being unwilling to throw away a subject than which 'tis hardly possible to conceive any thing more operatical, I determined to make a tryal of what I could do to it myself, and this in no respect with a view of setting myself up for an author, but merely from a desire of assisting my reputation as a musician . . ."

First performed, as indicated, February 1, 1773 (Genest).

A world discovered. A. T. of Columbus.

The world in the moon; an opera. As it is perform'd at the Theatre in Dorset-Garden. By His Majesty's servants. By E. S. . . . The second edition.

London, Abel Roper, 1697. 4 p. l., 43, [1] p. 20½cm.

Five acts, prologue, and epilogue. Cast and epistle dedicatory by Elkanah Settle, to Christopher Rich, which reads, in part:

"The feast being made under your own roof, I cannot choose so proper a patron for this entertainment as your self . . . So great an undertaking, I am sure, has never been on an English stage; and I am not traveller sufficient to make foreign comparisons. And here I think my self obliged to do the pencil this publick right, to tell the world that never was such a pile of painting rais'd upon so generous a foundation; especially under all the hardships of so backward a season of the year . . .

"As to the entertainment itself I hope I shall not be vain to say, that the model of the scenes of this play are something of an original: I am sure I have removed a long heap of rubbish, and thrown away all our old French lumber, our clouds of clouts, and set the theatrical paintings at a much fairer light . . ."

Not a real opera, but a play interspersed with some music composed in about equal parts by Jeremiah Clarke and Daniel Purcell.

Xerse. Drama per musica nel Teatro a SS. Gio. e Paolo per l'anno MDCLIV . . .

Venetia, Matteo Leni, 1654. 6 p. l. (incl. front.) 71 p. 14^{cm}.

Three acts with prologue. By conte Niccolò Minato, who signs the dedication with his initials and dates it Venice, January 12, 1654. Argument, scenario, and notice to the reader without name of Pietro Francesco Cavalli as composer.

SCHATZ 1743

— Il Xerse. Drama per la musica con aggiunta dell' intermedii, e molte altre scene, & aggiustamenti, conforme si rappresentò nella città di Palermo. Data in luce ad instantia dell' Academia delli Musici di detta città . . .

Palermo, Andrea Colicchia, 1658. 5 p. l., 142 p. 13^{cm}.

Prologue and three acts. Dedication and argument. No allusion to author or composer, except that the dedication says: "composto con felice vena di poesia d'autor famoso in tal materia." Comparison proved it to be conte Niccolò Minato's "Xerse," as set to music by Francesco Cavalli, Venice, 1654. The intermedii are of a comic character.

Exactly the same text as in 1737, though Schatz claims "con cambiamenti." With impresario's dedication dated Cesena, February, 1745, notice to the reader, and cast, but again without the names of the composer and the librettist. Schatz claims that Buini and "altri maestri" were responsible for the music, but this claim is apparently based on the libretto published by Modesto Fenzio for the performances at Venice, May, 1742. Wiel enters the opera under that year as "di vari autori."

— Die zauberflöte. Eine oper in drei aufzuegen, neubearbeitet von C. A. Vulpius. Die musik ist von Mozart. Aufgefuehrt auf dem herzoglichen Hoftheater zu Weimar zum erstenmal am 16. Januar 1794.

Leipzig, Johann Samuel Heinsius, 1794. front., 104 p. 16^{cm}.

The "Vorrede" dated "Weimar, den 30. Jan. 1794" reads:

"Es war uns schlechterdings unmoeglich, die Zauberfloete nach dem originale, welches Mozart durch seine himmlische komposition gleichsam veredelt hatte, vor unser delikates publikum hier auf das theater zu bringen. Es musste daher auf eine umarbeitung gedacht werden, und so entstand die meinige, welche nachher auch von der Mannheimer buehne angenommen wurde.

"Wer das original kennt, wird wissen, was ich geleistet habe, oder nicht. Den dialog habe ich ganz neu umgeschaffen. Die verse habe ich geaendert und wenigstens—vom nonsens gereinigt, wie ich hoffe! Dennoch wird man hier und da noch harte reime genug finden. Sie sind immer, bei arbeiten dieser art, ziemlich unvermeidlich. Es ist unendlich leichter fuer die musik, als nach einer schon vorhandenen komposition, zu arbeiten . . .

"Das originalstueck hat gar keinen plan. Die menschen gehen darinne nur, um wieder zu kommen, und kommen, um abgehen zu koennen. —Ich habe es versucht, einen plan hineinzudraengen . . . In dieser ruecksicht habe ich auch das stueck in drei aufzuege abgetheilt, weil der zwischenraum von nacht und tag mir dadurch bestimmter gemacht zu seyn schien, und weil ueberhaupt der zweite aufzug durch seine unverhaeltnissmaessige laenge, ermuedete . . ."

Paris, veuve Delormel & fils, 1754. 27, 8, 4 p. 19^{cm}. (Theatre de M. Favart, Paris, Duchesne, 1763-77, t. ii.)

Cast. En vaudevilles. No airs printed in the text, but the 8, and 4 p. at end contain nine engraved "Airs de Zéphire et Fleurette" and "Vaudeville de Zéphire et Fleurette." On p. [3] this Avertissement:

"Cette pièce d'abord en prose, & en couplets, fut présentée aux Comédiens italiens en 1745. Ils se préparoient à la jouer, lorsque des circonstances momentanées les empêchèrent de donner des parodies. Une copie de cet ouvrage tomba entre les mains d'un comédien de province, qui le fit imprimer après y avoir ajouté quelques couplets. Les auteurs le révendiquèrent, en retranchèrent les augmentations, la pièce fut refondue & donnée dans la forme qui suit."

The authors were Laujon and Panard and the piece was "refondue" by Favart. The arranger of the music is not mentioned by Font. ML 49.A2F1

La Zingara.

Intermezzo in two parts. Music by Rinaldo di Capua. Author unknown. Date of first performance unknown.

Not in L. of C. and no copy of the original edition had been traced by Spitta when he wrote his essay on Rinaldo di Capua for the Vierteljahrsschrift für Musikwissenschaft, 1887. In this essay Spitta sought to reconstruct the original version of "La Zingara" (though without much success), principally on the basis of the somewhat altered score edited by Cosimi some time after the first performance of "La Zingara" on June 19, 1753, at the Académie royale de musique, Paris. Compare Spitta also for the relationship between this score and that of Favart's French version of 1755. Cosimi's score contains the following (arias in Italics):

(Int. I) Con la speme del goder.

Si taglia borse.

Tu non pensi.

Caro fratello mio.

Hò ragione, sì signore.

Mancherebbe amor questa.

Ella può credermi.

E in breve sarò sposo.

Sì, caro ben sarete.

E dove, dove l'orso n'andò (Rec. acc.)

Che orror che spavento.

Donde Signor tant ira.

Amor, oh che diletto.

(Int. II) Imaginar non puoi.

E specie di tormento (text Metastasio's Temistocle).

S'avvicina, Calcante.

O voi possenti Numi (Rec. acc.)

Voce, che flebile.

Nulla, nulla Signor.

Perfidì, che volete.

Non tante smanie.

O dell' Egitto Nume custode (= "Dea delle selve . . . Tu il core intatto" in Hasse's Leucippo).

Io giuro rei.

Viverò se tu lo vuoi.

Oh Dio Nisa d'amore.

Ogni tromba, ogni tamburo.

—La Bohémienne, comedie en deux actes en vers, mêlée d'ariettes, traduite de la Zingara, intermede italien.

La Haye, H. Constapel, 1758. 40 p. 15½^{cm}.

Two acts. By Favart, parodied from Rinaldo di Capua's "La Zingara," and first performed at Paris, Comédie italienne, July 28, 1755. At the head of the arias are given the first words of the Italian arias used. The cast is preceded by this impudent

"Avertissement

"Cette bagatelle est une traduction de l'intermède italien donné sur le Théâtre de l'Opéra. Dans tous les endroits où l'on a suivi l'original à la lettre, on a dû nécessairement se rencontrer avec les auteurs qui ont traduit le même sujet. On ne peut point être soupçonné de plagiat, quand'il n'y qu'une façon de dire les choses."

— La Bohémienne, comédie en deux actes et en vers, meslée d'ariettes, traduite de la Zingara, intermède italien. Représentée pour la première fois par les Comédiens italiens ordinaires du roi, le 28 juillet 1755.

Paris, N. B. Duchesne, 1759. 43, [5], [41]–96 p. 19^{cm}. Theatre de M. Favart, Paris, Duchesne, 1763–77, t. ii.)

Cast. The [5] p. contain catalogues of plays; the p. [41]–96, seventeen "Ariettes de la Bohémienne." In the text which coincides with that of the published score the corresponding ariettes are headed by the first words of the Italian arias.

The seventeen ariettes are:

Dans l'espérance du plaisir (= "Con la speme del goder" in La Zingara).

Tu ne songes guère (= "Tu non pensi" in La Zingara).

Que t'importe que je reste (= "Hò ragione, si Signore" in La Zingara).

Ah! cette ligne désigne (= "Ella può credermi" in La Zingara).

Examinez sa grace (= "Tre giorni son che Nina." For a long time attributed to Pergolesi, though without proof. Radiciotti persists in attributing this song to Pergolesi on the strength of rather naïve "internal" evidence. His reading of Squire's articles on the song in "Musical Times," 1899, and Zeitschrift d. I. M. G. 1900/01 is curiously inaccurate. Squire adduced some contemporary evidence that the song was considered a composition by Legrenzio Vincenzo Ciampi, and he traced its first anonymous appearance in print to the year 1749 when it was printed (in April) by Walsh of London as one of the interpolated songs in a comic opera called "I tre cicisbei ridicoli," a rifacimento (London, Haymarket, March 14, 1749) perhaps by Ciampi, the accredited "maestro to the company" in London of Natale Resta's opera (text by Vasin), Venice, Teatro di Sant' Angelo, May 1748. Spitta was inclined, though without sound reasons, to attribute the song, which originally was comic, not tragic, to Rinaldo di Capuà. Pergolesi's name did not become attached to it until the sixth decade of the eighteenth century, i. e. if Gugler really saw an English sheet-edition of the song with Pergolesi's name, or otherwise not until the nineteenth century. Weckerlin, for instance, never saw an edition with Pergolesi's name older than 1847.)

Où, vous serez sans cesse (= "Sì, caro ben sarete" in La Zingara).

Ah! mon ours a pris la fuite (= "Maledetti quanti siete" in Ciampi's Bertoldo, Bertoldina e Casaseno).

Oh! laissez donc mon coeur (= "Madam' lasciatemi" in Resta's I trè cicisbei ridicoli).

Mon coeur, o cher Calcante (as appears from a note in the score, this duet was by Pergolesi. Indeed it is "Per te io hò nel core" from his Flaminio).

(Int. II) Je n'en puis plus (= "Sì ravniva" [nel mio core], which also appears in the "Giocatore" Paris).

Au piège il va se rendre (= "E specie di tormento" in La Zingara).

Je perds sans ressource (= "Che orror! che spavento" in La Zingara).

O vous, démons celibres (= O voi possenti Numi (in the text called an ariette, in the "Ariettes" a recitative and in the score correctly a "Recitatif accompagnè." It is from La Zingara).

Tu voix au noir séjour (= "Voce che lugubre" in La Zingara).

Au secours. Ah! je tremble (= "Perfidi che volete" in La Zingara).

Pauvre Nisi! Tu chéris (= "Vedovella, poverella" in Cocchi's La scaltra governatrice).

Toujours preste, toujours leste (= "Ogni tromba, ogni tamburo" in La Zingara).

Paris, n. publ., 1768. 2 p. l., 39 p. 19^{cm}.

One act. The anonymous author says in his preface:

"J'avais toujours imaginé qu'en travaillant d'après l'élégant Marmontel, la réusite était sûre. Je m'amusai à mettre en scènes son Conte de Laurette. A peine eus-je achevé de compiler mon drame en faveur d'une société qui a bien voulu s'amuser de le représenter, que je crus qu'il n'y avait qu'à le faire mettre en musique. J'ai relais mes ariettes sur des airs italiens. J'entrevois déjà mon triomphe, & le plaisir d'avoir contribué à celui du public." However, he decided first to submit his play to a "femme charmante, pleine d'esprit & de goût" for her criticism which he expected to be in the form of a compliment. He quotes her not altogether flattering "réflexions" and suggestions for improvement and continues by saying:

"Me connaissant trop de paresse & point assez de talent pour suivre le conseil sage & honnête que renferme cette juste critique, j'abandonnai mon projet de me faire jouer sur le théâtre. Je me plaindrai peut-être bientôt de l'avoir été trop en société."

The "airs italiens" to which his ariettes were to be sung are indicated in every instance with the name of the composer. Accordingly the music formed an anthology of arias by Galuppi, Ferrandini, Jommelli, Gluck, Bach, Piccinni, Traetta, Sarti and others and includes a few Venetian canzonettas.
